LIGHT VOTER TURNOUT IS SEEN

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

State officials are predicting a low voter turnout for Tuesday's primary, even though eight candidates are battling it out for the U.S. Senate nomination. Bernard Apol, state elections director, said a turnout of 25 to 27 per cent of the state's 4.9 million registered voters "would be doing good."

Major interest in southwestern Michigan has centered on a four-way race for the Republican nomination for Fourth District Congressman involving Atty. Lee Boothby, David S. Frazer, David Stockman and Helen Take. The winner will face Richard "Mike" Daugherty, the unopposed Democratic candidate, in the November general election for the right to succeed retiring Rep. Edward Hutchinson (R-St. Joseph).

The lackluster Senate fight has four Democrats and four Republicans fighting for the chance to succeed retiring Democratic Sen. Philip Hart. So far, neither issues nor personality have won for any of them the broad allegiance Hart commanded during 18 years in Washington. The biggest campaign battle to date has centered not on national issues, but on Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin's perpetuation of a decades-old branch manager patronage system.

Austin's Democratic opponents, led by admitted underdog James Elsman, have accused the 63-year-old Austin of coercing branch managers, who he appointed, to contribute to his campaign. Austin — who would be the first black Democratic Senator if elected — has pledged to end the patronage system, and said he would accept no further campaign contributions from the branch managers.

Trying to overtake Austin, and occasionally taking verbal potshots at each other, are 38-year-old Congressman Donald Riegle of Flint and 53-year-old Congressman James O'Hara of Utica. Riegle has been cultivating his image as a dynamic, outspoken liberal, while O'Hara prides himself on working behind the scenes and will rely heavily on strong, organized union support. Riegle has showed up second in the polls behind Austin. O'Hara has dismissed election polls as useless. Riegle, however, has raised more money than any of the candidates — $270,000 at last count and headed for the $300,000 mark.

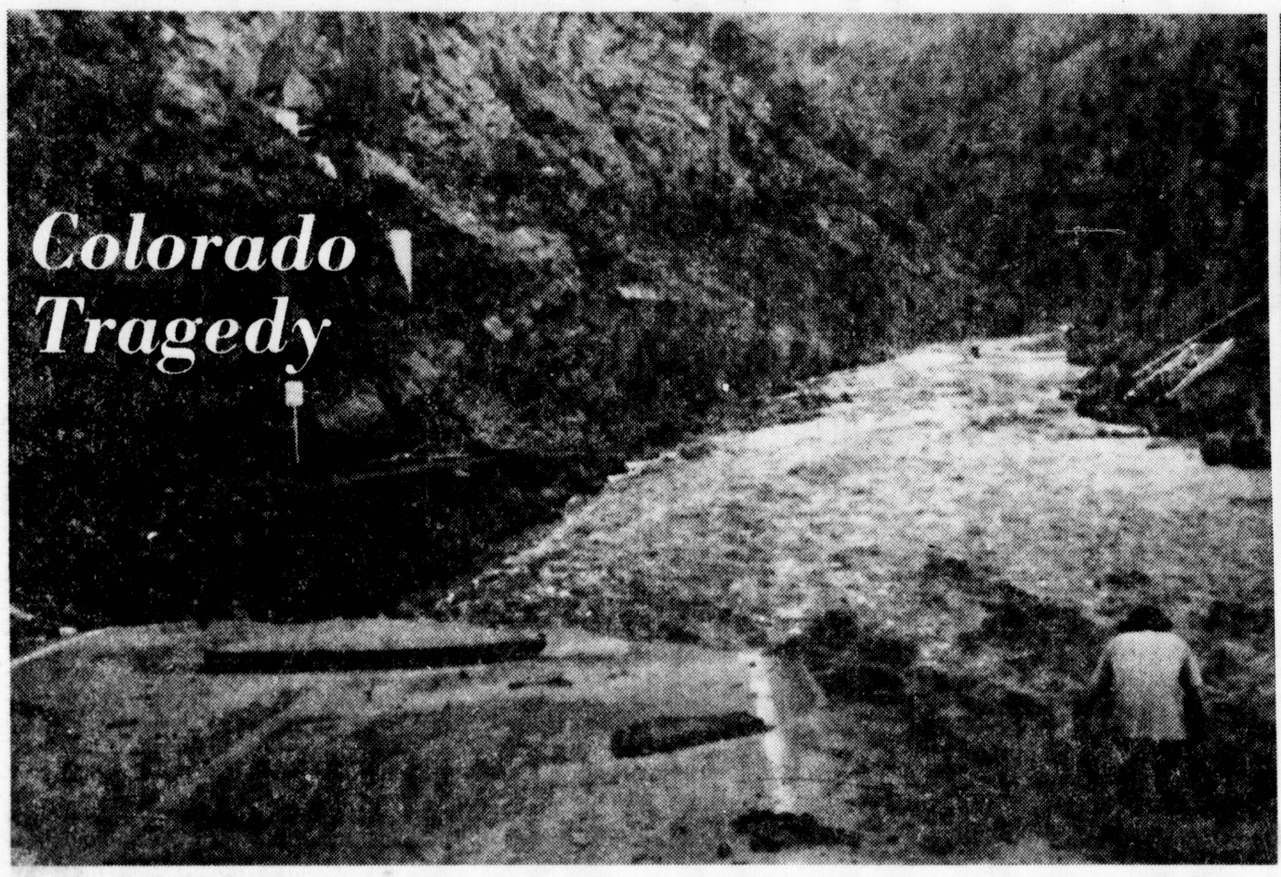

On the Republican side, Congressman Marvin Esch of Ann Arbor has been tagged the leader in a close field. Esch, 48, is a low-key moderate; a 10-year Congressional veteran who has directed his campaign against bureaucratic inefficiency. GOP maverick Thomas Brennan, 47, a former Supreme Court chief justice and now dean of Lansing's Cooley Law School, has stressed adherence to the constitution and traditional home-family values.

The most conservative Republican candidate is Robert Huber of Troy, a former congressman and a Senate candidate in 1970, when he nearly beat Lenore Romney for the nomination. Huber, 53, maintains a small but staunch core of conservative support.

University of Michigan Regent Deane Baker, 51, spent much of his campaign bicycling around the state in an effort to drum up support, but polls have placed him at the rear of the GOP race. He called for Austin's resignation as Secretary of State and demands that he withdraw as a Senate candidate because of the controversy over campaign contributions by Austin's political appointees.

Austin said flatly he will not resign as Secretary of State and will not withdraw from the Senate campaign. All 19 of the state's Congressional seats also are up for grabs, as are the 110 Michigan House seats, along with numerous local contests.

Congressional races will be watched closely in the 2nd, 4th, 7th and 12th districts, where incumbents are out. The hottest battle could be in the 12th, where state Sen. John Bowman of Roseville and state Rep. David Bonior of Mount Clemens face off in the Democratic primary.

Flooded River Becomes Killer

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — Survivors of a weekend flash flood huddled on mountainsides and in isolated homes today as rains and winds forced a delay in air rescue attempts. Officials said the flood killed about 60 persons, and they said "dozens" more bodies may be found.

Authorities said recovery of the dead from the Big Thompson River flood, reported strewn along the walls of the Big Thompson Canyon, was their last priority. Dave Feldman, chief of investigative services for police in nearby Fort Collins, said it could take weeks to locate the dead, and some never may be found.

Nearly 150 National Guardsmen, law enforcement officers and volunteers waited for orders as search leaders mapped their strategy.

Helicopters were to be used today to ferry the survivors, many of whom were trapped on inaccessable patches of high ground, to safety. But the rain that began again Sunday night continued today, grounding air rescue equipment.

"Helicopters will be grounded until they can get in, perhaps by noon," said John Englebert, chief of operations for the Larimer County Sheriff's Department. "We've got steady rains into Estes Park and some winds."

There was no immediate estimate on the number stranded. Gov. Richard Lamm, in asking President Ford for disaster assistance, said 250 persons were reported injured and another 40 missing.

On Saturday night, a 10-inch rainfall running down from nearby Rocky Mountain National Park churned the Big Thompson River into a wall of water 12 feet high and sent it on a 15-minute frenzy.

It tore through campsites and trailers, motels and bridges, raking a path of destruction 30 miles long. There were varying reports about whether warning was given; everyone agreed there wasn't much.

Some 500 survivors were ferried to a horse pasture-turned-helicopter pad on Sunday. Another 1,000 had to stay amid the devastation for a second night.

Officials flew over the canyon, dropping leaflets that asked survivors to signal their immediate needs: blankets stretched on the ground in the

Buchanan Nurse Injured In Fall

BUCHANAN — A nurse found unconscious in a hallway at Unity hospital, Buchanan, Saturday morning was listed in critical condition today at Pawating hospital, here.

Berrien county sheriff's deputies from the Galien substation said Judith Wenger, 28, Apt. 13, 603 West Fourth street, Buchanan, suffered a skull fracture when she fell and struck her head. Deputies said they are continuing to investigate the circumstances surrounding the fall.

A Unity spokesman said Miss Wenger is a licensed practical nurse and employed by the Buchanan hospital.

In This Case It's Woman Who Pays

Turning a trick—a means of earning a living by women in the oldest profession—got turned turned around over the weekend, according to Benton township police. Police said a woman said she met a man in a township bar. Police said the woman reported having sex with the man in his van. He then reportedly asked the woman for $25 for his services. Police said the man drove the woman to her Benton township home and she went inside for the money. He then drove away—with her purse and clothes, but without payment, police said. Police said the woman went into her home, without clothes. She was not arrested, police said. The report was received at 2:53 a.m. Saturday.

'Pot' Fight Won By Sen. Brown

CHARLOTTE, Mich. (AP) — State Sen. Basil Brown has won his fight to suppress evidence in a marijuana possession case.

District Court Judge Kenneth Hansen granted Brown's request that he not permit as evidence police charges that a small amount of marijuana was found in Brown's car in January 1975, Hansen's office said today.

Brown, D-Highland Park and the longest-serving member in the Senate, was stopped in 1975 by an Eaton County deputy who said Brown's car was being driven erratically.

Brown, an attorney and chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, argued the search was illegal, but entered a no contest plea when those arguments failed to suppress the evidence.

He withdrew his no contest plea last month after a Court of Appeals decision said the odor of marijuana alone is not grounds for searching a vehicle, and renewed his motion that the evidence be suppressed.

Hansen could not be reached to determine what will happen now to Brown's case. Brown also could not be reached.

Last month The Herald-Palladium endorsed Dave Stockman for the Republican nomination for Fourth District Congressman.

Recently, a couple of the three other campaigners in the GOP contest have accused Stockman of "too liberal" views in past years.

Anonymous sources have circulated literature charging Dave Stockman didn't support the Vietnam War when Stockman was a student at Michigan State University, for example.

We say that's a boost, not a knock. We wish we'd been smart enough at an earlier stage to understand the duplicity in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations that got the U.S. involved where it never should have been.

Dave Stockman is only 29. He's already had years of experience in Congress as executive director of the House Republican Conference. With that kind of background, and with the kind of brains it took to analyze the Vietnam War for what it was, think how bright and effective Stockman can become with a couple of terms in Congress under his belt.

By any comparison, he's a standout among the four candidates for the GOP nomination in tomorrow's primary.

Miss Helen Take of St. Joseph is a pretty, pleasant young woman with no political experience and nothing of a business or professional background to indicate she's prepared for the important job of U.S. representative.

David S. Frazer of Benton Harbor, an industrial salesman, appears bright, friendly and honest. But he came into the race at the 11th hour and really hasn't carried enough water to the Republican elephant to expect the party now to make him mahout.

Lee Boothby of Berrien Springs is a perennial candidate for office whose political views are unreallistically right wing, and whose perception of human needs is, unfortunately, some times not much more acute than George Custer's understanding of Sitting Bull's troop strength.

Dave Stockman is an intelligent young man, poised beyond his years, who has been actively engaged in the great debates stirring his generation. Any parent who has kids in the same generation as Dave knows what turmoil has been going on — and is proud, indeed, if his or her children has handled the problems of the day with as much self control and insight as young Stockman.

Even more important than Stockman's being a thinker, however, is the fact that he's a doer. His campaign organization itself, as well as his rapid promotion within the National GOP apparatus, demonstrate he gets things done.

That means putting the federal government to work for the folks and institutions of our Fourth District. And that's what we need in Congress.

Dave Stockman's got a real chance of giving the district a go-get-em Congressman with real clout on both Capitol Hill and the White House.

We urge everyone to do the Fourth District a favor by nominating him for the job tomorrow.

Arson A Major Problem

Where ther's smoke, there's fire — which very well may have been set deliberately. Arson, difficult to detect and profitable as well, has become a major problem in cities all across the country. According to the Insurance Information Institute, property losses from arson exceeded $1.4-billion in 1975, as compared with $845-million only two years earlier.

Arson has been described as the least prosecuted or investigated felony. "Police and fire departments are often at odds as to whose job it is to pursue arsonists," Business Week observed, "and beyond that, they are sometimes inadequately staffed and trained to detect arson." Moreover, most district attorneys don't like to bring charges because the conviction rate is low, and insurance companies are reluctant to question claims because they fear massive suits for punitive damages if they turn down a legitimate claim.

Small wonder, then, that a new breed of professional "torch" has come into being. Rarely if ever will this type of arsonist use gasoline or some other kind of flammable liquid. Some arsonists, Douglas Martin wrote in the Wall Street Journal, "mix in ordinary envelopes difficult-to-detect chemicals that flare up long after the arsonist has left the scene."

The problem of determining whether a fire was deliberately set has a built-in catch. Firefighters try to put out fires as fast as they possibly can, before more lives and property are lost. But in doing this, they often destroy evidence of arson.

Even when physical evidence of arson is lacking, tell-tale clues often are present. One signal that makes investigators suspect arson is a recent and large increase in the claimant's insurance coverage. Another is a recent change in insurance companies. If a company gets a reputation as being hard on dubious claims, policyholders are apt to decide it is safer to switch than fight.

When an insurer does fight a claim, civil action for fraud usually is the chosen course. Fraud is more easier to prove than criminal arson, for the rules of evidence are looser in civil cases and circumstantial evidence carries greater weight. To prove fraud, the company does not have to provide physical evidence of arson. It merely must show that the insured claimed more loss than he or she actually suffered.

Despite the huge dollar losses involved, arson does not arouse the feelings of dread and concern that many other types of crime do. Possibly because it is so hard to prove, it is not included in the FBI's index of major crimes. The fact that fire losses usually are fully covered by insurance tends to soften the pain. And most people, it has been suggested, actually enjoy a good fire, provided their own lives and property are not involved.

The number of fires that are deliberately set would decrease if the profit motive were removed, but arson would continue to be a problem. Pyromania was commonplace long before fire insurance became widely available, and it still accounts for an unknown number of fires of suspicious origin. The pyromaniac is driven to set fires for reasons he or she does not fully understand. In some cases, the act seems to be connected to the person's sexual troubles. For individuals, the flame of love and the fire of passion are metaphors to be taken quite literally.

GOP Front-Runner Esch Promises Tax Credit Bill

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Congressman Marvin Esch of Ann Arbor says he will introduce legislation creating tax credits of up to $250 for persons who pay for post-high school education.

Esch is the Republican frontrunner in Tuesday's U.S. Senate primary election.

He said his bill would particularly help middle income families "though it is obviously not as large a support as what we'd like." But persons from all income brackets would be eligible for the tax credit.

A similar measure introduced in the Senate by Sen. William Roth of Delaware was incorporated into the tax reform bill now being debated on the Senate floor.

Another Senate candidate, dark-horse Democrat James Elsman, showed up at Esch's news conference last week and said he would pursue a lawsuit filed against Secretary of State Richard Austin no matter what happens in voting Tuesday.

It was Elsman's howls about the secretary of state patronage system that pressured Austin several weeks ago to refuse any more contributions from branch managers to his own Democratic Senate campaign.

The lawsuit filed by the Birmigham attorney is over the branch manager patronage system. Elsman said last week he would likely drop the lawsuit if Austin ordered all 95 branch managers' jobs converted to the civil service system.

Minor Parties Get Section On Ballot

All primary ballots in tomorrow's election will have a section reserved for five lesser known political parties trying to qualify their candidates to be placed on the November general election ballot.

Primary voters who don't like either the Republican or Democratic choices can cast a single vote for all the candidates from any one of the five other parties.

Those parties are the Socialist Workers party, the Socialist Labor party, the Communist Labor party, the United States Labor party, and the Libertarian party.

Each of those parties must receive a statewide vote of at least three-tenths of one per cent of those who appear at the polls in the primary to qualify for placement on the November general election ballot. Primary voters may vote for only one of the five lesser parties, and those who do cannot cross party lines and vote for Republican or Democratic candidates, too.

Two other small parties already have received a spot on the upcoming November ballot because of votes they received in the 1974 election. They are the Human Rights party and the American Independent party.

Do You REMEMBER?

South Haven — The machinery for general rehabilitation of South Haven's obsolescent north side resort facilities was set in motion by city aldermen last night. The council voted to agree by resolution to vacate the west end of Dyckman avenue as the city's contribution to area resort owner Ben Teitel's proposed $1,000,000 resort development.

— 25 Years Ago —

Laying of the cornerstone of Berrien county's new million dollar jail will take place Monday afternoon, August 13. The announcement was made today by Supervisor Marion A. Rutherford, chairman of the special building committee in charge of the biggest construction project the county has undertaken in many years.

Baroda — Baroda is preparing for her 1926 homecoming. It will be the biggest and best affair ever staged, said prominent Exchangites backing the enterprise yearly, when speaking of the attractions being scheduled for the event. Aug. 16 to 25 are the dates. Letters from homecomers, who make an annual pilgrimage back to the old home town every summer, indicate an attendance topping other seasons, when a daily record of 3,000 is generally totalled.

— 75 Years Ago —

Five years ago Henry D. Deam came from Chicago to Benton Harbor and mapped out the program of building the famous tunnel road, which at various times was known by different names. It is best remembered as the Benton Harbor & Eastern. The chief feature of the road which made it prominent throughout the state was the fact that the plans called for a $80,000 tunnel which was to extend a half-mile under the city. The man who was to furnish the capital died before the preliminaries were fairly under way. New members were added to the company and the whole thing ended, it was thought forever, in a quarrel among the stockholders. This week the plan has been revived. Mr. Deam, who is known to have no money of his own, is paying out liberal sums for right of way between Benton Harbor and Sister Lakes. He is out with a team every day accompanied by Attorney A.P. Cady and M.W. Jennings, men who would not mix in the matter were it not sufficiently backed by capital.

This Garden Needs Weeding

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter, Jerry Ford and Ronald Reagan agree on at least one thing: the next president must reform the bureaucracy; 'Beadledom' must go. The government's garden needs weeding. As a start each candidate has pledged to rid the official ranks of incompetents, purge the arrogant ne'r do wells, and — listen up now — "restore efficiency and responsiveness and a sense of caring" in public servants all across this glorious land.

Well, lots of luck. Two hundred years ago the patriots fought a war, in part, to rid America of the "swarms of officers" (bureaucrats) who were feeding on the people's substance. In this respect, the war was lost. Government has grown to the point where the swarms account for one of every six jobs in the nation, or one of every four new jobs in the last decade, and coming to grips with it, as John Kennedy said, is "like fighting a feather bed."

One reason for this is that while government employment is large, it is also secured to the deepest root in the history of labor. Genuine bureaucratic reform would necessitate cutting the root, and that would not only be difficult, it might be impossible. When Richard Nixon tried to effect a modest reduction in force, as example, the root held, and he eventually conceded the inevitable: "We never fire anybody, we never reprimand anybody, we never demote anybody." Thus, like roaches, public servants don't disappear, they multiply.

This truth is at the heart of perhaps the most difficult problem in government administration today. Gov. James Edwards of South Carolina puts it plainly enough: "Bosses aren't bosses anymore." What he means is that government workers are so tightly protected by civil service, and in some cases unionization as well, neither a governor nor a president has absolute authority over the jobs.

In many respects the protection is justified. Civil service began in the country as a means of protecting government workers from political vagaries and the eccentricities of powerful nincompoops. Yet Edwards says, "The pendulum has swung too far the other way." Wrong as well as right is being protected. Inefficiency is rewarded. At the recent National Governors' Conference in Pennsylvania, every executive asked agreed with Richard Lamm of Colorado that civil service is now "the greatest of all roadblocks to effective government."

As the governors see it, the roadblock is this: since competition is the mother of facility, we destroy it only at our peril. Hence government service has become the final resting place for, without exaggeration, millions of tenured zombies who lack the stimulation to hustle. We've all seen them: crusty, careless, overbearing. Ken Fobes, an assistant to the governor of Oregon, says the best description for many bureaucrats is that "they retire on the job."

Statistically, it is not quite true that the worst bureaucrats can't be fired. Between 16 and 25,000 federal workers are dismissed each year. But the procedure is usually complicated. In most states even street cleaners have grievance procedures that can take a year or more to resolve. In the end there may be a court fight, anyway. The governor of Idaho, Cecil Andrus, says he once had to spend $100,000 in legal fees to get rid of one objectionable but tenured college professor.

As for hope from the candidates? Unlikely. Presidents come and go, but the only change in the bureaucracy is that its odor gets worse.

Troopers Grab Two Hitchhikers

NEW BUFFALO — State police here said they arrested two hitchhikers on I-94 yesterday morning on auto theft charges after a stolen car was found crashed and abandoned about one-half mile north of the US-12 intersection.

The two were identified as Ramon Gonzalez, 34, and Marcello Rivera, 22, both of Chicago. Officers said the two were charged with unlawfully driving away an automobile.

Officers said the hitchhikers were arrested about 7:20 a.m., shortly after two men abandoned a crashed car that had been reported stolen earlier yesterday in Chicago. There were no injuries in the crash, officers said.

Marianne Means

The President Of The Minority

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter became the Democratic presidential nominee on the basis of the primary votes of only 6.2 million persons.

Similarly, either President Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan will shortly become the Republican nominee on the basis of considerably less than 5 million primary votes apiece.

Those are depressing statistics, for they indicate how painfully few persons in a nation with a voting age population of nearly 140 million bothered to participate in the pre-convention political process this year.

Only 43.8 per cent of eligible registered voters turned out for the presidential preference primaries, slightly more than the 42.6 per cent turnout in 1972. Because there were so many Democratic candidates in the field, Carter was able to win handily with only 39 per cent of the total Democratic primary votes cast. Ford and Reagan have split the Republican primary votes 49 per cent to 50.5 per cent, respectively.

In the caucus states, the turnout was much poorer, even though new Democratic Party rules provided for mass delegate selection sessions and a much more open process than in the past. The best turnout rate in a caucus state was 19 per cent in Connecticut, less than half the average turnout rate in primary states.

The result of such indifference is that more than half of the nation's eligible voters will be faced with a choice between two men in the fall whom they played no role in helping to select for the contest and both of whom they may therefore dislike or resent.

Voter turnout is traditionally higher for the general election tries, but hardly something to shout about.

It has been falling steadily since 1960, when 63 per cent of the voting age population chose John Kennedy over Richard Nixon. In 1972, a year of emotional social issues and heated Vietnam rhetoric, only 55.7 per cent participated.

Some experts believe that apathy and frustration have grown greatly since then, fueled by White House corruption and an inability of Washington to straighten out the economy, and that the voter turnout this year may be much lower than 1972. Whether that is true may depend upon how sharply Carter and his GOP opponent define the issues and whether they can restore a sense of credibility to the process.

Widespread voter apathy tends to hurt Democrats, who rely heavily on young people, blacks, low-income families and blue-collar workers more than the Republicans, whose affluent and motivated suburban voters are more likely to vote anyway. Thus the Democratic National Committee's principal chore in the Carter campaign will be to mount a massive voter registration drive.

Nurses Reject Pact

DETROIT (AP) — Registered Red Cross nurses have rejected a final contract offer from the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross. The nurses, who collect blood for hospitals in five southeatern Michigan counties, also voted Sunday to extend their strike deadline until midnight Tuesday. The 85 nurses, members of the Michigan Nurse Association, had originally threatened to walk off the job early this morning. A spokeswoman said the nurses had agreed to postpone the walkout to give a federal mediator a chance to settle outstanding contract issues, including economic and grievance proposals.

LIGHT VOTER TURNOUT IS SEEN

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

State officials are predicting a low voter turnout for Tuesday's primary, even though eight candidates are battling it out for the U.S. Senate nomination. Bernard Apol, state elections director, said a turnout of 25 to 27 per cent of the state's 4.9 million registered voters "would be doing good."

Major interest in southwestern Michigan has centered on a four-way race for the Republican nomination for Fourth District Congressman involving Atty. Lee Boothby, David S. Frazer, David Stockman and Helen Take. The winner will face Richard "Mike" Daugherty, the unopposed Democratic candidate, in the November general election for the right to succeed retiring Rep. Edward Hutchinson (R-St. Joseph).

The lackluster Senate fight has four Democrats and four Republicans fighting for the chance to succeed retiring Democratic Sen. Philip Hart. So far, neither issues nor personality have won for any of them the broad allegiance Hart commanded during 18 years in Washington. The biggest campaign battle to date has centered not on national issues, but on Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin's perpetuation of a decades-old branch manager patronage system.

Austin's Democratic opponents, led by admitted underdog James Elsman, have accused the 63-year-old Austin of coercing branch managers, who he appointed, to contribute to his campaign. Austin — who would be the first black Democratic Senator if elected — has pledged to end the patronage system, and said he would accept no further campaign contributions from the branch managers.

Trying to overtake Austin, and occasionally taking verbal potshots at each other, are 38-year-old Congressman Donald Riegle of Flint and 53-year-old Congressman James O'Hara of Utica. Riegle has been cultivating his image as a dynamic, outspoken liberal, while O'Hara prides himself on working behind the scenes and will rely heavily on strong, organized union support. Riegle showed up second in the polls behind Austin. O'Hara has dismissed election polls as useless. Riegle, however, has raised more money than any of the candidates — $270,000 at last count and headed for the $300,000 mark.

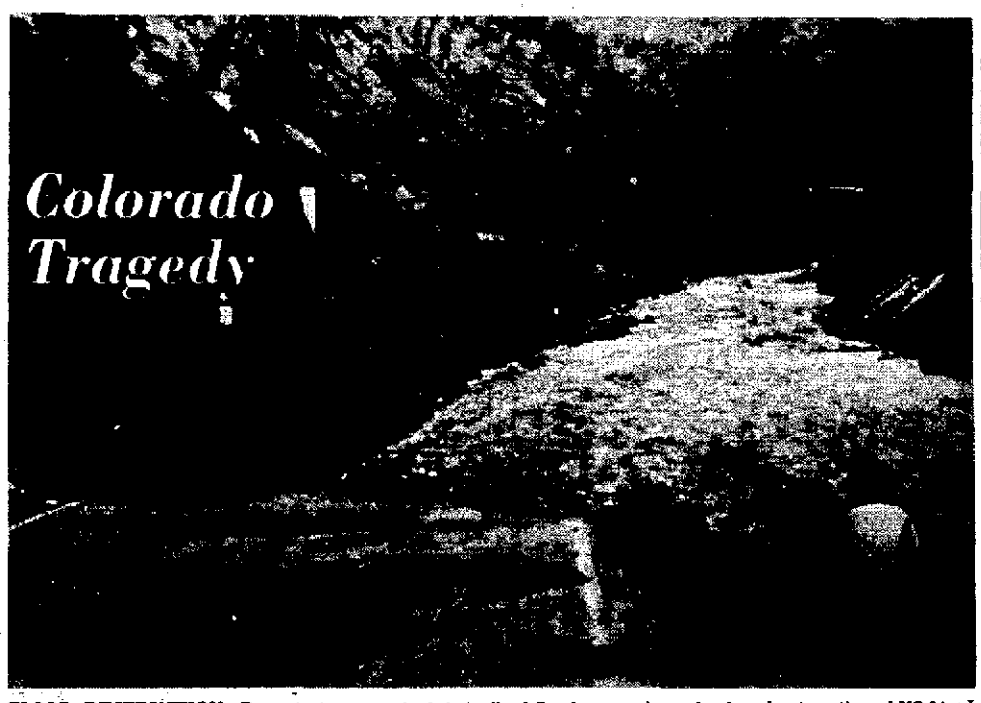

On the Republican side, Congressman Marvin Esch of Ann Arbor has been tagged the leader in a close field. Esch, 48, is a low-key moderate; a 10-year Congressional veteran who has directed his campaign against bureaucratic inefficiency. GOP maverick Thomas Brennan, 47, a former Supreme Court chief justice and now dean of Lansing's Cooley Law School, has stressed adherence to the constitution and traditional home-family values.

The most conservative Republican candidate is Robert Huber of Troy, a former congressman and a Senate candidate in 1970, when he nearly beat Lenore Romney for the nomination. Huber, 53, maintains a small but staunch core of conservative support.

University of Michigan Regent Deane Baker, 51, spent much of his campaign bicycling around the state in an effort to drum up support, but polls have placed him at the rear of the GOP race. He called for Austin's resignation as Secretary of State and demands that he withdraw as a Senate candidate because of the controversy over campaign contributions by Austin's political appointees.

Austin said flatly he will not resign as Secretary of State and will not withdraw from the Senate campaign. All 19 of the state's Congressional seats also are up for grabs, as are the 110 Michigan House seats, along with numerous local contests.

Congressional races will be watched closely in the 2nd, 4th, 7th and 12th districts, where incumbents are out. The hottest battle could be in the 12th, where state Sen. John Bowman of Roseville and state Rep. David Bonior of Mount Clemens face off in the Democratic primary.

Flooded River Becomes Killer

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — Survivors of a weekend flash flood huddled on mountainsides and in isolated homes today as rains and winds forced a delay in air rescue attempts. Officials said the flood killed about 60 persons, and they said "dozens" more bodies may be found.

Authorities said recovery of the dead from the Big Thompson River flood, reported strewn along the walls of the Big Thompson Canyon, was their last priority. Dave Feldman, chief of investigative services for police in nearby Fort Collins, said it could take weeks to locate the dead, and some never may be found.

Nearly 150 National Guardsmen, law enforcement officers and volunteers waited for orders as search leaders mapped their strategy.

Helicopters were to be used today to ferry the survivors, many of whom were trapped on inaccessable patches of high ground, to safety. But the rain that began again Sunday night continued today, grounding air rescue equipment.

"Helicopters will be grounded until they can get in, perhaps by noon," said John Englebert, chief of operations for the Larimer County Sheriff's Department. "We've got steady rains into Estes Park and some winds."

There was no immediate estimate on the number stranded. Gov. Richard Lamm, in asking President Ford for disaster assistance, said 250 persons were reported injured and another 40 missing.

On Saturday night, a 10-inch rainfall running down from nearby Rocky Mountain National Park churned the Big Thompson River into a wall of water 12 feet high and sent it on a 15-minute frenzy.

It tore through campsites and trailers, motels and bridges, raking a path of destruction 30 miles long. There were varying reports about whether warning was given; everyone agreed there wasn't much.

Some 500 survivors were ferried to a horse pasture-turned-helicopter pad on Sunday. Another 1,000 had to stay amid the devastation for a second night.

Officials flew over the canyon, dropping leaflets that asked survivors to signal their immediate needs: blankets stretched on the ground in the

Buchanan Nurse Injured In Fall

Berrien county sheriff's deputies from the Galien substation said Judith Wenger, 28, Apt. 13, 603 West Fourth street, Buchanan, suffered a skull fracture when she fell and struck her head. Deputies said they are continuing to investigate the circumstances surrounding the fall.

A Unity spokesman said Miss Wenger is a licensed practical nurse and employed by the Buchanan hospital.

In This Case It's Woman Who Pays

By RALPH LUTZ

Turning a trick—a means of earning a living by women in the oldest profession—got turned turned around over the weekend, according to Benton township police. Police said a woman said she met a man in a township bar. Police said the woman reported having sex with the man in his van. He then reportedly asked the woman for $25 for his services. Police said the man drove the woman to her Benton township home and she went inside for the money. He then drove away—with her purse and clothes, but without payment, police said. Police said the woman went into her home, without clothes. She was not arrested, police said. The report was received at 2:53 a.m. Saturday.

'Pot' Fight Won By Sen. Brown

CHARLOTTE, Mich. (AP) — State Sen. Basil Brown has won his fight to suppress evidence in a marijuana possession case.

District Court Judge Kenneth Hansen granted Brown's request that he not permit as evidence police charges that a small amount of marijuana was found in Brown's car in January 1975, Hansen's office said today.

Brown, D-Highland Park and the longest-serving member in the Senate, was stopped in 1975 by an Eaton County deputy who said Brown's car was being driven erratically.

Brown, an attorney and chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, argued the search was illegal, but entered a no contest plea when those arguments failed to suppress the evidence.

He withdrew his no contest plea last month after a Court of Appeals decision said the odor of marijuana alone is not grounds for searching a vehicle, and renewed his motion that the evidence be suppressed.

Hansen could not be reached to determine what will happen now to Brown's case. Brown also could not be reached.

BH To Vote On Commission Seats, Recall

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Benton Harbor voters tomorrow will ballot on four vacant city commission seats along with the nominations in the regular primary election.

The city commission election is a special vote created by the recall May 18 of Charles F. Joseph as mayor and three other city commissioners.

The special election in Benton Harbor was scheduled for tomorrow because it coincides with the the state primary. At stake in the city are the office of mayor, one commissioner-at-large, Second and Third Ward commissioners.

The city election is nonpartisan and amounts to a general election for the four seats that were vacated by recall. The winners of the special election will be sworn into office after the board of canvassers reports official vote totals.

The state primary nominates candidates for the general election in November.

Also on the ballot in Benton Harbor tomorrow is a recall proposition on the seat of City Commissioner-at-large Helen Ford, who was appointed to the post last Februrary by a majority of the commission. This ballot issue determines whether Mrs. Ford shall remain or be removed from office. She is an ally of Joseph and the three other commissioners ousted in May.

Mayor — Donald Finley, 36, of 132 Robbins avenue; Ralph Lhotka, 57, of 444 Division street; and Joel Patterson, 34, of 258 Eat Empire avenue. The term expires December, 1979.

Commissioner-at-large — Winston Minott, 53, of 980 Bishop avenue; and Norval Weiss, 61, of 878 Pearl street. Minott was was recalled May 18 as Third Ward commissioner. Term expires December, 1979.

Third Ward commissioner — Michael Govatos, 65, of 1093 Superior street; and Nathaniel Robinson, 35, of 1259 Bishop avenue. Term expires December, 1977.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the city's regular 10 polling places.

Bike Brake Trouble Planted Big Idea

By STEVE SAGER
Staff Writer

At the time, little did George H. Morgan realize the trouble he was having putting a bicycle brake back together while in the eighth grade would some day pay off in more than aggravation.

Morgan, 41, an engineer and marketing manager of the brake division of Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co. (Ausco), St. Joseph, credits recalling that difficult time for helping him come up with an idea for a new emergency and safety brake for hydraulically driven machinery.

The new brake, called the FailSafe, is presently being manufactured at Ausco's St. Joseph and Hartford divisions and appears to be a success for the company. Morgan called the brake a "revolutionary idea" in the field.

Although the original idea for the brake was Morgan's, he is listed as co-inventor of the brake on the patent and gives equal credit to Charles A. Kreitner, 58, a design engineer at Ausco.

Morgan said the brake is used on machinery such as foundry equipment, front-end loaders, construction and mining machinery and special agricultural equipment. The brake is automatically applied with the loss of hydraulic pressure to provide the emergency braking function.

Morgan said the brake is a simple pre-engineered package that bolts between the hydraulic motor and the gear box of the machinery with a very low installation cost. "In other words it does its thing simpler than any other similar type brake," he said.

He further described it as "a glorified bicycle brake expanded with some aircraft brake thrown in." Kreitner added, "As they say, it's much harder to make something simpler than more complicated."

Inventing the brake and getting it into production, which began in 1973, was only half the problem the two men faced.

According to Morgan, the next step was a selling job, not only to sell the brake, but the system in which the brake could be used. He said the brake only works on hydraulically-powered machinery as opposed to mechanically driven machinery.

At the time of the invention most machines were mechanically driven. Presently more and more machinery is being operated by the hydraulic system.

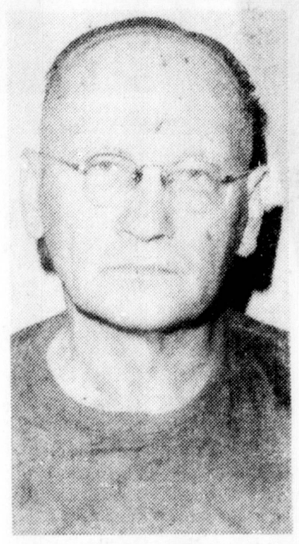

For the past three years, Morgan estimated he put in 60-80 hour work weeks with much of that time being spent on the sales end of the project. During this time Kreitner was continually working on improving the brake.

Morgan said, "There isn't enough money in the world to go through what we went through in the last three years." He said his motivation was simply knowing he was making a contribution to society in the form of a piece of safety equipment.

Morgan, of South Bend, holds bachelor ot science and master's degrees in mechanical engineering. Kreitner, a Benton Harbor native, is a Benton Harbor high school graduate and holds no college degrees.

The invention was the first they had developed together, but each has had other inventions of his own. Kreitner, a bachelor, is presently recuperating at his home at 610 Niles avenue, Benton Harbor, after open heart surgery in June. He said he expects to be back at work this month.

Morgan concluded, "It's (the invention) not a bad job for a couple of over-the-hill engineers." Morgan and his wife, Janis, have six children.

Gregory Prince's Father Urges Son Be Committed

BY NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

The father of Gregory Prince has filed a petition asking Berrien county Probate court to commit his son to a mental institution. Gregory Prince, 27, is accused of murder in the death of his wife whose body was found in a chimney in September, 1974.

Probate Judge Ronald Lange said this morning that a petition was filed in his court Friday asking for the committment of Gregory Prince. Filing the petition was Richard C. Prince, who, according to Lange, is the father of th accused man.

Prince was arrested last month and charged with murder in his wife, Linda. Gregory Prince reported to police in June of 1974 that his 22-year-old wife had disappeared from their home at 4328 Ridge road, Lincoln township. Mrs. Prince's body was found more than two months later stuffed inside the chimny at the Lincoln township home of Emil Tosi famed restaurateur.

According to Asst. Prosecutor John Sullivan the petition filed Friday "asks that (Gregory) Prince be admitted to a state hospital for treatment as a mentally ill person." Lange pointed out that the case is a civil matter.

The filing of the petition caused the Berrien District court preliminary examination for Gregory Prince to be adjourned this morning.

Sullivan said that two psychiatrists examined Gregory Prince over the weekend. Results of the examinations will be told to Probate court at a hearing on Wednesday. At that hearing Gregory Prince will be told that he's entitled to a jury trial on the petition to commit him. And he is allowed to have his own psychiatrist conduct an examination, Sullivan added.

Prosecutor John Smietanka said commitment to a mental institution would mean that the murder charge could be dismissed without prejudice (meaning it could be re-instated) or the charge could be held in abeyance, pending Prince's release from the institution.

Twin Cities Pops Orchestra Slates Tuesday Concert In SJ

The Twin Cities Pops Orchestra will present the first of two concerts Tuesday at the bandshell in St. Joseph. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. Lawrence Zychowicz, music director of Watervliet public schools, will be conductor. Highlights of this Tuesday's concert will be excerpts from three Broadway musicals: "King and I" by Rodgers and Hammerstein, "Camelot" and "My Fair Lady" both by Lerner and Lowe. Other selections include "Overture from Rosamunde" by Schubert, "Rackozy March" by Berlioz, and Jerome Kern's "Look for the Silver Lining". Concerts are made possible by a grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund of the recording industries with the cooperation of Twin City Local 232, American Federation of Musicians. Concerts are open to the public.

Baptist Ministers' Group Endorses Joel Patterson

The Southwest Michigan Baptist Ministerial Alliance has endorsed Joel Patterson for mayor of Benton Harbor and three candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for Benton township offices. Announcement of the endorsement was made by Rev. Robert L. DeFrance on behalf of Rev. Elbert Brown, president of the alliance.

Patterson is one of three candidates seeking the Benton Harbor mayor's seat vacated by the May 18 recall of Charles F. Joseph. The office will be filled Tuesday in a special city election that coincides with the regular statewide primary in which candidates are nominated for the November general election.

Endorsed by the ministerial alliance in their bids for the Democratic nomination in Benton township are Nora Jefferson for trustee, Cecilia Burke for clerk and Willie Askew for treasurer.

BELLAIRE, MI. — Eugene R. Fetters Jr., Sanitary Cleaners, St. Joseph, was elected area director of the Michigan Institute of Laundering and Drycleaning at its annual convention held at Shanty Creek lodge, here, over the weekend, according to Michael R. O'Neill, managing director.

Benton Patrolman's Newspaper Starts 'Lost And Found' Story

A Benton township patrolman, who read about the theft of a farm tractor and trailer in The Herald-Palladium Friday while on vacation, returned to duty Sunday, found the stolen vehicles and returned them to their owner. Patrolman James Windsor said he began checking some "likely" locations after reading of the theft and found the flatbed trailer behind a warehouse on Crystal avenue. He said he followed tractor tracks into a field and located the tractor about a mile and a half from the warehouse. He said the tractor was overturned, but only sustained a dented fender. The tractor and trailer were returned to owner James Crow, City of David, Box 187, Britain avenue, but 30 to 40 10-gallon pails that were on the trailer were not located, Windsor said.

BICENTENNIAL FENCE: Omel (Curley) Keith, 70, of 542 Campbell street, Benton township, wanted to do "something lasting" in honor of nation's 200th birthday so he built brick fence in front of his house and painted it red, white and blue. Keith said he worked on 60-foot long fence for more than month and a half and used some 1,100 bricks. He is manager of American Legion Post 105, Benton Harbor. (Staff photo)

Shooting Stars Will Cut Path Across August Skies

ANN ARBOR — August evenings will be enlivened by the Perseids, the most conspicuous and dependable of the annual meteor showers.

So says University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh, who adds that while the "shooting stars" will be blazing across the night skies for two or three weeks, peak activity will occur around Aug. 10-12.

"During the peak period as many as one 'falling star' per minute may be observed," she says. "A flashing Perseid meteor appearing as bright as the North Star is probably no bigger than the head of a pin or a grain of sand."

The U-M astronomy professor explains the shooting stars are really tiny bits of iron and stone that enter earth's atmosphere at high speeds. The enormous heat generated by the friction of this contact turns the particles into brilliant flares.

"The best time to look for Perseids is after midnight, when we are riding on the forward side of the globe and thus are meeting the particles head-on," she says.

Prof. Losh says the Perseids are so named because they appear to emanate from the northeast in the constellation Perseus. The meteors seem to fly in all directions from this radiant point.

Because of a greater relative velocity, meteors encountered in the morning hours are likely to burn brighter and bluer, she says.

"Today it is believed that comets and meteors are related," she says. "While the origin of comets is unknown, it is because they exist that we have meteors. The Perseids are thought to be the debris from Comet 1862 III."

Shaped like a giant letter "K," the constellation Perseus also boasts a most interesting eclipsing binary known as Algol, the Demon.

"Algol is composed of two revolving components, one bright, the other dark," Prof. Losh says. "When the dark one passes in front of the brighter, the Demon seems to disappear."

On the southern horizon, she continues, is found Capricornus, the Sea Goat.

"This figure does not look a bit like a goat, but rather resembles a cocked hat resting on its crown," she says. "On a clear, moonless night one can trace its outline, the two prominent stars in the upper right corner of the hat serving as a guide."

Planets of August include Venus, emerging in the western sky shortly after sunset. Mars may also be seen near the west for a short while after sunset.

On the evenings of Aug. 26 and 27, Mars will be slightly east of Venus, and the two planets will also be joined by the crescent moon. Rising around 1:30 a.m., Jupiter, very bright, may be found high above the eastern horizon. On the morning of the 18th it will be only one degree north of the quarter moon, forming a lovely configuration, she said. By month's end, Saturn will be rising slightly north of east about an hour before the sun. On the 23rd it will be about six degrees north of the waning moon.

Recently, a couple of the three other campaigners in the GOP contest have accused Stockman of "too liberal" views in past years.

Anonymous sources have circulated literature charging Dave Stockman didn't support the Vietnam War when Stockman was a student at Michigan State University, for example.

We say that's a boost, not a knock. We wish we'd been smart enough at an earlier stage to understand the duplicity in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations that got the U.S. involved where it never should have been.

Dave Stockman is only 29. He's already had years of experience in Congress as executive director of the House Republican Conference. With that kind of background, and with the kind of brains it took to analyze the Vietnam War for what it was, think how bright and effective Stockman can become with a couple of terms in Congress under his belt.

By any comparison, he's a standout among the four candidates for the GOP nomination in tomorrow's primary.

Miss Helen Take of St. Joseph is a pretty, pleasant young woman with no political experience and nothing of a business or professional background to indicate she's prepared for the important job of U.S. representative.

David S. Frazer of Benton Harbor, an industrial salesman, appears bright, friendly and honest. But he came into the race at the 11th hour and really hasn't carried enough water to the Republican elephant to expect the party now to make him mahout.

Lee Boothby of Berrien Springs is a perennial candidate for office whose political views are unreallistically right wing, and whose perception of human needs is, unfortunately, some times not much more acute than George Custer's understanding of Sitting Bull's troop strength.

Dave Stockman is an intelligent young man, poised beyond his years, who has been actively engaged in the great debates stirring his generation. Any parent who has kids in the same generation as Dave knows what turmoil has been going on — and is proud, indeed, if his or her children has handled the problems of the day with as much self control and insight as young Stockman.

Even more important than Stockman's being a thinker, however, is the fact that he's a doer. His campaign organization itself, as well as his rapid promotion within the National GOP apparatus, demonstrate he gets things done.

That means putting the federal government to work for the folks and institutions of our Fourth District. And that's what we need in Congress.

Dave Stockman's got a real chance of giving the district a go-get-em Congressman with real clout on both Capitol Hill and the White House.

We urge everyone to do the Fourth District a favor by nominating him for the job tomorrow.

Arson A Major Problem

Where ther's smoke, there's fire — which very well may have been set deliberately. Arson, difficult to detect and profitable as well, has become a major problem in cities all across the country. According to the Insurance Information Institute, property losses from arson exceeded $1.4-billion in 1975, as compared with $845-million only two years earlier.

Arson has been described as the least prosecuted or investigated felony. "Police and fire departments are often at odds as to whose job it is to pursue arsonists." Business Week observed, "and beyond that, they are sometimes inadequately staffed and trained to detect arson." Moreover, most district attorneys don't like to bring charges because the conviction rate is low, and insurance companies are reluctant to question claims because they fear massive suits for punitive damages if they turn down a legitimate claim.

Small wonder, then, that a new breed of professional "torch" has come into being. Rarely if ever will this type of arsonist use gasoline or some other kind of flammable liquid. Some arsonists, Douglas Martin wrote in the Wall Street Journal, "mix in ordinary envelopes difficult-to-detect chemicals that flare up long after the arsonist has left the scene."

The problem of determining whether a fire was deliberately set has a built-in catch. Firefighters try to put out fires as fast as they possibly can, before more lives and property are lost. But in doing this, they often destroy evidence of arson.

Even when physical evidence of arson is lacking, tell-tale clues often are present. One signal that makes investigators suspect arson is a recent and large increase in the claimant's insurance coverage. Another is a recent change in insurance companies. If a company gets a reputation as being hard on dubious claims, policyholders are apt to decide it is safer to switch than fight.

When an insurer does fight a claim, civil action for fraud usually is the chosen course. Fraud is more easier to prove than criminal arson, for the rules of evidence are looser in civil cases and circumstantial evidence carries greater weight. To prove fraud, the company does not have to provide physical evidence of arson. It merely must show that the insured claimed more loss than he or she actually suffered.

Despite the huge dollar losses involved, arson does not arouse the feelings of dread and concern that many other types of crime do. Possibly because it is so hard to prove, it is not included in the FBI's index of major crimes. The fact that fire losses usually are fully covered by insurance tends to soften the pain. And most people, it has been suggested, actually enjoy a good fire, provided their own lives and property are not involved.

The number of fires that are deliberately set would decrease if the profit motive were removed, but arson would continue to be a problem. Pyromania was commonplace long before fire insurance became widely available, and it still accounts for an unknown number of fires of suspicious origin. The pyromaniac is driven to set fires for reasons he or she does not fully understand. In some cases, the act seems to be connected to the person's sexual troubles. For individuals, the flame of love and the fire of passion are metaphors to be taken quite literally.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Congressman Marvin Esch of Ann Arbor says he will introduce legislation creating tax credits of up to $250 for persons who pay for post-high school education.

Esch is the Republican frontrunner in Tuesday's U.S. Senate primary election.

He said his bill would particularly help middle income families "though it is obviously not as large a support as what we'd like." But persons from all income brackets would be eligible for the tax credit.

A similar measure introduced in the Senate by Sen. William Roth of Delaware was incorporated into the tax reform bill now being debated on the Senate floor.

Another Senate candidate, dark-horse Democrat James Elsman, showed up at Esch's news conference last week and said he would pursue a lawsuit filed against Secretary of State Richard Austin no matter what happens in voting Tuesday.

It was Elsman's howls about the secretary of state patronage system that pressured Austin several weeks ago to refuse any more contributions from branch managers to his own Democratic Senate campaign.

The lawsuit filed by the Birmingham attorney is over the branch manager patronage system. Elsman said last week he would likely drop the lawsuit if Austin ordered all 95 branch managers' jobs converted to the civil service system.

Minor Parties Get Section On Ballot

All primary ballots in tomorrow's election will have a section reserved for five lesser known political parties trying to qualify their candidates to be placed on the November general election ballot.

Primary voters who don't like either the Republican or Democratic choices can cast a single vote for all the candidates from any one of the five other parties.

Those parties are the Socialist Workers party, the Socialist Labor party, the Communist Labor party, the United States Labor party, and the Libertarian party.

Each of those parties must receive a statewide vote of at least three-tenths of one per cent of those who appear at the polls in the primary to qualify for placement on the November general election ballot. Primary voters may vote for only one of the five lesser parties, and those who do cannot cross party lines and vote for Republican or Democratic candidates, too.

Two other small parties already have received a spot on the upcoming November ballot because of votes they received in the 1974 election. They are the Human Rights party and the American Independent party.

Five years ago Henry D. Dean came from Chicago to Benton Harbor and mapped out the program of building the famous tunnel road, which at various times was known by different names. It is best remembered as the Benton Harbor & Eastern. The chief feature of the road which made it prominent throughout the state was the fact that the plans called for a $80,000 tunnel which was to extend a half-mile under the city. The man who was to furnish the capital died before the preliminaries were fairly under way. New members were added to the company and the whole thing ended, it was thought forever, in a quarrel among the stockholders. This week the plan has been revived. Mr. Deam, who is known to have no money of his own, is paying out liberal sums for right of way between Benton Harbor and Sister Lakes. He is out with a team every day accompanied by Attorney A.P. Cady and M.W. Jennings, men who would not mix in the matter were it not sufficiently backed by capital.

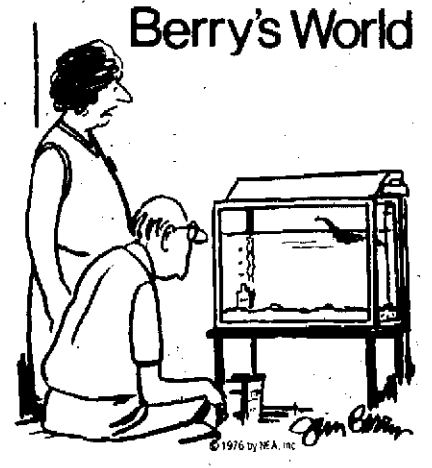

Troopers Grab Two Hitchhikers

NEW BUFFALO — State police here said they arrested two hitchhikers on I-94 yesterday morning on auto theft charges after a stolen car was found crashed and abandoned about one-half mile north of the US-12 intersection.

The two were identified as Ramon Gonzalez, 34, and Marcello Rivera, 22, both of Chicago. Officers said the two were charged with unlawfully driving away an automobile.

Officers said the hitchhikers were arrested about 7:20 a.m., shortly after two men abandoned a crashed car that had been reported stolen earlier yesterday in Chicago. There were no injuries in the crash, officers said.

This Garden Needs Weeding

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter, Jerry Ford and Ronald Reagan agree on at least one thing: the next president must reform the bureaucracy; 'Beadledom' must go. The government's garden needs weeding. As a start each candidate has pledged to rid the official ranks of incompetents, purge the arrogant ne'r do wells, and — listen up now — "restore efficiency and responsiveness and a sense of caring" in public servants all across this glorious land.

Well, lots of luck. Two hundred years ago the patriots fought a war, in part, to rid America of the "swarms of officers" (bureaucrats) who were feeding on the people's substance. In this respect, the war was lost. Government has grown to the point where the swarms account for one of every six jobs in the nation, or one of every four new jobs in the last decade, and coming to grips with it, as John Kennedy said, is "like fighting a feather bed."

One reason for this is that while government employment is large, it is also secured to the deepest root in the history of labor. Genuine bureaucratic reform would necessitate cutting the root, and that would not only be difficult, it might be impossible. When Richard Nixon tried to effect a modest reduction in force, as example, the root held, and he eventually conceded the inevitable: "We never fire anybody, we never reprimand anybody, we never demote anybody." Thus, like roaches, public servants don't disappear, they multiply.

This truth is at the heart of perhaps the most difficult problem in government administration today. Gov. James Edwards of South Carolina puts it plainly enough: "Bosses aren't bosses anymore." What he means is that government workers are so tightly protected by civil service, and in some cases unionization as well, neither a governor nor a president has absolute authority over the jobs.

In many respects the protection is justified. Civil service began in the country as a means of protecting government workers from political vagaries and the eccentricities of powerful nincompoops. Yet Edwards says, "The pendulum has swung too far the other way." Wrong as well as right is being protected. Inefficiency is rewarded. At the recent National Governors' Conference in Pennsylvania, every executive asked agreed with Richard Lamm of Colorado that civil service is now "the greatest of all roadblocks to effective government."

As the governors see it, the roadblock is this: since competition is the mother of facility, we destroy it only at our peril. Hence government service has become the final resting place for, without exaggeration, millions of tenured zombies who lack the stimulation to hustle. We've all seen them: crusty, careless, overbearing. Ken Fobes, an assistant to the governor of Oregon, says the best description for many bureaucrats is that "they retire on the job."

Statistically, it is not quite true that the worst bureaucrats can't be fired. Between 16 and 25,000 federal workers are dismissed each year. But the procedure is usually complicated. In most states even street cleaners have grievance procedures that can take a year or more to resolve. In the end there may be a court fight, anyway. The governor of Idaho, Cecil Andrus, says he once had to spend $100,000 in legal fees to get rid of one objectionable but tenured college professor.

As for hope from the candidates? Unlikely. Presidents come and go, but the only change in the bureaucracy is that its odor gets worse.

Marianne Means

The President Of The Minority

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter became the Democratic presidential nominee on the basis of the primary votes of only 6.2 million persons.

Similarly, either President Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan will shortly become the Republican nominee on the basis of considerably less than 5 million primary votes apiece.

Those are depressing statistics, for they indicate how painfully few persons in a nation with a voting age population of nearly 140 million bothered to participate in the pre-convention political process this year.

Only 43.8 per cent of eligible registered voters turned out for the presidential preference primaries, slightly more than the 42.6 per cent turnout in 1972. Because there were so many Democratic candidates in the field, Carter was able to win handily with only 39 per cent of the total Democratic primary votes cast. Ford and Reagan have split the Republican primary votes 49 per cent to 50.5 per cent, respectively.

In the caucus states, the turnout was much poorer, even though new Democratic Party rules provided for mass delegate selection sessions and a much more open process than in the past. The best turnout rate in a caucus state was 19 per cent in Connecticut, less than half the average turnout rate in primary states.

The result of such indifference is that more than half of the nation's eligible voters will be faced with a choice between two men in the fall whom they played no role in helping to select for the contest and both of whom they may therefore dislike or resent.

Voter turnout is traditionally higher for the general election tries, but hardly something to shout about.

It has been falling steadily since 1960, when 63 per cent of the voting age population chose John Kennedy over Richard Nixon. In 1972, a year of emotional social issues and heated Vietnam rhetoric, only 55.7 per cent participated.

Some experts believe that apathy and frustration have grown greatly since then, fueled by White House corruption and an inability of Washington to straighten out the economy, and that the voter turnout this year may be much lower than 1972. Whether that is true may depend upon how sharply Carter and his GOP opponent define the issues and whether they can restore a sense of credibility to the process.

Widespread voter apathy tends to hurt Democrats, who rely heavily on young people, blacks, low-income families and blue-collar workers more than the Republicans, whose affluent and motivated suburban voters are more likely to vote anyway. Thus the Democratic National Committee's principal chore in the Carter campaign will be to mount a massive voter registration drive.

Nurses Reject Pact

DETROIT (AP) — Registered Red Cross nurses have rejected a final contract offer from the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross. The nurses, who collect blood for hospitals in five southeastern Michigan counties, also voted Sunday to extend their strike deadline until midnight Tuesday. The 85 nurses, members of the Michigan Nurse Association, had originally threatened to walk off the job early this morning. A spokeswoman said the nurses had agreed to postpone the walkout to give a federal mediator a chance to settle outstanding contract issues, including economic and grievance proposals.

Hartford Woman Elected AVMA Vice President

HARTFORD — Mrs. H. James Meachum, wife of a Hartford veterinarian, has been elected vice president in charge of publications of the Women's auxiliary to the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) during the auxiliary's convention in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The AVMA auxiliary, the oldest women's auxiliary to a medical profession in the United States, was organized in 1917 and has almost 10,000 members.

It raises money for the AVMA's foundation which underwrites veterinary fellows and scholars engaged in research in the United States and Canada. The auxiliary also presents awards at these colleges to outstanding senior students and wives who are members of the veterinary students' auxiliary and maintains a loan fund of over $200,000 for veterinary students and participates in the AVMA public information program.

As vice president of publications, Mrs. Meachum will be in charge of the publications committee which compiles, edits and publishes the "Auxiliary NEWS."

She previously served the national auxiliary as a member of the membership, public relations and publications committees.

Mrs. Meachum has served as treasurer of the Michigan Veterinary Medical Association auxiliary for several years, president of the Michigan VMA auxiliary and state chairman for the convention of the Michigan VMA auxiliary.

She is active in the United Methodist church of which she is finance chairman and is a member of the Hartford township Bicentennial committee, Parent's Advisory Board for Title I at the Hartford public schools and the Hartford Athletic Boosters.

Mrs. Meachum is a graduate of Ball State university and Michigan State university and is presently studying at Western Michigan university. She has served as a reading consultant for the Van Buren County Intermediate schools and is now doing individual educational counseling.

Dr. and Mrs. Meachum have four children, Virginia, H. James Jr., Patti and Daniel.

First Edition

CHICAGO (AP) — A first edition book does not necessarily have special value.

The American Library Assn. says, "Indeed, for the majority of books, the first edition was the only edition.

First printings of great works of literature, art and science are usually sought by collectors, but scarcity and market demand determine the value."

Wash As You Travel

Are you driving cross country or camping out this vacation? Then let laundry soak or in some instances, wash itself as you travel!

Half fill the container with hot sudsy water. Place soiled clothing inside and lock the cover in place. Then wedge the pail in a nook or corner of a camper or trailer. The clothes will wash while you drive and be ready for additional washing, if heavily soiled, or rinsing and drying at the next stop.

Theater Exhibit

The exhibit surveys the history of the American theater through art works from over 100 collections.

Soften First, Then Serve

Remove the carton from the freezer and allow about 10 minutes in the refrigerator for a pint and 20 minutes for a half gallon. Return remainder to the freezer immediately after taking out what you need.

Schedule Golden Event

BUCHANAN — Mr. and Mrs. Carson L. Houswerth of Portage Prairie will be honored at an open house celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, Aug. 8, at their home, 2330 Red Bud South.

Friends and relatives are invited to the event, which will be held from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The couple's children, Mrs. Robert (Joan) Welk of Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. James (Bonnie) Merrifield of Benton Harbor, will host the event.

The former Anna Faye Gilson and Houswerth were married Sept. 8, 1926, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gilson of Buchanan.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Houswerth are active members of Portage Prairie United Methodist church. At one time he was church pianist. Mrs. Houswerth currently serves as organist and choir director.

A retired Buchanan businessman, Houswerth with the late Lee Mathie for a number of years owned and operated a television and radio sales and service business.

The couple has four grandchildren.

Open House Saturday

COLOMA — Mr. and Mrs. William A. Adams, 6731 Bay View drive, Coloma, will observe their 25th wedding anniversary at an open house Saturday, Aug. 7, at 7 p.m. at their home.

Friends and relatives are invited.

Hosting the event will be their children, Larry Joe Adams, Mrs. Wilbur (Betty) Warman, Miss Linda Lou Adams and Miss Terry Lee Adams, all of Coloma.

William A. Adams and the former Darlene Smith were married Aug. 6, 1951, at the Peace Temple United Methodist church, Benton Harbor, by the Rev. Stanley Buck.

Adams is employed as a set-up man by Bendix Corp., hydraulics division, St. Joseph. Mrs. Adams is employed as a bookkeeper by Wolverine Metal Stamping, Inc., St. Joseph.

BENTON HARBOR — ST. JOSEPH, MICHIGAN MONDAY

BH To Vote On Commis

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Benton Harbor voters tomorrow will ballot on four vacant city commission seats along with the nominations in the regular primary election.

The city commission election is a special vote created by the recall May 18 of Charles F. Joseph as mayor and three other city commissioners.

The special election in Benton Harbor was scheduled for tomorrow because it coincides with the the state primary. At stake in the city are the office of mayor, one commissioner-at-large, Second and Third Ward commissioners.

The city election is nonpartisan and amounts to a general election for the four seats that were vacated by recall. The winners of the special election will be sworn into office after the board of canvassers reports official vote totals.

The state primary nominates candidates for the general election in November.

Also on the ballot in Benton Harbor tomorrow is a recall proposition on the seat of City Commissioner-at-large Helen Ford, who was appointed to the po sion. This ballot iss or be removed fro other coinmissione

Candidates on t tomorrow are:

At the time, little did George H. Morgan realize the trouble he was having putting a bicycle brake back together while in the eighth grade would some day pay off in more than aggravation.

Morgan, 41, an engineer and marketing manager of the brake division of Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co. (Ausco), St. Joseph, credits recalling that difficult time for helping him come up with an idea for a new emergency and safety brake for hydraulically driven machinery.

The new brake, called the FailSafe, is presently being manufactured at Ausco's St. Joseph and Hartford divisions and appears to be a success for the company. Morgan called the brake a "revolutionary idea" in the field.

Although the original idea for the brake was Morgan's, he is listed as co-inventor of the brake on the patent and gives equal credit to Charles A. Kreitner, 58, a design engineer at Ausco.

Morgan said the brake is used on machinery such as foundry equipment, front-end loaders, construction and mining machinery and special agricultural equipment. The brake is automatically applied with the loss of hydraulic pressure to provide the emergency braking function.

Morgan said the brake is a simple pre-engineered package that bolts between the hydraulic motor and the gear box of the machinery with a very low installation cost. "In other words it does its thing simpler than any other similar type brake," he said.

He further described it as "a glorified bicycle brake expanded with some aircraft brake thrown in." Kreitner added, "As they say, it's much harder to make something simpler than more complicated."

Inventing the brake and getting it into production, which began in 1973, was only half the problem the two men faced.

According to Morgan, the next step was a selling job, not only to sell the brake, but the system in which the brake could be used. He said the brake only works on hydraulically-powered machinery as opposed to mechanically driven machinery.

At the time of the invention most machines were mechanically driven. Presently more and more machinery is being operated by the hydraulic system.

For the past three years, Morgan estimated he put in 60-80 hour work weeks with much of that time being spent on the sales end of the project.

During this time continually workin ing the brake.

Morgan said, enough money in th through what we in the last three ye his motivation knowing he was m tribution to society of a piece of safety

Baptist Ministers' Group Endorses Joel Patterson

The Southwest Michigan Baptist Ministerial Alliance has endorsed Joel Patterson for mayor of Benton Harbor and three candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for Benton township offices. Announcement of the endorsement was made by Rev. Robert L. DeFrance on behalf of Rev. Elbert Brown, president of the alliance.

Patterson is one of three candidates seeking the Benton Harbor mayor's seat vacated by the May 18 recall of Charles F. Joseph. The office will be filled Tuesday in a special city election that coincides with the regular statewide primary in which candidates are nominated for the November general election.

Endorsed by the ministerial alliance in their bids for the Democratic nomination in Benton township are Nora Jefferson for trustee, Cecilia Burke for clerk and Willie Askew for treasurer.

Benton Patrolman's Newspaper Starts 'Lost And Found' Story

A Benton township patrolman, who read about the theft of a farm tractor and trailer in The Herald-Palladium Friday while on vacation, returned to duty Sunday, found the stolen vehicles and returned them to their owner. Patrolman James Windsor said he began checking some "likely" locations after reading of the theft and found the flatbed trailer behind a warehouse on Crystal avenue. He said he followed tractor tracks into a field and located the tractor about a mile and a half from the warehouse. He said the tractor was overturned, but only sustained a dented fender. The tractor and trailer were returned to owner James Crow, City of David, Box 187, Britain avenue, but 30 to 40 10-gallon pails that were on the trailer were not located, Windsor said.

Shooting Stars

ANN ARBOR — August evenings will be enlivened by the Perseids, the most conspicuous and dependable of the annual meteor showers.

So says University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh, who adds that while the "shooting stars" will be blazing across the night skies for two or three weeks, peak activity will occur around Aug. 10-12.

"During the peak period as many as one 'falling star' per minute may be observed," she says. "A flashing Perseid meteor appearing as bright as the North Star is probably no bigger than the head of a pin or a grain of sand."

Try Gift People Eat

Go out of the ordinary with Ah-So-Good Oriental Pork and Sprouts.

In skillet, brown one and one-half cups cubed cooked pork and cook one cup diagonally sliced celery in one-fourth cup butter or margarine until tender. Add one can (sixteen ounces) bean sprouts, drained, one can (ten and one-half ounces) mushroom gravy and two teaspoons soy sauce. Heat; stir occasionally. Serve over cooked rice. Makes about three cups, four to six servings.

Make Supper Easy Way

Drain Potatoes Before Frying

Thoroughly drain potatoes before deep-fat frying them. Excessive moisture in food being cooked in deep fat helps break it down and shortens its frying life. Excessive moisture also makes fat foam too much and there's a danger of it boiling over.

Hartford Woman Elected AVMA Vice President

HARTFORD — Mrs. H. James Meachum, wife of a Hartford veterinarian, has been elected vice president in charge of publications of the Women's auxiliary to the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) during the auxiliary's convention in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The AVMA auxiliary, the oldest women's auxiliary to a medical profession in the United States, was organized in 1917 and has almost 10,000 members.

It raises money for the AVMA's foundation which underwrites veterinary fellows and scholars engaged in research in the United States and Canada. The auxiliary also presents awards at these colleges to outstanding senior students and wives who are members of the veterinary students' auxiliary and maintains a loan fund of over $200,000 for veterinary students and participates in the AVMA public information program.

As vice president of publications, Mrs. Meachum will be in charge of the publications committee which compiles, edits and publishes the "Auxiliary NEWS."

She previously served the national auxiliary as a member of the membership; public relations and publications committees.

Mrs. Meachum has served as treasurer of the Michigan Veterinary Medical Association auxiliary for several years, president of the Michigan VMA auxiliary and state chairman for the convention of the Michigan VMA auxiliary.

She is active in the United Methodist church of which she is finance chairman and is a member of the Hartford township Bicentennial committee, Parent's Advisory Board for Title I at the Hartford public schools and the Hartford Athletic Boosters.

Mrs. Meachum is a graduate of Ball State university and Michigan State university and is presently studying at Western Michigan university. She has served as a reading consultant for the Van Buren County Intermediate schools and is now doing individual educational counseling.

Dr. and Mrs. Meachum have four children, Virginia, H. James Jr., Patti and Daniel.

MRS. H. JAMES MEACHUM

First Edition

CHICAGO (AP) — A first edition book does not necessarily have special value.

The American Library Assn. says, "Indeed, for the majority of books, the first edition was the only edition.

First printings of great works of literature, art and science are usually sought by collectors, but scarcity and market demand determine the value."

Wash As You Travel

Are you driving cross country or camping out this vacation? Then let laundry soak or in some instances, wash itself as you travel!

Half fill the container with hot sudsy water. Place soiled clothing inside and lock the cover in place. Then wedge the pail in a nook or corner of a camper or trailer. The clothes will wash while you drive and be ready for additional washing, if heavily soiled, or rinsing and drying at the next stop.

Theater Exhibit

The exhibit surveys the history of the American theater through art works from over 100 collections.

Soften First, Then Serve

Remove the carton from the freezer and allow about 10 minutes in the refrigerator for a pint and 20 minutes for a half gallon. Return remainder to the freezer immediately after taking out what you need.

Schedule Golden Event

BUCHANAN — Mr. and Mrs. Carson L. Housworth of Portage Prairie will be honored at an open house celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, Aug. 8, at their home, 2330 Red Bud South.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Horn Players Like Kissing

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say something to the girl who is engaged to the French horn player. She was unhappy because he refused to kiss her, said it would damage his lips and he needed to take care of them because that was his only means of making a living.

The guy is pulling a fast one. If he doesn't want to kiss his girl, there's got to be another reason. I know because I'm a French horn player who has played with a great symphony orchestra and I've also done a lot of kissing. My lips are in great shape. What's more I've been married over a year to a wonderful gal who plays the tuba. Neither one of us worries about our lips — we just love each other like crazy and have one heck of a good time.

The only way kissing could possibly hurt the guy's career is if he spends so much time kissing it interferes with his practice. — Puckered Up In Illinois

Dear Puck: Hundreds of musicians wrote to clobber that French horn player. Each one said the fellow was full of hot air — so blow it out your French horn, Buster.

Insomnia

Dear Ann Landers: I desperately need your advice on insomnia. If it bothered me only a couple of times a week I wouldn't complain, but in the last four years I haven't had more than five good nights' sleep. Usually, I doze off at 2:00 a.m. and I'm up to watch the sun rise through the curtains.

The trouble is we live in a world where most work begins in the morning. In my case I'm a student whose classes generally start at 9:00 a.m.

I've had this problem for six years. It started when my father died. I have no energy and always feel run down. My career in athletics (high school and college) has been ruined.

I've tried everything I can think of — prescription drugs (sometimes they work and sometimes they don't, other times they work too well), a psychologist, self-hypnosis, and enough home remedies to fill a book. I'm so desperate I'm willing to try anything. Please help me. — Sleepless

Dear Sleepless: Your problem won't be found in a drugstore or a home remedy. You must learn WHY you cannot sleep. The clue is your father's death.

Book Worked

Dear Ann Landers: Please forgive this crummy note paper but I can't wait until I buy nicer stuff to thank you for that Confidential that appeared at the bottom of your column.

Although it wasn't a personal reply to me I had the same problem and sent my husband out that same day to buy the book you recommended for people who are afraid to leave their homes and mingle with crowds.

"Peace From Nervous Suffering" by Dr. Claire Weekes changed my life. I feel like a new person. It did for me what no doctor could do, and I went to several. Please, Ann, recommend it again. — Elated In Evanston

Dear E.: Already I've received at least 50 letters raving about that book. Thanks to all who wrote.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

College Bound? Plan Ahead

All over the country, college-bound freshmen are getting ready to leave home and move into a dormitory, oftentimes with roommates and new responsibilities.

It helps to see the room in advance to get an idea of the layout and how much space is available. Also, the opportunity to meet any roommates in order to plan and coordinate the room arrangement and furnishings.

Check with the school for items which may be provided. Besides furniture, some colleges provide curtains, bedding, towels and other needs.

Then, start planning what to take and how to decorate the room to make it cheerful and practical. Get down to basics — how to keep the room clean easily and laundry under control.

Make it an all-washable room, recommends The Soap and Detergent Association. Keep in mind that the dorm room is an "everything" center. Besides sleeping and studying here, it may also be used for socializing, dressing, eating, listening to music, working on projects and many other activities.

It may be a personal responsibility to keep furnishings, curtains, bedding and blankets clean. Choose attractive, color-coordinated items that are sturdy. For example, since beds take up the most room and may be used for sitting space, a durable, no-iron bedspread that can be machine washed and dried is most practical. Matching throw pillows with zip-off washable covers and washable area rugs are attractive additions that offer comfort and easy care.

Closet and drawer space may be limited, but space savers can help. There is a wide choice, such as stackable boxes and trays, multi-tiered clothes hangers, over-the-door shoe and towel racks, various hooks and hangers. An assortment of drawer dividers and desk organizers are also available to help keep everything in place.

Take advantage of wall space. Bulletin boards are great catchalls for mementos and reminders. By using pegboard, even a narrow wall area can be converted to hold a variety of hooks to store anything from a tennis racket to a favorite bathrobe. There are also wall-hung magazine racks and shelving for neatly stashing other paraphernalia.

Many items used in common in households — soap, toothpaste, laundry aids, tissues — will have to be purchased for personal use at school. Other essentials may include a lamp, small hammer and screwdriver, alarm clock. Instead of transporting these items from home, however, it may be easier to shop near campus.

Do take a small first aid kit, sewing kit and small grooming needs for immediate use. Don't forget a roomy laundry bag for general washing and a mesh bag for hosiery and delicates. If there is room, a folding dryer rack will be helpful for hanging hand-washables.

Once you're established, it helps to talk things over, divide chores and establish a routine to keep a room clean, uncluttered and comfortable. With the proper supplies and a little forethought, dormitory living will be a pleasant and memorable experience.

One-Piece Is Oddity

On a California beach somewhere, I saw a girl sunning herself topless today and the only thing I could think of was, "Good heavens! She and I were the only two on the beach in a one-piece suit!"

As the crowd gathered, I couldn't help feeling dirty and ashamed. Men and boys were snickering . . . younger girls ran down the beach for a closer look. I saw a few camera buffs aim and snap to record on film what they saw.

You would have thought that none of them had ever seen a 49-year-old woman in a one-piece bathing suit before. Even the girl sitting topless came down for a closer look.

Finally, I could stand it no longer. I grabbed a towel, covered myself, and ran back toward the house.

"Well, what did you expect?" asked my daughter. "You go around fully clothed like that and you're going to attract attention."

"Why should that be of any concern to anyone else?" I said, tears of shame welling in my eyes.

"Morals are everyone's business," she said, "and the answer is simple. All you have to do is conform. Just buy a two-piece suit and blend into the crowd."

"I'd think you'd be self-conscious wearing a one-piece suit. After all, your body isn't that great."

"No one asked people to look. They're the ones who are sick!"

"Okay, so wear a one-piece suit, but don't be surprised if some day a policeman comes around and orders you to take off more clothes while you're on a public beach."

"Why can't people over 40 be themselves?" I asked. "Why do we always have to do what young people tell us?"

"Because young people have lived less and know what is good for you. C'mon, you're just depressed," she said. "Slip into a pair of shorts and a midriff shirt and we'll go to the movies. There's a new one called 'Logan's Run.'"

"What's it about?" I asked.

"It's a futuristic film in which everyone over 30 is eliminated. It's a comedy."

"That's easy for you to say."

OSWALD: "As we have tried to point out so many times a large part of the difference between bad play, good play and expert play lies in the planning at at trick one."

Jim: "Six hearts certainly is a good contract. You have eleven tricks and can get an easy twelfth by a successful finesse for the king of spades."

OSWALD: "A good play sees an extra chance. He can discard his low club on the king of diamonds and ruff a club. Then, if clubs break 3-3 dummy's fourth club becomes his twelfth trick."

JIM: "You can see that clubs don't break and that the spade finesse is going to lose. Nevertheless, the expert has no trouble with the hand."

OSWALD: "He simply draws trumps, cashes his king, then dummy's ace of clubs, discards his last club on dummy's king of diamonds and ruffs a third club. East shows out but our expert isn't bothered. He gets back to dummy with a third trump, leads the last club and discards his three of spades. West wins, but has to give South his twelfth trick with a ruff and a discard or by leading a spade into South's ace-queen."

Both sides are vulnerable.

You have three defensive tricks so that there is little chance that your opponents can score a game. On the other hand, you are very weak in the major suits and the chances are that an opening bid will lead to your opponents getting a plus score. Therefore, unless you are playing with a partner who passes very big hands we recommend that you pass.

River Valley Senior Citizens

THREE OAKS — River Valley senior citizens will begin a variety of activities scheduled for August with a potluck supper Tuesday, Aug. 10, according to Judy Ponegalek, director of the River Valley Senior Center, Red Arrow highway, Harbert.

The potluck supper will be held at 5:30 p.m. in the River Valley high school cafeteria. A film program will follow.

A bus trip to the Berrien County Youth fair, Berrien Springs, is scheduled for Friday, Aug. 20.

The bus will leave the senior center at 5 p.m. and return around 11 p.m. Total cost of the trip, including admission and reserved seats for the evening grandstand show, is $4. Reservations must be made in advance.

Free legal assistance for senior citizens will be offered at the senior center Monday, Aug. 23, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The monthly arts and crafts session will meet at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 24, at the senior center. Mrs. Vonda Chilson, Three Oaks, will demonstrate how to make a jewel tree.

Volunteer nurses will be at the senior center Monday, Aug. 30, between 9 a.m. and noon to give blood pressure checks to interested senior citizens.

Every Thursday beginning at 1 p.m. senior citizens meet at the center to make cancer dressings. On Friday, Aug. 20, volunteers from the River Valley Senior Center will assist in taking care of an information booth, sponsored by five senior centers in Berrien county at the Berrien County Youth Fair. The booth will be open each day of the fair from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Dr. Lester Coleman

How do you feel about the recent report that alcoholics can learn to drink again in moderation? - Mr. G. J., Tex.

Dear Mr. J.:

I am confused by this report. It's from a group of reputable scientists who have come to a rather premature conclusion that known alcoholics can again begin to try social drinking without necessarily returning to their former pattern of alcohol abuse.

The report of the scientists does not agree with the findings of psychotherapists and the practical concepts of Alcoholics Anonymous and the National Council on Alcoholism.

The physical and psychological accomplishments of alcoholics are too great to be toyed with. The possibility that a few known alcoholics might be returned to a life of "social drinking" is far too great a risk, in my opinion, in view of the overwhelming majority who would again return to their former destructive patterns.

I do not deny that research should continue on alcoholism as a personal and family disease. The possibility that alcoholism has genetic, hereditary and metabolic implications must be pursued just as diligently as is the cause and cure for other illnesses.

Only in this way can this and other scourges of mankind be eliminated or controlled.

Those who have been able to conquer alcoholism and return to productive, serviceable lives must not be tempted by "scientific studies" until there is positive knowledge of the safety of such a course.

Extended scientific programs must satisfactorily explain why alcoholism tends to follow a family pattern. They must also explain why alcoholics totter on the brink of destruction before they embark on a program of rehabilitation.

Scientists must also positively explain why even with the most intensive programs some alcoholics continue to "break" and begin new bouts of drinking.

I cannot deny the statistical reports of the scientific evaluators who arrived at the conclusion that four per cent of alcoholics can again begin their drinking patterns. I can very specifically relate my own scientific study of one case.

A patient of mine, aged 29, enthusiastically received the news of the research findings that you refer to. He has been on a 10-day binge of heavy drinking which has undone eight years of intensive effort to free him from the albatross of alcoholism.

A potluck dinner will be served at 12:30 p.m. followed by a business meeting at 2 p.m. Serving on the dinner committee will be Mrs. Freeman Guyse, Mrs. Francis Bowerman and Mrs. Lois Skinner.

Honor August Bride

Miss Linda Briney, daughter of Donald Briney, St. Joseph, has been honored at several bridal showers.

Miss Briney will marry Kenneth Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Weber, Benton Harbor, Aug. 7.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Mike Schultz, St. Joseph, July 10. Also hosting the event were Mrs. Henry Schultz and Miss Frances Schultz.

A couples shower honoring Miss Briney and her fiance was held July 17 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, Benton Harbor. Hosting the event with the Grahams were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Holda.

Mrs. Gilford Weber, Benton Harbor, the groom's aunt, gave a miscellaneous shower July 18 at her home. Assisting her was Mrs. Floyd Weber, also an aunt of the groom.

A luncheon shower July 21 was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Saroni, Berrien Springs. Other hostesses were Mrs. James Bermingham, Mrs. John Reppart, Mrs. Richard Nelson, Mrs. Michael Walker and Miss Robin Zollar.

On July 25 Miss Briney was given a linen shower at the home of Mrs. Robert Weler, an aunt of the groom. Mrs. Kurt Weber and Mrs. Mark Bodecs, cousins of the groom, assisted the hostess.

Drain Potatoes Before Frying

Thoroughly drain potatoes before deep-fat frying them. Excessive moisture in food being cooked in deep fat helps break it down and shortens its frying life. Excessive moisture also makes fat foam too much and there's a danger of it boiling over.

Mentally Ill, Retarded Can Ballot Tuesday, Too

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Thousands of the mentally ill or retarded are eligible to vote in Michigan elections.

But determining just how many have registered is an impossible task.

A citizen's complaint to election officials in Grand Rapids indicated one foster care home alone has registered 50 mentally retarded adults in time for Tuesday's primary.

The man complained to the city clerk's office but Clerk Rawson Weaver said "there's nothing in the law that says they can't vote."

Weaver said the state Constitution provides that the Legislature may pass laws restricting the voting rights of the mentally incompetent but has failed to do so.

"We're not complaining but the people are complaining to us because this is being done. It's being done because there is nothing in the law to say it can't be done," Weaver added.

He said the problem has caused enough concern that the Municipal Clerks Association will discuss it "for some action" during a meeting of the Michigan Municipal League at Lansing Sept. 8-10.

A state elections official said he too has no idea how many mentally handicapped persons are registered voters.

"I wouldn't have the slightest idea how anyone could come up with a figure like that," said a spokesman for the Secreatary of State's elections division.

He said there have been complaints from some areas with state mental institutions. He cited specifically LaPeer, which had to set aside a special machine for such voters several years ago "because they were taking anywhere from a minute to an hour and a half to vote."

But LaPeer has reported no recent problems with such voters, he said.

"Actually, they're just as capable of registering as you or I," said Joe McCall, information director for the state Mental Health Department.

He said several state laws allow mental patients or the retarded to vote. "It's just one of these rights people have," McCall said. However, he added, "I don't see it as any threat to society because only a very small percentage do register and vote."

McCall also said he has no figures on the number who have registered. "That's as hard to know as how many blue-eyed voters there are," he said.

Only persons declared incompetent by court action are barred from voting among the state's more than 10,000 institutionalized retarded and mentally ill patients, McCall said, adding that only a tiny fraction of such patients have been held to be incompetent.

BRIDGE DOWN: Vienna's Imperial Bridge (Reichsbrueckel) caved in Sunday morning. Divers were hunting for clues to the cause of the collapse. Four people were believed to have died. (AP Wirephoto)

Vienna Puts Guards On Bridges After One Falls

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Mayor Leopold Gratz stationed guards on Vienna's remaining Danube River bridges as divers looked today for some clue to the cause of the collapse of the 1,500-foot central span of the Empire Bridge.

Officials said shipping on the Danube might be held up for several weeks.

Despite suspicions of sabotage, bomb experts found no evidence of exposives in the wreckage of the landmark suspension bridge which fell into the river about 5 a.m. Sunday. But the mayor ordered special guards for the rest of the bridges as a precaution.

Four young people were believed to have drowned when the bridge collapsed under their car.

"They must have dropped into the Danube," said a motorist whose car had stalled at the edge of the bridge. The young people stopped to aid him, then drove onto the bridge when a repair truck arrived.

"It was like an earthquake," the motorist said. "The bridge was shaking badly before it caved in. I did not hear any explosion. I ran away as fast as I could."

A bus, empty except for the driver, also fell into the swift-flowing Danube, but the driver managed to hang on to a girder and was rescued.

The Empire Bridge, or Reichsbruecke, was first built 100 years ago during the Austro-Hungarian Empire. It was replaced in 1934 by a modern suspension span that was damaged but never put out of commission by Allied bombing in World War II.

The Soviet Army repaired it during the occupation and named it the Red Army Bridge. When the Soviets withdrew, the Viennese restored the former name.

Gratz said it had been thought that the span was in good condition.

Finland's President Visits U.P.

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — The president of Finland paid a goodwill visit Sunday to the twin cities of Houghton and Hancock and more than one quarter of the population of the Finnish-settled communities in the Upper Peninsula turned out to greet him.

President Urho Kekkonen's visit was part of a U.S. Bicentennial celebration and climaxed a four-day "Finn-Fest" celebration sponsored by the Finnish-American Bicentennial society.

Speaking to about 3,000 persons at Michigan Technological University's ice arena, the 67-year-old Kekkonen praised the area's Finnish descendents for their success in a new world.

"Most of you had a difficult time in the early days of your life in the new world of the Michigan copper country," President Kekkonen said. "But gradually you overcame your problems and difficulties through honest work."

Kekkonen said thousands of Finnish-Americans have helped to "build bridges" between Finland and the U.S. to the benefit of both nations.

Kekkonen will be the guest of President and Mrs. Ford Tuesday at a White House reception.

The Stinging Facts About Mosquitos . . .

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Some people may complain mosquitos are worse this year than last, while others say they're not so bad.

But one bug expert says that when you come right down to it, no one really knows.

"We don't have any really objective methods or systems for keeping track," said Harold Newson, associate professor of entomology at Michigan State University.

Newson said mosquitos are more common in rainy summers than in dry summers because they use standing water as breeding grounds. Michigan, he said, has 50 or so different species.

Michigan mosquitos can transmit several types of encephalitis, Newson said, but the only kind they transmit every year is California encephalitis.

This is a type that the mother mosquito can pass on to her offspring after picking it up from small mammals.

Only 11 cases were reported in Michigan last year, he said. Its symptoms are usually most severe in children.

Homeowners can spray their yards to try to get rid of the whining pests, Newson added, but the only effective control is citywide or countywide spraying to get at the basic sources of the mosquitos.

Although no one takes mosquitos censuses, Dan Mosher, an entomologist with the state Department of Natural Resources, said he thinks the mosquito population is down this year.

"This year, from what I've seen, it's really light," he said. "The mosquitos are way down from last year and so is the rain."

Mosher said mosquitos don't all come and go at the same time.

"There are a lot of different species — early, midsummer and late," he said.

Mosquitos need warm weather, and the first ones can come as early as April, Mosher said. The later ones can linger on into October if the temperature is right and there are late rains.

Mosher said a rash of encephalitis problems in Michigan last summer was particially the result of heavy August rains.

Arms For Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has had "no control" over its sales of billions of dollars' worth of sophisticated weapons to Iran since 1972, a study by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says. Iran got a green light to buy "virtually any conventional weapons it wanted" in May 1972 when former President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with the Shah of Iran in Tehran, according to the study released Sunday.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Horn Players Like Kissing

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say something to the girl who is engaged to the French horn player. She was unhappy because he refused to kiss her, said it would damage his lips and he needed to take care of them because that was his only means of making a living.

The guy is pulling a fast one. If he doesn't want to kiss his girl, there's got to be another reason. I know because I'm a French horn player who has played with a great symphony orchestra and I've also done a lot of kissing. My lips are in great shape. What's more I've been married over a year to a wonderful gal who plays the tuba. Neither one of us worries about our lips — we just love each other like crazy and have one heck of a good time.

The only way kissing could possibly hurt the guy's career is if he spends so much time kissing it interferes with his practice. — Puckered Up In Illinois

Dear Puck: Hundreds of musicians wrote to clobber that French horn player. Each one said the fellow was full of hot air — so blow it out your French horn, Buster.

Insomnia

Dear Ann Landers: I desperately need your advice on insomnia. If it bothered me only a couple of times a week I wouldn't complain, but in the last four years I haven't had more than five good nights' sleep. Usually, I doze off at 2:00 a.m. and I'm up to watch the sun rise through the curtains.

The trouble is we live in a world where most work begins in the morning. In my case I'm a student whose classes generally start at 9:00 a.m.

I've had this problem for six years. It started when my father died. I have no energy and always feel run down. My career in athletics (high school and college) has been ruined.

I've tried everything I can think of — prescription drugs (sometimes they work and sometimes they don't, other times they work too well), a psychologist, self-hypnosis, and enough home remedies to fill a book. I'm so desperate I'm willing to try anything. Please help me. — Sleepless

Dear Sleepless: Your problem won't be found in a drugstore or a home remedy. You must learn WHY you cannot sleep. The clue is your father's death.

You need a better psychologist or a therapist who will help you get to the root of the problem. Insomnia is only the symptom.

ANN LANDERS

Book Worked

Dear Ann Landers: Please forgive this crummy note paper but I can't wait until I buy nicer stuff to thank you for that Confidential that appeared at the bottom of your column.

Although it wasn't a personal reply to me I had the same problem and sent my husband out that same day to buy the book you recommended for people who are afraid to leave their homes and mingle with crowds.

"Peace From Nervous Suffering" by Dr. Claire Weekes changed my life. I feel like a new person. It did for me what no doctor could do, and I went to several. Please, Ann, recommend it again. — Elated In Evanston

Dear E.: Already I've received at least 50 letters raving about that book. Thanks to all who wrote.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

College Bound? Plan Ahead

All over the country, college-bound freshmen are getting ready to leave home and move into a dormitory, oftentimes with roommates and new responsibilities.

It helps to see the room in advance to get an idea of the layout and how much space is available. Also, the opportunity to meet any roommates in order to plan and coordinate the room arrangement and furnishings.

Check with the school for items which may be provided. Besides furniture, some colleges provide curtains, bedding, towels and other needs.

Then, start planning what to take and how to decorate the room to make it cheerful and practical. Get down to basics — how to keep the room clean easily and laundry under control.

Make it an all-washable room, recommends The Soap and Detergent Association. Keep in mind that the dorm room is an "everything" center. Besides sleeping and studying here, it may also be used for socializing, dressing, eating, listening to music, working on projects and many other activities.

It may be a personal responsibility to keep furnishings, curtains, bedding and blankets clean. Choose attractive, color-coordinated items that are sturdy. For example, since beds take up the most room and may be used for sitting space, a durable, no-iron bedspread that can be machine washed and dried is most practical. Matching throw pillows with zip-off washable covers and washable area rugs are attractive additions that offer comfort and easy care.

Closet and drawer space may be limited, but space savers can help. There is a wide choice, such as stackable boxes and trays, multi-tiered clothes hangers, over-the-door shoe and towel racks, various hooks and hangers. An assortment of drawer dividers and desk organizers are also available to help keep everything in place.

Take advantage of wall space. Bulletin boards are great catchalls for mementos and reminders. By using pegboard, even a narrow wall area can be converted to hold a variety of hooks to store anything from a tennis racket to a favorite bathrobe. There are also wall-hung magazine racks and shelving for neatly stashing other paraphernalia.

Many items used in common in households — soap, toothpaste, laundry aids, tissues — will have to be purchased for personal use at school. Other essentials may include a lamp, small hammer and screwdriver, alarm clock. Instead of transporting these items from home, however, it may be easier to shop near campus.

Do take a small first aid kit, sewing kit and small grooming needs for immediate use. Don't forget a roomy laundry bag for general washing and a mesh bag for hosiery and delicates. If there is room, a folding dryer rack will be helpful for hanging hand-washables.

Once you're established, it helps to talk things over, divide chores and establish a routine to keep a room clean, uncluttered and comfortable. With the proper supplies and a little forethought, dormitory living will be a pleasant and memorable experience.

One-Piece Is Oddity

On a California beach somewhere, I saw a girl sunning herself topless today and the only thing I could think of was, "Good heavens! She and I were the only two on the beach in a one-piece suit!"

As the crowd gathered, I couldn't help feeling dirty and ashamed. Men and boys were snickering . . . younger girls ran down the beach for a closer look. I saw a few camera buffs aim and snap to record on film what they saw.

You would have thought that none of them had ever seen a 49-year-old woman in a one-piece bathing suit before. Even the girl sitting topless came down for a closer look.

Finally, I could stand it no longer. I grabbed a towel, covered myself, and ran back toward the house.

"Well, what did you expect?" asked my daughter. "You go around fully clothed like that and you're going to attract attention."

"Why should that be of any concern to anyone else?" I said, tears of shame welling in my eyes.

"Morals are everyone's business," she said, "and the answer is simple. All you have to do is conform. Just buy a two-piece suit and blend into the crowd."

"I'd think you'd be self-conscious wearing a one-piece suit. After all, your body isn't that great."

"No one asked people to look. They're the ones who are sick!"

"Okay, so wear a one-piece suit, but don't be surprised if some day a policeman comes around and orders you to take off more clothes while you're on a public beach."

"Why can't people over 40 be themselves?" I asked. "Why do we always have to do what young people tell us?"

"Because young people have lived less and know what is good for you. C'mon, you're just depressed," she said. "Slip into a pair of shorts and a midriff shirt and we'll go to the movies. There's a new one called 'Logan's Run.'"

"What's it about?" I asked.

"It's a futuristic film in which everyone over 30 is eliminated. It's a comedy."

Dr. Lester Coleman

How do you feel about the recent report that alcoholics can learn to drink again in moderation? - Mr. G. J., Tex.

Dear Mr. J.:

I am confused by this report. It's from a group of reputable scientists who have come to a rather premature conclusion that known alcoholics can again begin to drink socially without returning to their former pattern of alcohol abuse.

The report of the scientists does not agree with the findings of psychotherapists and the practical concepts of Alcoholics Anonymous and the National Council on Alcoholism.

The physical and psychological accomplishments of alcoholics are too great to be toyed with. The possibility that a few known alcoholics might be returned to a life of "social drinking" is far too great a risk, in my opinion, in view of the overwhelming majority who would again return to their former destructive patterns.

I do not deny that research should continue on alcoholism as a personal and family disease. The possibility that alcoholism has genetic, hereditary and metabolic implications must be pursued just as diligently as is the cause and cure for other illnesses.

Only in this way can this and other scourges of mankind be eliminated or controlled.

Those who have been able to conquer alcoholism and return to productive, serviceable lives must not be tempted by "scientific studies" until there is positive knowledge of the safety of such a course.

Extended scientific programs must satisfactorily explain why alcoholism tends to follow a family pattern. They must also explain why alcoholics totter on the brink of destruction before they embark on a program of rehabilitation.

Scientists must also positively explain why even with the most intensive programs some alcoholics continue to "break" and begin new bouts of drinking.

I cannot deny the statistical reports of the scientific evaluators who arrived at the conclusion that four per cent of alcoholics can again begin their drinking patterns. I can very specifically relate my own scientific study of one case.

A patient of mine, aged 29, enthusiastically received the news of the research findings that you refer to. He has been on a 10-day binge of heavy drinking which has undone eight years of intensive effort to free him from the albatross of alcoholism.

OSWALD: "As we have tried to point out so many times a large part of the difference between bad play, good play and expert play lies in the planning at at trick one."

Jim: "Six hearts certainly is a good contract. You have eleven tricks and can get an easy twelfth by a successful finesse for the king of spades."

OSWALD: "A good play sees an extra chance. He can discard his low club on the king of diamonds and ruff a club. Then, if clubs break 3-3 dummy's fourth club becomes his twelfth trick."

JIM: "You can see that clubs don't break and that the spade finesse is going to lose. Nevertheless, the expert has no trouble with the hand."

OSWALD: "He simply draws trumps, cashes his king, then dummy's ace of clubs, discards his last club on dummy's king of diamonds and ruffs a third club. East shows out but our expert isn't bothered. He gets back to dummy with a third trump, leads the last club and discards his three of spades. West wins, but has to give South his twelfth trick with a ruff and a discard or by leading a spade into South's ace-queen."

Both sides are vulnerable.

You have three defensive tricks so that there is little chance that your opponents can score a game. On the other hand, you are very weak in the major suits and the chances are that an opening bid will lead to your opponents getting a plus score. Therefore, unless you are playing with a partner who passes very big hands we recommend that you pass.

FOR TUESDAY, AUG. 3, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your compassion for the underdog makes you vulnerable today. You could be drawn into a situation where anchor's excesses become your liabilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Judgments you make lean toward what you want them to be today. This is not a healthy perspective for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In an attempt to expedite a difficult matter today, you could make frivolous promises. Unfortunately, others will believe you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Overindulgence is something you must be mindful of today. Good things will be doubly appreciated if you take them in smaller quantities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A firm hand is required today if you are to impress others. Wishy washy decisions will not inspire underlings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) While you're normally one who understates his role in everyday accomplishments, today you may be a shade too boastful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're very susceptible today in believing all on hear. A shrewd salesman could do a real number on your bank balance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't let another make important decisions for you today. If you do, you will have to pay the piper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Problems you must overcome today will be of our own making. They'll be caused by your failure to use our usual initiative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pride goeth before a fall. Your problems can be easily solved today if you don't let your pride override your good sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have the choice today of rolling up your shirt sleeves to get the job done, or resting on your laurels.

Volunteer nurses will be at the senior center Monday, Aug. 30, between 9 a.m. and noon to give blood pressure checks to interested senior citizens.

Every Thursday beginning at 1 p.m. senior citizens meet at the center to make cancer dressings. On Friday, Aug. 20, volunteers from the River Valley Senior Center will assist in taking care of an information booth, sponsored by five senior centers in Berrien county at the Berrien County Youth Fair. The booth will be open each day of the fair from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Copy Helps Owner Get Her Jewels

A store owndr made copies on her Xerox machine of some hand-made jewelry. Later, robbers entered her store and stole the pieces.

Browsing through a neighborhood chain store, shd spotted her jewelry on display. She pointed out to police the istinctive marking on the copies matched those on the jewelry. Burbank deteective soon arrested three men, who were found guilty of armed robbery and fencing stolen property.

The chain store was found to be innocent and the lady recovered her jewelry.

Shooting In Disco Kills 1, Wounds 3

DETROIT (AP) — Rosalind Brown, 15, was sitting with her boyfriend in a west side discotheque early Sunday when she died, the victim of a burst of apparently random gunshots fired into the crowded building by a gang of armed youths.

Three other persons, including the disco's security guard, were wounded when several men burst through the front door, without warning, and sprayed shots into the crowd of 200 to 300 people.

Friends of the dead girl said they believed the shooting may have been done by members of a Detroit gang, the Errol Flynns. But neither police nor the wounded security guard, 57-year-old William Jones of Detroit, could confirm that.

The gunmen fled in the confusion. Police said Sunday they are seeking two men, one about 18 years old and the other 16 or 17, but no arrests had been made.

"It was just like World War II," Jones said Sunday. "I caught the first bullet, then the crowd panicked and knocked me down. They were screaming and hollering, knocking over chairs and tables and jumping out a window somebody had broken with a chair."

Also wounded were Willa Taylor, 28, of Highland Park, and 16-year-old Janice Perkins of Detroit.

The dead girl's boyfriend, Greg Peterson, and a friend, Simona Montgomery, 14, said they had been sitting at a table near the bar when they heard "a whole bunch of people trying to force their way in the front door."

Peterson said he pushed Miss Brown down beneath the bar, but was pulled away from her by the panicking crowd.

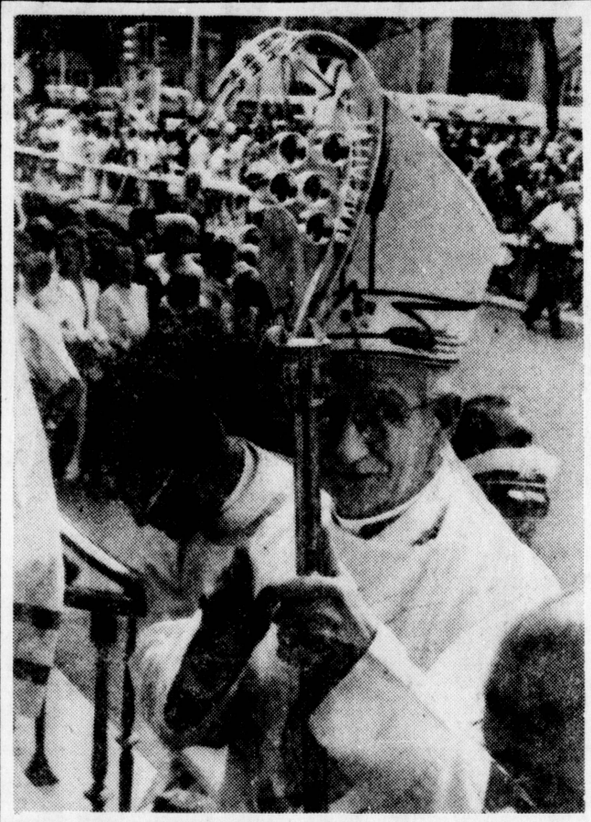

"The next thing I saw," Miss Montgomery said, "she had a hole in her back."

Peterson and Miss Montgomery said they believed the shooting may have been done by a group of youths who had been dancing in the disco earlier, and who had bragged that they were members of the Errol Flynns gang.

Police said the shooting began just after Jones refused to admit several men into the building. Jones said he thought the gunmen were "some troublemakers" he had earlier kept from entering the disco without tickets.

"I recognized some of them when they tried to bust in. They've come down here before on Friday night and tried the same thing," Jones said. "I told them they couldn't come in and slammed the door and walked away.

"Then the door opened again and they shot at me directly. There was no holdup or anything, they just went berserk and started shooting."

Catholic Congress Underway

James Cardinal Knox of Melbourne, Australia, personal emissary of Pope Paul VI, gives blessing to crowd as he walks in procession to opening mass of 41st International Eucharistic congress in Philadelphia Sunday.

Some 300,000 people watched 50,000 men, women and children Sunday in a four-hour, two-mile march, possibly the biggest religious parade in American history.

Congress ends next Sunday with mass attended by an expected 150,000, including a visit by President Ford. (AP Wirephoto)

Miners Balk At Ending Strike

By Associated Press

Picket lines today dashed the hopes of West Virginia coal operators that some miners would break ranks in a two-week-old wildcat strike that has spread to 80,000 miners in seven states.

"It didn't pan out," said a spokesman for Consolidation Coal Co. Pickets were marching at its 11 mines, which employ 3,700 men, and no workers showed up for the early shift. A spokesman at the Eastern Associated Coal Co.'s Federal No. 1 mine at Grant Town said "a carload and a truckload" of pickets appeared and no miners reported for work.

Meanwhile, many of California's canneries reopened after settlement of a harvest-time strike by 60,000 cannery workers, and the nation's air traffic controllers ended a work slowdown that caused delays at a few airports. No solution was in sight, however, for the rubber workers strike that has idled 60,000 workers for 104 days.

A weakening in the coal strike had seemed likely after United Mine Workers' District 31, representing about 20,000 miners in northern West Virginia, voted over the weekend to heed its leadership's call to return to work today.

But more than 1,500 miners in the southern areas, including the 213 members of Local 1759 who started the strike, vowed Sunday to press their walkout, despite a federal judge's offer to cancel $300,000 in fines if they went back.

Local 1759 president Hayes Holstein had predicted after the vote that "if they (miners in the north) go back, we'll just send up pickets and have them out again."

The weekend meetings had been called at the direction of UMW President Arnold Miller, who told local union presidents on Friday in Charleston, W.Va., to order their members back to work.

The miners said they would not return unless they got to meet with officials of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association to discuss their grievances. They claim the association relies too much on the courts to solve disputes which could be handled at the local level through union grievance procedures.

Local 1759 struck last month over a job-posting grievance at the Cedar Coal Co. mines. When a judge fined the local $50,000 plus $25,000 a day, other locals joined the strike in sympathy. By Friday, an estimated 80,000 miners were out in West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Homes Are Sought For Foreign Youths

Youth for Understanding, a group sponsoring visits by foreign students to the United States for study in high school, is looking for families in Berrien, Cass, Allegan and Van Buren counties who would be willing to have the students live with them.

Marijke Schultz, executive secretary for Youth for Understanding in Michigan and Wisconsin, said host families provide room and board and the students have their own spending money. The students attend high school for a full or half year she added.

The students will come from 22 countries in Europe, South America, Africa and Asia and arrive in August or January, Miss Schultz said. About 540 students will arrive in Michigan in August, she said. Another 200 will come in January, but this group will be exclusively from South American countries.

The students become members of the families and have the same responsibilities and privileges as other children in the home. Maximum effort is made to match students and families with similar interests, Miss Schultz said.

Berrien county residents should telephone the state office at (517) 777-4420 for further information.

SMC Tuition Is Free Now For Indians

The free tuition begins under a new state law, according to David Schultz, SMC vice president for student services.

Schultz said the law requires an 18 month residency period in Michigan and verification by the Michigan Commission on Indian affairs of one-half quantum of Indian blood.

Students must also be high school graduates and maintain a grade point average of 2.0 or better at SMC, Schultz said.

THE FOUNDING fathers would be astounded to learn that 150,041,000 Americans will be eligible to vote in the forthcoming presidential election. To vote in the early days of our nation, a man had to "have a stake in society." He had to own property or prove he paid taxes. And a man had to be "free, white and 21" to have a say in choosing the new nation's leaders, The World Almanac reports.

Mentally Ill, Retarded Can Ballot Tuesday, Too

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Thousands of the mentally ill or retarded are eligible to vote in Michigan elections.

But determining just how many have registered is an impossible task.

A citizen's complaint to election officials in Grand Rapids indicated one foster care home alone has registered 50 mentally retarded adults in time for Tuesday's primary.

The man complained to the city clerk's office but Clerk Rawson Weaver said "there's nothing in the law that says they can't vote."

Weaver said the state Constitution provides that the Legislature may pass laws restricting the voting rights of the mentally incompetent but has failed to do so.

"We're not complaining but the people are complaining to us because this is being done. It's being done because there is nothing in the law to say it can't be done," Weaver added.

He said the problem has caused enough concern that the Municipal Clerks Association will discuss it "for some action" during a meeting of the Michigan Municipal League at Lansing Sept. 8-10.

A state elections official said he too has no idea how many mentally handicapped persons are registered voters.

"I wouldn't have the slightest idea how anyone could come up with a figure like that," said a spokesman for the Secretary of State's elections division.

He said there have been complaints from some areas with state mental institutions. He cited specifically LaPeer, which had to set aside a special machine for such voters several years ago "because they were taking anywhere from a minute to an hour and a half to vote."

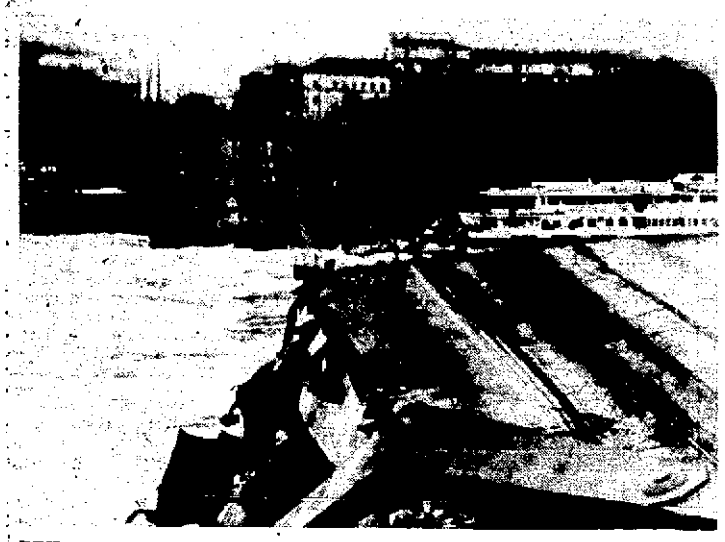

But LaPeer has reported no recent problems with such voters, he said.

"Actually, they're just as capable of registering as you or I," said Joe McCall, information director for the state Mental Health Department.

He said several state laws allow mental patients or the retarded to vote. "It's just one of these rights people have," McCall said. However, he added, "I don't see it as any threat to society because only a very small percentage do register and vote."

McCall also said he has no figures on the number who have registered. "That's as hard to know as how many blue-eyed voters there are," he said.

Only persons declared incompetent by court action are barred from voting among the state's more than 10,000 institutionalized retarded and mentally ill patients, McCall said, adding that only a tiny fraction of such patients have been held to be incompetent.

BRIDGE DOWN: Vienna's Imperial Bridge (Reichsbrueckel) caved in Sunday morning. Divers were hunting for clues to the cause of the collapse. Four people were believed to have died. (AP Wirephoto)

Vienna Puts Guards On Bridges After One Falls

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Mayor Leopold Gratz stationed guards on Vienna's remaining Danube River bridges as divers looked today for some clue to the cause of the collapse of the 1,560-foot central span of the Empire Bridge.

Officials said shipping on the Danube might be held up for several weeks.

Despite suspicions of sabotage, bomb experts found no evidence of exposives in the wreckage of the landmark suspension bridge which fell into the river about 5 a.m. Sunday. But the mayor ordered special guards for the rest of the bridges as a precaution.

Four young people were believed to have drowned when the bridge collapsed under their car.

"They must have dropped into the Danube," said a motorist whose car had stalled at the edge of the bridge. The young people stopped to aid him, then drove onto the bridge when a repair truck arrived.

"It was like an earthquake," the motorist said. "The bridge was shaking badly before it caved in. I did not hear any explosion. I ran away as fast as I could."

A bus, empty except for the driver, also fell into the swift-flowing Danube, but the driver managed to hang on to a girder and was rescued.

The Empire Bridge, or Reichsbruecke, was first built 100 years ago during the Austro-Hungarian Empire. It was replaced in 1934 by a modern suspension span that was damaged but never put out of commission by Allied bombing in World War II.

The Soviet Army repaired it during the occupation and named it the Red Army Bridge. When the Soviets withdrew, the Viennese restored the former name.

Gratz said it had been thought that the span was in good condition.

Finland's President Visits U.P.

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — The president of Finland paid a goodwill visit Sunday to the twin cities of Houghton and Hancock and more than one quarter of the population of the Finnish-settled communities in the Upper Peninsula turned out to greet him.

President Urho Kekkonen's visit was part of a U.S. Bicentennial celebration and climaxed a four-day "Finn-Fest" celebration sponsored by the Finnish-American Bicentennial society.

Speaking to about 3,000 persons at Michigan Technological University's ice arena, the 67-year-old Kekkonen praised the area's Finnish descendents for their success in a new world.

"Most of you had a difficult time in the early days of your life in the new world of the Michigan copper country," President Kekkonen said. "But gradually you overcame your problems and difficulties through honest work."

Kekkonen said thousands of Finnish-Americans have helped to "build bridges" between Finland and the U.S. to the benefit of both nations.

Kekkonen will be the guest of President and Mrs. Ford Tuesday at a White House reception.

The Stinging Facts About Mosquitos . . .

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Some people may complain mosquitos are worse this year than last, while others say they're not so bad.

But one bug expert says that when you come right down to it, no one really knows.

"We don't have any really objective methods or systems for keeping track," said Harold Newson, associate professor of entomology at Michigan State University.

Newson said mosquitos are more common in rainy summers than in dry summers because they use standing water as breeding grounds. Michigan, he said, has 50 or so different species.

Michigan mosquitos can transmit several types of encephalitis, Newson said, but the only kind they transmit every year is California encephalitis.

This is a type that the mother mosquito can pass on to her offspring after picking it up from small mammals.

Only 11 cases were reported in Michigan last year, he said. Its symptoms are usually most severe in children.

Homeowners can spray their yards to try to get rid of the whining pests, Newson added, but the only effective control is citywide or countywide spraying to get at the basic sources of the mosquitos.

Although no one takes mosquitos censuses, Dan Mosher, an entomologist with the state Department of Natural Resources, said he thinks the mosquito population is down this year.

"This year, from what I've seen, it's really light," he said. "The mosquitos are way down from last year and so is the rain."

Mosher said mosquitos don't all come and go at the same time.

"There are a lot of different species — early, midsummer and late," he said.

Mosquitos need warm weather, and the first ones can come as early as April, Mosher said. The later ones can linger on into October if the temperature is right and there are late rains.

Mosher said a rash of encephalitis problems in Michigan last summer was particularly the result of heavy August rains.

Arms For Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has had "no control" over its sales of billions of dollars' worth of sophisticated weapons to Iran since 1972, a study by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says. Iran got a green light to buy "virtually any conventional weapons it wanted" in May 1972 when former President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with the Shah of Iran in Tehran, according to the study released Sunday.

Foreigners Flee China's Capital

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (A) — Foreign residents left Peking and Tientsin today for places of safety as the Chinese government reported 110 aftershocks — an average of nearly five an hour — in the devastated Tangshan area.

The aftershocks Saturday night and Sunday, combined with such other indications as nervous behavior of animals in the Peking Zoo, prompted new warnings from Chinese seismologists that a new major quake was imminent. It was the third such warning since Friday.

David Dean, deputy chief of the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking, said 18 wives and eight children of members of the American staff were leaving today, but there were no plans yet to evacuate any of the 31 staff members.

The British Embassy sent 50 dependents off Sunday. Planes leaving the Chinese capital were booked to capacity for the next few days with families of diplomats bound for Canton, Hong Kong or Tokyo.

Japanese correspondents in Peking said the Foreign Ministry's information bureau reported 110 aftershocks between 6 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday.

NO LOSSES, SAY REAGAN AIDES

Delegate Battle Goes On

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Republican National Convention two weeks away, the Republican delegate fight continues in the trenches between the political armies of President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

Although both sides boast they have enough votes lined up to ensure the nomination in Kansas City, independent tallies show neither candidate with the 1,130 delegates needed but with Ford ahead and inching closer.

In the past week, the battle has raged over Reagan's choice of a liberal Republican, Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, to be his running mate. Some conservative backers of the former California governor expressed dismay over the selection.

But on Sunday Reagan's campaign manager, John Sears, insisted the move has not backfired. "We haven't lost any delegates, not a one," said Sears on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

He promised to make an announcement today that he said would prove the Schweiker selection has enhanced Reagan's standing with GOP delegates from the Northeast. Reagan and Schweiker plan to make their first joint appearance Wednesday before Mississippi delegates in Jackson.

Schweiker himself echoed Sears' optimism on NBC's "Meet the Press," while Pennsylvania's senior senator, Hugh Scott, said Reagan's choice of a running mate was "a very fortunate thing" for Ford.

"It almost immediately cinched the nomination for him," said Scott, a Ford backer. Scott claimed the President already has 1,141 votes locked up.

Over the weekend, the latest Associated Press delegate poll showed Ford with 1,105 delegate votes, Reagan with 1,025 and 131 uncommitted.

Time Magazine says its count stands at 1,126 for Ford and 1,046 for Reagan. Newsweek put Ford at 1,129 and predicted the President would have 1,166 votes by the first ballot in Kansas City.

Both Ford and Reagan spent Sunday relaxing in their respective Washington and California homes. Meanwhile, Jimmy Carter, the man they hope to beat, was proving himself the scourge of the softball field in his native Plains, Ga.

Carter, continuing a post-Democratic convention break, and his Secret Service bodyguards were taking on all comers in softball. On Sunday, with the 51-year-old Democratic nominee on the mound, they rolled up their sixth and seventh straight victories against a local black all-star squad and a media team.

Carter was meeting today with advisers to plot campaign strategy and work on his campaign schedule. On Tuesday, he travels to New Hampshire to redeem a pledge to return he made during the February primary campaign there. On Wednesday, he meets with the Democratic National Committee in Washington.

Ford played host at the White House last week to several GOP state delegations. Although no receptions are scheduled this week, Ford and his backers are expected to continue canvassing uncommitted votes by phone. He also will be awaiting responses to a letter he sent Saturday to all GOP delegates and alternates asking them to list their first five choices for the second spot on the ticket.

Sears said on "Issues and Answers" that Reagan chose Schweiker to give the GOP a balanced ticket that can defeat Carter and his running mate, Minnesota Sen. Walter Mondale, in November.

"Mr. Schweiker is a quite formidable candidate ... because his constituencies happen to be those that the Republicans definitely need to crack into in the fall in order to beat Carter and Mondale," Sears said.

Probes Of Medicaid Fraud Due

LANSING, Mich. (AP) Revelations of widespread fraud in state-regulated health care programs have triggered cries for legislative probes which are scheduled to begin this week.

Sen. Bill S. Huffman, D-Madison Heights, plans to ask key state agency heads at Thursday's appropriations committee meeting why their agencies have not stemmed losses in health care programs.

Officials estimate excess charges by unscrupulous health care providers amount to between $80 million and $160 million a year.

Rep. Francis R. Spaniola, D-Corunna, has called for a "bipartisan, let - the - chips - fall - where - they - may investigation as soon as possible" into all state agencies that regulate health care.

Spaniola said he plans to introduce a resolution next month calling for a special House-Senate investigating committee with subpoena powers to summon reluctant witnesses.

Huffman and Spaniola said they want to know why more money is not being recovered by investigators whose job it is to detect fraud in health care programs.

Copy Helps Owner Get Her Jewels

A store owndr made copies on her Xerox machine of some hand-made jewelry. Later, robbers entered her store and stole the pieces.

Browsing through a neighborhood chain store, she spotted her jewelry on display. She pointed out to police the istinctive marking on the copies matched those on the jewelry. Burbank detevctive soon arrested three men, who were found guilty of armed robbery and fencing stolen property.

The chain store was found to be innocent and the lady recovered her jewelry.

Shooting In Disco Kills 1, Wounds 3

DETROIT (AP) — Rosalind Brown, 15, was sitting with her boyfriend in a west side discotheque early Sunday when she died, the victim of a burst of apparently random gunshots fired into the crowded building by a gang of armed youths.

Three other persons, including the disco's security guard, were wounded when several men burst through the front door, without warning, and sprayed shots into the crowd of 200 to 300 people.

Friends of the dead girl said they believed the shooting may have been done by members of a Detroit gang, the Errol Flynns. But neither police nor the wounded security guard, 57-year-old William Jones of Detroit, could confirm that.

The gunmen fled in the confusion. Police said Sunday they are seeking two men, one about 18 years old and the other 16 or 17, but no arrests had been made.

"It was just like World War II," Jones said Sunday. "I caught the first bullet, then the crowd panicked and knocked me down. They were screaming and hollering, knocking over chairs and tables and jumping out a window somebody had broken with a chair."

Also wounded were Willa Taylor, 28, of Highland Park, and 18-year-old Janice Perkins of Detroit.

The dead girl's boyfriend, Greg Peterson, and a friend, Simona Montgomery, 14, said they had been sitting at a table near the bar when they heard "a whole bunch of people trying to force their way in the front door."

Peterson said he pushed Miss Brown down beneath the bar, but was pulled away from her by the panicking crowd.

"The next thing I saw," Miss Montgomery said, "she had a hole in her back."

Peterson and Miss Montgomery said they believed the shooting may have been done by a group of youths who had been dancing in the disco earlier, and who had bragged that they were members of the Errol Flynns gang.

Police said the shooting began just after Jones refused to admit several men into the building. Jones said he thought the gunmen were "some troublemakers" he had earlier kept from entering the disco without tickets.

"I recognized some of them when they tried to bust in. They've come down here before on Friday night and tried the same thing," Jones said. "I told them they couldn't come in and slammed the door and walked away.

"Then the door opened again and they shot at me directly. There was no holdup or anything, they just went berserk and started shooting."

Catholic Congress Underway

James Cardinal Knox of Melbourne, Australia, personal emissary of Pope Paul VI, gives blessing to crowd as he walks in procession to opening mass of 41st International Eucharistic congress in Philadelphia Sunday.

Some 300,000 people watched 50,000 men, women and children Sunday in a four-hour, two-mile march, possibly the biggest religious parade in American history.

Congress ends next Sunday with mass attended by an expected 150,000, including a visit by President Ford. (AP Wirephoto)

Miners Balk At Ending Strike

By Associated Press

Picket lines today dashed the hopes of West Virginia coal operators that some miners would break ranks in a two-week-old wildcat strike that has spread to 80,000 miners in seven states.

"It didn't pan out," said a spokesman for Consolidation Coal Co. Pickets were marching at its 11 mines, which employ 3,700 men, and no workers showed up for the early shift. A spokesman at the Eastern Associated Coal Co.'s Federal No. 1 mine at Grant Town said "a carload and a truckload" of pickets appeared and no miners reported for work.

Meanwhile, many of California's canneries reopened after settlement of a harvest-time strike by 60,000 cannery workers, and the nation's air traffic controllers ended a work slowdown that caused delays at a few airports. No solution was in sight, however, for the rubber workers strike that has idled 60,000 workers for 104 days.

A weakening in the coal strike had seemed likely after United Mine Workers' District 31, representing about 20,000 miners in northern West Virginia, voted over the weekend to heed its leadership's call to return to work today.

But more than 1,500 miners in the southern areas, including the 213 members of Local 1759 who started the strike, vowed Sunday to press their walkout, despite a federal judge's offer to cancel $300,000 in fines if they went back.

Local 1759 president Hayes Holstein had predicted after the vote that "if they (miners in the north) go back, we'll just send up pickets and have them out again."

The weekend meetings had been called at the direction of UMW President Arnold Miller, who told local union presidents on Friday in Charleston, W.Va., to order their members back to work.

The miners said they would not return unless they got to meet with officials of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association to discuss their grievances. They claim the association relies too much on the courts to solve disputes which could be handled at the local level through union grievance procedures.

Local 1759 struck last month over a job-posting grievance at the Cedar Coal Co. mines. When a judge fined the local $50,000 plus $25,000 a day, other locals joined the strike in sympathy. By Friday, an estimated 80,000 miners were out in West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Homes Are Sought For Foreign Youths

Youth for Understanding, a group sponsoring visits by foreign students to the United States for study in high school, is looking for families in Berrien, Cass, Allegan and Van Buren counties who would be willing to have the students live with them.

Marijke Schultz, executive secretary for Youth for Understanding in Michigan and Wisconsin, said host families provide room and board and the students have their own spending money. The students attend high school for a full or half year she added.

The students will come from 22 countries in Europe, South America, Africa and Asia and arrive in August or January, Miss Schultz said. About 540 students will arrive in Michigan in August, she said. Another 200 will come in January, but this group will be exclusively from South American countries.

The students become members of the families and have the same responsibilities and privileges as other children in the home. Maximum effort is made to match students and families with similar interests, Miss Schultz said.

Berrien county residents should telephone the state office at (517) 777-4420 for further information.

Cass County residents may telephone Frank Wood, Calvin Center road, Cassopolis, 476-9333. Van Buren county residents should telephone Mrs. Donald Spencer, route 4, 65th street, South Haven, at 637-4631. Allegan County residents should contact Mrs. Richard Martin, 3807 Balsam street, N.E., Grand Rapids, 361-9484.

THE FOUNDING fathers would be astounded to learn that 150,041,000 Americans will be eligible to vote in the forthcoming presidential election. To vote in the early days of our nation, a man had to "have a stake in society." He had to own property or prove he paid taxes. And a man had to be "free, white and 21" to have a say in choosing the new nation's leaders, The World Almanac reports.

SMC Tuition Is Free Now For Indians

The free tuition begins under a new state law, according to David Schultz, SMC vice president for student services.

Schultz said the law requires an 18 month residency period in Michigan and verification by the Michigan Commission on Indian affairs of one-half quantum of Indian blood.

Students must also be high school graduates and maintain a grade point average of 2.0 or better at SMC, Schultz said.

His May Be Test Case

DETROIT — A 42-year-old twice-convicted arsonist may become the first real test of the usefulness of Michigan's new law permitting a verdict of "guilty but mentally ill." Joe McLeod, who is in the psychiatric ward of the Wayne County Jail awaiting sentencing on his most recent arson conviction last May, has been diagnosed as a paranoid, schizophrenic, alcoholic and homosexual. He is also mentally retarded. Recorder's Court Judge Susan D. Borman rendered the guilty but mentally ill verdict. Persons convicted under the new law are supposed to receive psychiatric treatment through the state Mental Health Department. They may not be released, however, until they complete their criminal sentence or are paroled through standard criminal procedures. But Mental Health and Corrections Department officials have testified before Judge Borman that the guilty but mentally ill verdict is nearly impossible to implement under current prison conditions.

Getting Less For More

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan is getting less for its federal tax dollars than any other state, according to an economic study by the National Journal. The study shows that for every $1 paid in federal taxes, Michigan receives back only 65 cents, making the state proportionally the biggest loser among the 50 states, and second from the bottom in total dollars lost. The federal study says that in 1975 the government collected an average $1,500 in taxes per person in the state, but returned only $996. The loss amounts to nearly $5 billion. Illinois had the worst total dollar return rate, losing $5.2 billion, while Ohio ranked third with a $4.6 billion difference.

The Journal, which is published by the Government Research Corp. in Washington, D.C., said the Graat Lakes states of Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin had the highest loss of any region in the U.S., while the 16 "Sunbelt" Southern states showed a balance of payments surplus of $11.5 billion.

Inspectors Visiting Herds

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State agriculture department inspectors are visiting more than 700 Michigan animal herd owners to investigate and diagnose livestock abnormalities that may be related to PBB, department director B. Dale Ball says. Field inspectors also are surveying 150 poultry flocks as part of the department's "team approach" to solving farm stock problems and determining if they are related to the PBB feed taint. Case histories are being tabulated with the help of about 500 farm owners already visited by department livestock and dairy inspectors, Ball said. About 50 owners have noted health problems for which they have requested diagnostic assistance, he said.

Bottleneck Uncorker

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — One of Michigan's traffic bottlenecks will be unplugged when the drawbridge at Zilwaukee, spanning the Saginaw River on Interstate 75, is replaced by a new immovable eight-lane structure that will allow ships to pass underneath. Officials say the new bridge will cost an estimated $53 million and is scheduled to be completed by 1981. The current drawbridge has been blamed for backing up weekend and holiday traffic for up to 30 miles when the span is lifted to accomodate river traffic.

Prison Suit Challenged

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state has asked an Ingham County Circuit Court judge to throw out a suit seeking an end to prison admissions until overcrowding eases. The attorney general's office moved for dismissal of the suit filed by the Human Rights party, according to Deputy Atty. Gen. Stanley Steinborn. Steinborn and HRP attorney Zolton Ferency said an Aug. 20 hearing will be held at 10 a.m.

The suit, filed earlier this month, asks that prison overcrowding be prohibited as cruel and unusual punishment, and seeks an order for the state to discharge prisoners now in custody and halt further admissions until prison population levels reach acceptable levels. In its motion for dismissal, the state claims the party has no standing to bring the suit and that the court lacks the power to order discharges and halt further admissions, Steinborn said.

Calling It 'Vendetta'

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Saginaw police say they believe the slaying of an 18-year-old bicyclist who was gunned down Saturday night from a passing car was the result of a feud between several families. Two men were in custody in connection with the slaying of Robert Cuellar and police were scouring the city looking for two other suspects. The two in custody, ages 19 and 20, were to be arraigned early this week in Saginaw District Court on homicide charges. A police sergeant termed the slaying a "vendetta" between several families from Saginaw. Police refused to elaborate until the other two men being sought are taken into custody.

Thousands Of Bucks Back

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Secretary of State's office says thousands of dollars have been returned to vehicle owners through Michigan's new auto repair complaint mediation service. The voluntary mediation program went into effect 10 weeks ago following a court battle over the state's new auto repair law. The service says it has handled 280 complaints and saved consumers money in 60 per cent of the cases. The service reports recovering for owners over $1,300 in each in 19 cases. Most cases involved getting repair work redone, the replacemfof parts, cash adjustments or honoring warranties.

Without The Fanfare

DETROIT (AP) — With none of the fanfare that accompanies t e start of auto contract talks, the United Auto Workers and the Big Three of the agricultural implement industry begin their traditional low-key bargaining this week on new contracts for 107,000 hourly workers. Union officials say their chief goals for new three-year contracts — paralleling those in the auto industry — include pension improvements, shortening of the work time and restrictions on subcontracting work to non-union shops.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock and Vice President Pat Greathouse lead bargainers to John Deere & Co. in Moline, Ill., today; International Harvester Co. in Chicago on Tuesday, and Caterpillar Tractor Co. in Peoria, Ill., on Wednesday. Current pacts expire Oct. 1.

Two Grabbed After Stickups

MARYSVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Marysville police arrested two Detroit teenagers, one of them reportedly wanted for murder, following separate armed robberies Saturday night. Police said a 17-year-old is scheduled to be arraigned today on armed robbery charges while another teenager has been turned over to juvenile authorities following a $600 holdup of a gas station and a party store in Marysville.

Accuse 3 In Alleged Joyride

BLOOMINGDALE — Three students at Western Michigan university, Kalamazoo, ended up in the Van Buren county jail this morning after they allegedly took a ride down the old Penn Central railroad tracks — in an automobile.

State troopers from the Paw Paw post said they found three men sleeping in an auto on the tracks about 4:15 a.m. today. The car had been driven down the tracks for about 200 yards from the nearest crossing, troopers said.

The driver, after being awakened by a trooper, backed the car down the tracks toward the crossing at CR-388 and 38½ street, troopers said.

Troopers at the scene reported that the two passengers jumped out and, with much laughing and yelling, called directions to the driver.

Once on the road again, the car immediately went into a ditch, troopers said, and at that point all three men were arrested.

Troopers said James Belcher, 20, Kalamazoo, was booked into the jail on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants. Two others, William Hartman, 24, and Wayne Webster, 22, both also from Kalamazoo, were booked on charges of drunk and disorderly, officers said. All were identified by troopers as students at WMU.

Residents living nearby had first reported seeing a car driving down the tracks at 3:15 a.m., troopers said.

Twin City Crackups Hurt Two

A Fairplain girl was injured when the car she was riding in collided with a parked auto Friday, and a Benton Harbor motorcyclist was hurt Sunday when he smashed into a telephone pole, Twin City area police reported.

St. Joseph township police said car driven by Mary Elizabeth Larson, 57, of 1067 Lavette street, Benton Harbor, struck a parked auto about 7:40 p.m. on Hoover avenue west of Colfax avenue, Fairplain. Her passenger, Denise Reeves, 6, of 542 Montezuma road, was released after treatment at Memorial hospital. No tickets were issued, police reported.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said David Tillman, 25, of 523 Columbus avenue, was riding a three-wheel motorcycle when he struck a telephone pole in a field at 4215 Territorial road, Benton township. He was treated and released from Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, after the 7:15 a.m. incident. Deputies said no tickets were issued.

Larimer County Sheriff Robert Watson said 43 bodies were in a makeshift morgue and 15 to 20 bodies had been spotted and numbered throughout the canyon. The river had been lined with tourist cabins and motels. Many are gone now.

The Big Thompson River runs down from the heights of Rocky Mountain National Park through Estes Park, some 60 miles northwest of Denver. The Big Thompson Canyon, which runs east from Estes Park toward Loveland, was the site of the worst destruction.

Watson said 76 people died in the same area in a 1962 flood.

The water ran off the mountain as rain also pelted the canyon itself. It funneled into the canyon, 150 yards wide at the most, between bluffs hundreds of feet high.

The rescue work — ferrying by helicopter, carrying wounded, leading groups out of danger by foot — was being done Sunday and today by National Guardsmen, sheriff's deputies, and search and rescue teams.

Forty National Guardsmen were airlifted in teams of two and three to bring food, water and medical supplies to those still trapped. Watson said it might be the last part of the week before all the victims finally are reached.

The dead were brought to an old hospital where they awaited identification. Officials said the process would be slow because most were recovered without clothing.

Dr. Patrick Allen, deputy county coroner, said only one positive identification had been made by early today. The victim was W. Hugh Purdy, 53, a 26-year veteran of the state patrol.

Many of the survivors were taken to a nearby high school lunchroom where local residents brought relief supplies.

The Big Thompson Canyon is some 30 miles long. The river runs along its base. Before the flood, so did the two-lane highway known as U.S. 34.

Only a few miles of the highway are intact now — and those only in segments. "The river changed its course in 30 places," said Watson. "The road from Estes Park is gone for all intents and purposes."

There were dozens of trailer camp occupants on two campgrounds in the area. "I doubt very much if they had any warning at all," Watson said. "It will be very doubtful if one-half of them got out alive."

H.I. Huggins, 63, of Redfield, Iowa, reported his motel manager said there was little to fear from the rising waters, but a few minutes later urged tenants to flee to higher ground as the water surged around their cabins.

And Jerry Alanko of nearby Estes Park said a deputy sheriff recruited him to warn nearby residents of an impending flood.

Some vacationers, said Watson, didn't want to leave even when they could be warned. "We had a little difficulty convincing people that the peaceful little mountain stream they fished in the day before was going to wash them out."

The tales the survivors told were of horror and helplessness:

—"We slept huddled together like animals," said Herta Flatter of London, who came to see the American West and wound up being rescued Sunday. "The thunderstorms just kept coming back over."

—"There were cars floating by and people inside the cars were waving flashlights for us to help them," said Alanko. "There was nothing we could do. You just had to watch them nosedive."

—"We were riding up (Route) 34 when the boulders started hitting our car," said Terri Pistone, 18, of Palatine, Ill. "We pulled over because of the visibility and because we didn't want our car smashed in. The other people around us ... discovered both ends of the road were washed out. Oh, my God! The water was so high we had to run up the mountain. Then the road started sliding into the river."

—"We sat up there and watched the whole motel go," said Mrs. Huggins, 60. "George Henry, the hotel manager, and his wife and two daughters stayed. The last we heard, they were on top of their cabin with water swirling around them."

Muddied and still wearing sodden garments, some of the survivors joked and laughed while they rummaged through racks of clothing and boxes of blankets and towels at the school where they were brought.

"It was so weird, seeing a river, where the road was," she said.

Police Bog Communist Voter Drive

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Six members of the Communist Labor Party were arrested Saturday as their five-car motorcade proceeded through city streets seeking votes to put the party on the November election ballot in Michigan.

Highland Park police said the six would be arraigned Aug. 9 in municipal court for interfering with police officers and disturbing the peace. They were released on there own recognizance.

One of those charged, Caesar Mickens of Detroit, said police made the arrests after telling those in the motorcade not to blow their car horns.

Bainbridge Ballot Name Incorrect

The Berrien county clerk's office said the name of Robert Spies will appear on the Bainbridge township ballot for the Republican trustee nomination in place of the late Edward Lull in the prary election Tuesday. The clerk's office said the name was placed on the ballot after Mr. Lull died.

It was incorrectly reported in the Voters' Guide published Saturday that Mr. Lull's name would be on the ballot. The information was based on a report of candidates issued by the clerk's office prior to Mr. Lull's death.

Benton Man Is Wounded

A Benton township man was reported in "critical" condition today at Mercy hospital with what township police said was apparently a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Police said Sammie Devine, 34, of 1171 North Shore drive, was found in the bedroom of his home with a wound in the stomach about 6:45 p.m. Sunday. A 30-30 rifle was confiscated and Devine was taken to the hospital where he reportedly underwent surgery.

NO LOSSES, SAY REAGAN AIDES

Delegate Battle Goes On

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Republican National Convention two weeks away, the Republican delegate fight continues in the trenches between the political armies of President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

Although both sides boast they have enough votes lined up to ensure the nomination in Kansas City, independent tallies show neither candidate with the 1,130 delegates needed but with Ford ahead and inching closer.

In the past week, the battle has raged over Reagan's choice of a liberal Republican, Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, to be his running mate. Some conservative backers of the former California governor expressed dismay over the selection.

But on Sunday Reagan's campaign manager, John Sears, insisted the move has not backfired. "We haven't lost any delegates, not a one," said Sears on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

He promised to make an announcement today that he said would prove the Schweiker selection has enhanced Reagan's standing with GOP delegates from the Northeast. Reagan and Schweiker plan to make their first joint appearance Wednesday before Mississippi delegates in Jackson.

Schweiker himself echoed Sears' optimism on NBC's "Meet the Press," while Pennsylvania's senior senator, Hugh Scott, said Reagan's choice of a running mate was "a very fortunate thing" for Ford.

"It almost immediately cinched the nomination for him," said Scott, a Ford backer. Scott claimed the President already has 1,141 votes locked up.

Over the weekend, the latest Associated Press delegate poll showed Ford with 1,105 delegate votes, Reagan with 1,025 and 131 uncommitted.

Time Magazine says its count stands at 1,126 for Ford and 1,048 for Reagan. Newsweek put Ford at 1,129 and predicted the President would have 1,166 votes by the first ballot in Kansas City.

Both Ford and Reagan spent Sunday relaxing in their respective Washington and California homes. Meanwhile, Jimmy Carter, the man they hope to beat, was proving himself the scourge of the softball field in his native Plains, Ga.

Carter, continuing a post-Democratic convention break, and his Secret Service bodyguards were taking on all comers in softball. On Sunday, with the 51-year-old Democratic nominee on the mound, they rolled up their sixth and seventh straight victories against a local black all-star squad and a media team.

Carter was meeting today with advisers to plot campaign strategy and work on his campaign schedule. On Tuesday, he travels to New Hampshire to redeem a pledge to return he made during the February primary campaign there. On Wednesday, he meets with the Democratic National Committee in Washington.

Ford played host at the White House last week to several GOP state delegations. Although no receptions are scheduled this week, Ford and his backers are expected to continue canvassing uncommitted votes by phone. He also will be awaiting responses to a letter he sent Saturday to all GOP delegates and alternates asking them to list their first five choices for the second spot on the ticket.

Sears said on "Issues and Answers" that Reagan chose Schweiker to give the GOP a balanced ticket that can defeat Carter and his running mate, Minnesota Sen. Walter Mondale, in November.

"Mr. Schweiker is a quite formidable candidate ... because his constituencies happen to be those that the Republicans definitely need to crack into in the fall in order to beat Carter and Mondale," Sears said.

Probes Of Medicaid Fraud Due

LANSING, Mich. (AP) Revelations of widespread fraud in state-regulated health care programs have triggered cries for legislative probes which are scheduled to begin this week.

Sen. Bill S. Huffman, D-Madison Heights, plans to ask key state agency heads at Thursday's appropriations committee meeting why their agencies have not stemmed losses in health care programs.

Officials estimate excess charges by unscrupulous health care providers amount to between $80 million and $160 million a year.

Rep. Francis R. Spaniola, D-Corunna, has called for a "bipartisan, let - the - chips - fall - where - they - may investigation as soon as possible" into all state agencies that regulate health care.

Spaniola said he plans to introduce a resolution next month calling for a special House-Senate investigating committee with subpoena powers to summon reluctant witnesses.

Huffman and Spaniola said they want to know why more money is not being recovered by investigators whose job it is to detect fraud in health care programs.

Foreigners Flee China's Capital

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (A) — Foreign residents left Peking and Tientsin today for places of safety as the Chinese government reported 110 aftershocks — an average of nearly five an hour — in the devastated Tangshan area.

The aftershocks Saturday night and Sunday, combined with such other indications as nervous behavior of animals in the Peking Zoo, prompted new warnings from Chinese seismologists that a new major quake was imminent. It was the third such warning since Friday.

David Dean, deputy chief of the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking, said 18 wives and eight children of members of the American staff were leaving today, but there were no plans yet to evacuate any of the 31 staff members.

The British Embassy sent 50 dependents off Sunday. Planes leaving the Chinese capital were booked to capacity for the next few days with families of diplomats bound for Canton, Hong Kong or Tokyo.

Japanese correspondents in Peking said the Foreign Ministry's information bureau reported 110 aftershocks between 6 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday.

Crusader Nader's Credibility Under Test

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

For more than a decade, Ralph Nader has been telling America what's wrong with it.

He has produced almost 50 major studies of the U.S. market place and the government agencies that regulate it. His research groups have followed up with petitions, lawsuits and lobbying.

PART I: Nader The Campaigner

Nader's most sweeping studies have also been the ones most vulnerable to attack. There have been factual errors, arguments over conclusions unsupported by the facts, an uneven level of accuracy.

The follow-up efforts have a better record of success, with numerous court victories and government actions to their credit.

Nader stands by all the reports, most of which have been produced by researchers and lawyers at his Center for Study of Responsive Law. "We have the highest accuracy rate in modern history." He says it is in his own interest to be right. "If you really bloop one ... you start losing your credibility."

One early Nader report, on the Federal Trade Commission, was echoed later by an American Bar Association study. Proposals in several of his antitrust studies have become law or are pending in Congress.

Nader's first major battle was with General Motors over the safety of the Corvair. Nader gained public attention with his book, "Unsafe at Any Speed," with congressional testimony on autos and with the disclosure that GM hired a private detective to investigate his personal life.

The battle ended in a draw. The automobile is no longer on the market and Nader said cars as a whole are safer today. But neither side ever backed down.

In 1972, six years after Nader started his campaign, the Department of Transportation concluded that the car was no more likely to turn over than other cars of the same year and weight and General Motors said its position had been confirmed.

At the same time, a department panel recommended that owners of early model Corvairs be told of need for special handling. The department did not include the panel recommendation in its report, but, government officials later announced that owners of the car would indeed get warning letters.

About half a dozen of Nader's reports have stirred particularly serious criticism: his profiles of individual members of Congress, a report on DuPont and Delaware, a study of land use in California, a finding that the Volkswagen was "the most dangerous car" on the highway; a look at consumer complaints and how they are handled.

The Associated Press made a detailed study of several Nader reports in 1972, including the ones on DuPont and California. DuPont cited 43 errors; the AP found slightly more than one-third constituted clear-cut mistakes while the rest were open to debate.

Among the errors were five mistakes resulting from the researchers' use of published figures that turned out to be incorrect. The report also erroneously said that DuPont supported a coastal land-use bill and that DuPont selected a minority business development plan which had, in fact, been chosen by the independent Black Alliance.

The AP also found substantive mistakes in the California land use report including an erroneous statement that Rep. John E. Moss, R-Calif., hosted a meeting of lobbyists trying to block a state land use bill. Nader apologized in a letter to Moss.

Some of Nader's own staff members or former staff members concede that the congressional profiles were poorly done, partly because the task was enormous, the time of the study was short and part-time researchers were responsible for much of the work.

"Some of the reports were not of the highest quality," said John Esposito, who formerly worked at the Center for Study of Responsive Law. He cited the 1972 Congress Project as one example and said it was "unmanageable within the given length of time."

Mark Green, on leave as director of Nader's Corporate Accountability Research Group, worked on the Congress Project, which resulted in a book, "Who Runs Congress?" as well as the profiles. He described it as "an enormous bite ... It was a great success and a great failure because it took on so much."

Another source, who declined to be identified, said the individual profiles contained many errors. He said Nader always promised to correct the errors in later printings. Since the makeup of Congress changed and many of those profiled no longer held public office, the corrections — and subsequent printings — became moot.

Nader says he issues his reports in draft form. He gives them to the news media for release five days later. At the same time, he gives the reports to those criticized. That lead time, he says, allows targets of the reports to respond and allows the news media to check potential errors. Mistakes, he says, are corrected in later versions.

Lowell Dodge, former director of the Center for Auto Safety, with which Nader worked closely, said, "Whenever there was an error, Ralph would go out of his way to correct it. He would do it quietly, without publicity, but he would do it."

Dodge himself was at odds with Nader over a report involving the safety of the Volkswagen. Nader critic David Sanford quotes Dodge as saying that Nader insisted on distorting the conclusion of the 1971 report to say that the Volkswagen was "the most hazardous car in use in significant numbers in the U.S. today." Dodge says the word "most" was inaccurate because information about the safety of comparable cars was unavailable. Road & Track Magazine also criticized the report and recommended that it be recalled.

In a recent interview, Dodge said of the Sanford account: "There are elements of truth and elements of distortion ... Ralph wanted a stronger conclusion ... We all agreed that the Volkswagen was a dangerous car. The argument was over the degree of danger."

Nader was asked whether he ignored the facts in writing the conclusion.

"That was my report. I put my name on it," said Nader, adding that he, Dodge and seven other persons worked on the report.

"Did you ignore the facts?"

"Everyone agreed with me," Nader said. "Dodge never told me he was unhappy." Nader also said Dodge also did not disclose that he was in touch with Volkswagen officials while working on the report.

"Did you ignore the facts?"

One of the center's most recent reports, on customer satisfaction, was a joint project of Nader and Call for Action, Inc., a 40-city network of volunteers, supported by broadcasters, who try to help consumers resolve their problems.

Ellen Sulzberger Straus, founder of Call for Action, said she and Arthur Best, a center lawyer, argued over the report. She said Call for Action insisted that an "executive summary" be included with the report. "Without the executive summary," she said, "it is somewhat distorted."

One problem centered over the distinction between people who had a specific complaint with a product and people who had no actual complaint, but felt the item could have been better. The summary stresses the distinction; the report puts both groups together.

Nader said the arguments were not serious. "I think they (Call for Action) were more concerned about industry reaction (than we were)."

Best, who is leaving the center to become a law school teacher, also said the disagreements were "extremely minor." He said the executive summary was "essentially a recap."

It is difficult to draw a cause-and-effect chart on Nader's campaigns. Most of his study reports spotlighted problems rather than suggesting solutions.

Green, asked to cite concrete accomplishments as a result of the Nader reports, said: "It's a long list. One problem though. A report is issued. In the next four years, an enormous percentage of it becomes policy, either by legislation or regulation. It's slightly presumptuous to claim a causal connection."

Nader said there have been changes. "Cars are definitely safer, across the board. Most of the drug companies are more careful in their testing. Toys on the whole are safer."

In recent years, Nader has produced fewer reports, concentrating on research groups to provide follow-up action.

The record of these groups shows a fair degree of success:

—Statistics from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration show that through March 1976, 41.5 million domestic and 7.8 million imported cars have been recalled. Auto expert Dodge says about half the recalls since 1966 were actions advocated by his group. "We got most of the biggies," he said.

Dodge also said that the rate of highway deaths has dropped from 5.3 per 100 million vehicle miles to 3.4 per 100 million vehicle miles. Part of the decrease is due to the lower speed limit, he said. The rest is due to safer automobiles.

One Nader campaign that has not been successful has been his drive for installation of air bags in automobiles. The Transportation Department is about to hold another hearing on the question.

One of the group's first targets was Red Dye No. 2, which has been linked to cancer in rats and until recently was one of the most widely used food colorings. The FDA banned the dye five months ago and the ban was recently upheld by a federal appeals court.

It took less time to get action on another issue: hexachlorophene. Wolfe and Nader urged in November 1971, that products containing hexachlorophene be removed from the open market. The FDA announced a ban on nonprescription sales of the drug in September 1972.

In June 1975 the Health Research Group urged the FDA to revoke permission for use of the food additive, trichloroethylene, TCE, used in decaffeinated coffee. The agency recently announced it would ban the chemical, known to cause liver cancer in rats.

The research group also was among the first to recognize the dangers of vinyl chloride, a plastics chemical that has been linked to cancer, birth defects and genetic injuries. The government banned its use as a propellant in aerosols, has proposed standards reducing emissions from manufacturing plants and is in the final stages of banning vinyl chloride in food packaging.

"Most of the issues we've gotten into, the government has moved," Wolfe said. "We try not to give up, even when there is no measurable success."

Wolfe said he and his staff select projects where there is strong evidence of a problem and where there is a chance of having some impact. "We try to stay away from issues where there isn't some clear cut danger," he said.

—Nader's Litigation Group has met with similar success. As a result of lawsuits initiated by the group, headed by Alan Morrison, the Supreme Court ruled that fee schedules used by Virginia lawyers violated antitrust laws; overturned a Virginia ban on prescription drug advertising; and upheld the right of a consumer to sue in the federal courts when he has been bumped from an airline flight because of overbooking. (The later case involved Nader himself; he won a $25,000 judgment from Allegheny Airlines.)

"I think we have a very good reputation for doing quality legal work," said Morrison. He said the establishment of the Litigation Group taught government and business officials that the Nader people "don't just file reports and write petitions. We'll go to court to get them enforced."

Judge Zoe Shaffer
BURKHOLZ
for CIRCUIT COURT

Judge Zoe Shaffer Burkholz... Doing a good job now as Probate and Acting Circuit Judge.

Here's why Judge Burkholz is the best qualified candidate for Circuit Judge:

- practical experience as a working attorney – over 25 years experience in the private practice of civil law before our state courts at all levels. No other candidate has this experience.
- judicial experience as a probate judge – Probate and Circuit Court are the only two local courts with substantially similar applications of criminal and family law. No other candidate has this experience.
- actual experience as an acting circuit judge – Judge Burkholz has heard over 1,000 Circuit Court matters since being appointed an Acting Circuit Judge by the State Supreme Court in 1974. No other candidate has this experience.

In fact, Judge Burkholz has more years of legal and judicial experience than both other candidates combined. And, Judge Burkholz is the only candidate with actual Circuit Court judicial experience.

We are fortunate to have three well-qualified Circuit Judges now. Help us elect a fourth Berrien County Circuit Judge of equal caliber.

Today In MICHIGAN

His May Be Test Case

DETROIT — A 42-year-old twice-convicted arsonist may become the first real test of the usefulness of Michigan's new law permitting a verdict of "guilty but mentally ill." Joe McLeod, who is in the psychiatric ward of the Wayne County Jail awaiting sentencing on his most recent arson conviction last May, has been diagnosed as a paranoid, schizophrenic, alcoholic and homosexual. He is also mentally retarded. Recorder's Court Judge Susan D. Borman rendered the guilty but mentally ill verdict. Persons convicted under the new law are supposed to receive psychiatric treatment through the state Mental Health Department. They may not be released, however, until they complete their criminal sentence or are paroled through standard criminal procedures. But Mental Health and Corrections Department officials have testified before Judge Borman that the guilty but mentally ill verdict is nearly impossible to implement under current prison conditions.

Getting Less For More

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan is getting less for its federal tax dollars than any other state, according to an economic study by the National Journal. The study shows that for every $1 paid in federal taxes, Michigan receives back only 65 cents, making the state proportionally the biggest loser among the 50 states, and second from the bottom in total dollars lost. The federal study says that in 1975 the government collected an average $1,500 in taxes per person in the state, but returned only $996. The loss amounts to nearly $5 billion. Illinois had the worst total dollar return rate, losing $5.2 billion, while Ohio ranked third with a $4.6 billion difference.

The Journal, which is published by the Government Research Corp. in Washington, D.C., said the Great Lakes states of Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin had the highest loss of any region in the U.S., while the 15 "Sunbelt" Southern states showed a balance of payments surplus of $11.5 billion.

Inspectors Visiting Herds

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State agriculture department inspectors are visiting more than 700 Michigan animal herd owners to investigate and diagnose livestock abnormalities that may be related to PBB, department director B. Dale Ball says. Field inspectors also are surveying 150 poultry flocks as part of the department's "team approach" to solving farm stock problems and determining if they are related to the PBB feed taint. Case histories are being tabulated with the help of about 500 farm owners already visited by department livestock and dairy inspectors, Ball said. About 50 owners have noted health problems for which they have requested diagnostic assistance, he said.

Bottleneck Uncorker

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — One of Michigan's traffic bottlenecks will be unplugged when the drawbridge at Zilwaukee, spanning the Saginaw River on Interstate 75, is replaced by a new immovable eight-lane structure that will allow ships to pass underneath. Officials say the new bridge will cost an estimated $53 million and is scheduled to be completed by 1981. The current drawbridge has been blamed for backing up weekend and holiday traffic for up to 30 miles when the span is lifted to accomodate river traffic.

Prison Suit Challenged

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state has asked an Ingham County Circuit Court judge to throw out a suit seeking an end to prison admissions until overcrowding eases. The attorney general's office moved for dismissal of the suit filed by the Human Rights party, according to Deputy Atty. Gen. Stanley Steinborn. Steinborn and HRP attorney Zolton Ferency said an Aug. 20 hearing will be held at 10 a.m.

The suit, filed earlier this month, asks that prison overcrowding be prohibited as cruel and unusual punishment, and seeks an order for the state to discharge prisoners now in custody and halt further admissions until prison population levels reach acceptable levels. In its motion for dismissal, the state claims the party has no standing to bring the suit and that the court lacks the power to order discharges and halt further admissions, Steinborn said.

Calling It 'Vendetta'

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Saginaw police say they believe the slaying of an 18-year-old bicyclist who was gunned down Saturday night from a passing car was the result of a feud between several families. Two men were in custody in connection with the slaying of Robert Cuellar and police were scouring the city looking for two other suspects. The two in custody, ages 19 and 20, were to be arraigned early this week in Saginaw District Court on homicide charges. A police sergeant termed the slaying a "vendetta" between several families from Saginaw. Police refused to elaborate until the other two men being sought are taken into custody.

Thousands Of Bucks Back

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Secretary of State's office says thousands of dollars have been returned to vehicle owners through Michigan's new auto repair complaint mediation service. The voluntary mediation program went into effect 10 weeks ago following a court battle over the state's new auto repair law. The service says it has handled 280 complaints and saved consumers money in 60 per cent of the cases. The service reports recovering for owners over $1,300 in each in 19 cases. Most cases involved getting repair work redone, the replacemfnf parts, cash adjustments or honoring warranties.

Without The Fanfare

DETROIT (AP) — With none of the fanfare that accompanies t e start of auto contract talks, the United Auto Workers and the Big Three of the agricultural implement industry begin their traditional low-key bargaining this week on new contracts for 107,000 hourly workers. Union officials say their chief goals for new three-year contracts — paralleling those in the auto industry — include pension improvements, shortening of the work time and restrictions on subcontracting work to non-union shops.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock and Vice President Pat Greathouse lead bargainers to John Deere & Co. in Moline, Ill., today; International Harvester Co. in Chicago on Tuesday, and Caterpillar Tractor Co. in Peoria, Ill., on Wednesday. Current pacts expire Oct. 1.

Two Grabbed After Stickups

MARYSVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Marysville police arrested two Detroit teenagers, one of them reportedly wanted for murder, following separate armed robberies Saturday night. Police said a 17-year-old is scheduled to be arraigned today on armed robbery charges while another teenager has been turned over to juvenile authorities following a $600 holdup of a gas station and a party store in Marysville.

Accuse 3 In Alleged Joyride

BLOOMINGDALE — Three students at Western Michigan university, Kalamazoo, ended up in the Van Buren county jail this morning after they allegedly took a ride down the old Penn Central railroad tracks — in an automobile.

State troopers from the Paw Paw post said they found three men sleeping in an auto on the tracks about 4:15 a.m. today. The car had been driven down the tracks for about 200 yards from the nearest crossing, troopers said.

The driver, after being awakened by a trooper, backed the car down the tracks toward the crossing at CR-388 and 38½ street, troopers said.

Troopers at the scene reported that the two passengers jumped out and, with much laughing and yelling, called directions to the driver.

Once on the road again, the car immediately went into a ditch, troopers said, and at that point all three men were arrested.

Troopers said James Belcher, 20, Kalamazoo, was booked into the jail on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants. Two others, William Hartman, 24, and Wayne Webster, 22, both also from Kalamazoo, were booked on charges of drunk and disorderly, officers said. All were identified by troopers as students at WMU.

Residents living nearby had first reported seeing a car driving down the tracks at 3:15 a.m., troopers said.

Twin City Crackups Hurt Two

A Fairplain girl was injured when the car she was riding in collided with a parked auto Friday, and a Benton Harbor motorcyclist was hurt Sunday when he smashed into a telephone pole, Twin City area police reported.

St. Joseph township police said car driven by Mary Elizabeth Larson, 17, of 1067 Lavette street, Benton Harbor, struck a parked auto about 7:40 p.m. on Hoover avenue west of Colfax avenue, Fairplain. Her passenger, Denise Reeves, 6, of 542 Montezuma road, was released after treatment at Memorial hospital. No tickets were issued, police reported.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said David Tillman, 25, of 323 Columbus avenue, was riding a three-wheel motorcycle when he struck a telephone pole in a field at 4215 Territorial road, Benton township. He was treated and released from Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, after the 7:15 a.m. incident. Deputies said no tickets were issued.

Flooded Stream Becomes Killer

Larimer County Sheriff Robert Watson said 43 bodies were in a makeshift morgue and 15 to 20 bodies had been spotted and numbered throughout the canyon. The river had been lined with tourist cabins and motels. Many are gone now.

The Big Thompson River runs down from the heights of Rocky Mountain National Park through Estes Park, some 60 miles northwest of Denver. The Big Thompson Canyon, which runs east from Estes Park toward Loveland, was the site of the worst destruction.

Watson said 78 people died in the same area in a 1962 flood.

The water ran off the mountain as rain also pelted the canyon itself. It funneled into the canyon, 150 yards wide at the most, between bluffs hundreds of feet high.

The rescue work — ferrying by helicopter, carrying wounded, leading groups out of danger by foot — was being done Sunday and today by National Guardsmen, sheriff's deputies and search and rescue teams.

Forty National Guardsmen were airlifted in teams of two and three to bring food, water and medical supplies to those still trapped. Watson said it might be the last part of the week before all the victims finally are reached.

The dead were brought to an old hospital where they awaited identification. Officials said the process would be slow because most were recovered without clothing.

Dr. Patrick Allen, deputy county coroner, said only one positive identification had been made by early today. The victim was W. Hugh Purdy, 53, a 26-year veteran of the state patrol.

Many of the survivors were taken to a nearby high school lunchroom where local residents brought relief supplies.

The Big Thompson Canyon is some 30 miles long. The river runs along its base. Before the flood, so did the two-lane highway known as U.S. 34.

Only a few miles of the highway are intact now — and those only in segments. "The river changed its course in 30 places," said Watson. "The road from Estes Park is gone for all intents and purposes."

There were dozens of trailer camp occupants on two campgrounds in the area. "I doubt very much if they had any warning at all," Watson said. "It will be very doubtful if one-half of them got out alive."

H.I. Huggins, 69, of Redfield, Iowa, reported his motel manager said there was little to fear from the rising waters, but a few minutes later urged tenants to flee to higher ground as the water surged around their cabins.

And Jerry Alanko of nearby Estes Park said a deputy sheriff recruited him to warn nearby residents of an impending flood.

Some vacationers, said Watson, didn't want to leave even when they could be warned. "We had a little difficulty convincing people that the peaceful little mountain stream they fished in the day before was going to wash them out."

The tales the survivors told were of horror and helplessness:

—"We slept huddled together like animals," said Herta Flatter of London, who came to see the American West and wound up being rescued Sunday. "The thunderstorms just kept coming back over."

—"There were cars floating by and people inside the cars were waving flashlights for us to help them," said Alanko. "There was nothing we could do. You just had to watch them nosedive."

—"We were riding up (Route) 34 when the boulders started hitting our car," said Terri Pistone, 18, of Palatine, Ill. "We pulled over because of the visibility and because we didn't want our car smashed in. The other people around us ... discovered both ends of the road were washed out. Oh, my God! The water was so high we had to run up the mountain. Then the road started sliding into the river."

—"We sat up there and watched the whole motel go," said Mrs. Huggins, 60. "George Henry, the hotel manager, and his wife and two daughters stayed. The last we heard, they were on top of their cabin with water swirling around them."

Muddied and still wearing sodden garments, some of the survivors joked and laughed while they rummaged through racks of clothing and boxes of blankets and towels at the school where they were brought.

"It was so weird, seeing a river, where the road was," she said.

Police Bog Communist Voter Drive

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Six members of the Communist Labor Party were arrested Saturday as their five-car motorcade proceeded through city streets seeking votes to put the party on the November election ballot in Michigan.

Highland Park police said the six would be arraigned Aug. 9 in municipal court for interfering with police officers and disturbing the peace. They were released on there own recognizance.

One of those charged, Caesar Mickens of Detroit, said police made the arrests after telling those in the motorcade not to blow their car horns.

Bainbridge Ballot Name Incorrect

The Berrien county clerk's office said the name of Robert Spies will appear on the Bainbridge township ballot for the Republican trustee nomination in place of the late Edward Lull in the prary election Tuesday. The clerk's office said the name was placed on the ballot after Mr. Lull died.

It was incorrectly reported in the Voters' Guide published Saturday that Mr. Lull's name would be on the ballot. The information was based on a report of candidates issued by the clerk's office prior to Mr. Lull's death.

Benton Man Is Wounded

A Benton township man was reported in "critical" condition today at Mercy hospital with what township police said was apparently a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Police said Sammie Devine, 34, of 1171 North Shore drive, was found in the bedroom of his home with a wound in the stomach about 6:45 p.m. Sunday. A 30-30 rifle was confiscated and Devine was taken to the hospital where he reportedly underwent surgery.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Pair Arrested After Explosion

Berrien Sheriff's Sgt. Jack Knuth said two young men were arrested early today when three pistols and a box of military explosives were confiscated from a car he stopped in Benton township.

Knuth said he observed a car in the Belscot store parking lot, 1800 M-139, being driven recklessly. He said as he watched the car a large explosion occurred nearby. The explosion was in the parking lot and did no damage.

After stopping the car on Milton street, Knuth said he observed the box of explosives in the rear seat and found .38, .45 and .25-caliber pistols inside. He said the explosives were military "artillery simulators," used for training purposes. He reported the explosives are very powerful, but contain no shrapnel as do hand grenades.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of carrying concealed weapons were Malcom Dan Pike, 17, route 1, box 99, Shanghai road, Eau Claire, and Ricky J. Smith, 21, Fayetteville, N.C. Smith was also issued a citation for careless driving, Knuth said.

A Pipestone township man told Berrien sheriff's officers he discovered the theft of about $2,000 in goods and cash from his home when he returned from vacation.

Russell Stolfo, 4269 Clawson road, said eight rifles and shotguns, some antiques, and a pistol were taken as well as $520 in cash and a filing cabinet with all the family's personal records. Also reported stolen were hand and power tools, two televisions, golf clubs, hi-fi equipment, musical instruments and other household goods.

Carl McPike, South Bend, Ind., told St. Joseph township police Friday that two diamond rings valued at between $800 and $1,100 were stolen from his boat docked at Whispering Willows marina, 2383 Niles road.

McPike told police the rings were both men's, one a Masonic ring with a 58-point diamond, the other had a 25-point diamond, and both were gold.

Benton Harbor police said a clergyman reported his home was burglarized Sunday while he was at church and $194 stolen including $169 that was in church envelopes.

Rev. Howard Thomas, 1137 Pavone street, pastor of the Tabernacle Church of God in Christ, 787 Superior street, told police the home was ransacked and in addition to the cash a woman's turquoise ring was also taken. He said the theft occurred between 10 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. when he was at the church. Police said entry was made through a bathroom window.

Other thefts reported to Benton Harbor police:

Three citizens' band radios were reported stolen from cars in the Millburg area, Sunday, Benton township police reported.

Lee McNitt, Territorial road, said his radio was stolen from his car parked outside his home. Melvin Archer and Randy Antio, both of Third street, said their CBs were taken from their cars parked in a lot at the rear of Louis Gelder & Sons farm equipment company, Third street.

Three Illinois men were booked Saturday on charges of violating the controlled substance act (possession of marijuana) after State Trooper Charles Longenbarger inspected a parked van truck to see if occupants needed assistance.

The truck was reported parked on the shoulder off I-196, Benton township about 5:30 p.m. Longenbarger said he saw a beer can on the floorboard and made arrests after seeing suspected marijuana.

Vandals over the weekend slashed upholstery on the backs of front seats in between 25 to 30 autos, parked in lot of Square Deal Auto Salvage, 1091 Territorial road, Benton township, according to township police.

Police said the firm was to junk the vehicles but seats normally could be removed and sold. The seats were reported a total loss. The complaint was filed with police at 8:19 p.m. Saturday.

Several youths suspected of shooting dice in a field in Benton township fled in all directions when township Sgt. James Lester and Patrolman Jimmie Coburn approached about 8:32 p.m. Saturday. While the suspects escaped, the officers confiscated a bicycle and a jacket, left behind on the 1000 block of Highland avenue.

Mechanic May Be Alibi For Accused Kidnaper

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — A mechanic who worked for Frederick N. Woods has told the San Francisco Examiner that he saw Woods 150 miles from Chowchilla on the afternoon a busload of school children was kidnaped here.

"I saw Fred Thursday, July 15, and there was not a thing different about him, not a thing," Craig Hunt, 18, told the Examiner.

Hunt, who repaired old cars for Woods, said Woods was at his parents' 100-acre Portola Valley estate between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. the day the 26 children and their bus driver were kidnaped. Woods was arrested last Thursday at a Vancouver, Canada, post office where he had gone to pick up mail.

Woods, James Schoenfeld, 24, and his brother, Richard Schoenfeld, 22, were all charged in the kidaping. Bail is set at $1 million each.

Portola Valley is more than three hours from Chowchilla by car, and the bus was hijacked at about 4 p.m. It was about 4:30 p.m. on that day when worried parents started calling authorities to say that the bus, which had taken the children on a summer outing, was overdue.

An investigator said tests indicated that the battery power operating the fans that carried air into the buried van in which the children and the bus driver were held captive would have failed 48 hours after the victims freed themselves.

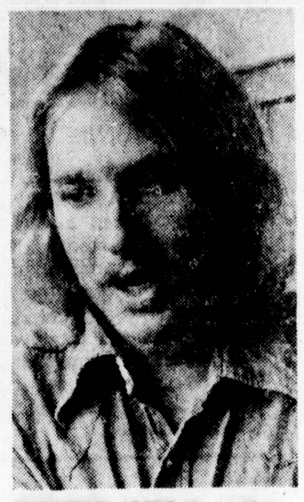

"We would have had one big coffin," he said.

Hunt said he has been questioned by detectives, but there was no immediate official comment on his statements indicating a possible alibi for Woods.

The FBI said surveillance of a female friend of Woods' in Palo Alto led to his capture after he telephoned asking her to send him a package. The arrest in Canada took place five hours after the elder Schoenfeld was grabbed in Menlo Park.

Authorities have said they have not ruled out the possibility that others may also have been involved in the kidnaping.

The elder Schoenfeld and Woods are to be arraigned Wednesday on 43 felony charges. The younger Schoenfeld pleaded innocent last Thursday at his arraignment and will go back to court on Wednesday, when the date for a preliminary hearing is to be set.

POSSIBLE ALIBI: Craig Hunt, 18, who worked for Frederick N. Woods says he may be able to furnish his boss an alibi for the day authorities says Woods helped kidnap a busload of school children. Hunt told the San Francisco Examiner Woods was at the home of his parents between 1 and 2 p.m. The bus was commandeered about 4 p.m. four hours from the Woods home by car. (AP Wirephoto)

DROUGHT

PT. REYES STATION, Calif. (AP) — The driest Northern California rainy season in 127 years has turned the hills around this tiny beach town a parched brown and caused a serious water shortage. The summer tourist trade is the lifeblood of many businesses along the beach north of San Francisco, and it is down sharply this year, apparently because of the area's water shortage.

Elect Tom McGrath Supervisor

Because Tom McGrath led the way . . .

Lincoln Township still has Red Arrow Highway

For several weeks, Red Arrow Highway has been closed for bridge repairs and Lincoln Township residents now know how important this highway is to our community. Tom McGrath led the fight to save this highway when the State almost decided to let beach erosion destroy it!

Lincoln Township will have its second full I-94 Interchange.

For over 12 years, Tom McGrath has spearheaded the program to bring a second full interchange to the Township. Recently, the Highway Department has announced they will start construction next year.

Lincoln Township has a street lighting program

Before Tom McGrath launched the drive for a street lighting district, Lincoln Township had no street lights and no program. Now, there are lights at all major intersections as well as an established program to expand this lighting.

In spite of fatal accidents, nothing was done to safeguard Lincoln Township residents until Tom McGrath joined with other civic leaders to get automatic crossing signals installed at all major crossings in the Township. Where there were none, now there is a fully automatic, lighted signal at each of the six major crossings in the Township.

Tom McGrath will get Lincoln Township going by . . .

1. Developing realistic plans for orderly growth
2. Rapidly completing sewer and water system
3. Bringing in new industry to area to protect our low tax rate
4. Protecting recreation facilities and natural beauty of the area

Get Lincoln Township going!

Crusader Nader's Credibility Under Test

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

For more than a decade, Ralph Nader has been telling America what's wrong with it.

He has produced almost 50 major studies of the U.S. market place and the government agencies that regulate it. His research groups have followed up with petitions, lawsuits and lobbying.

PART I: Nader The Campaigner

Nader's most sweeping studies have also been the ones most vulnerable to attack. There have been factual errors, arguments over conclusions unsupported by the facts, an uneven level of accuracy.

The follow-up efforts have a better record of success, with numerous court victories and government actions to their credit.

Nader stands by all the reports, most of which have been produced by researchers and lawyers at his Center for Study of Responsive Law. "We have the highest accuracy rate in modern history." He says it is in his own interest to be right. "If you really bloop one ... you start losing your credibility."

One early Nader report, on the Federal Trade Commission, was echoed later by an American Bar Association study. Proposals in several of his antitrust studies have become law or are pending in Congress.

Nader's first major battle was with General Motors over the safety of the Corvair. Nader gained public attention with his book, "Unsafe at Any Speed," with congressional testimony on autos and with the disclosure that GM hired a private detective to investigate his personal life.

The battle ended in a draw. The automobile is no longer on the market and Nader said cars as a whole are safer today. But neither side ever backed down.

In 1972, six years after Nader started his campaign, the Department of Transportation concluded that the car was no more likely to turn over than other cars of the same year and weight and General Motors said its position had been confirmed.

At the same time, a department panel recommended that owners of early model Corvairs be told of need for special handling. The department did not include the panel recommendation in its report, but, government officials later announced that owners of the car would indeed get warning letters.

About half a dozen of Nader's reports have stirred particularly serious criticism: his profiles of individual members of Congress, a report on DuPont and Delaware, a study of land use in California, a finding that the Volkswagen was "the most dangerous car" on the highway; a look at consumer complaints and how they are handled.

The Associated Press made a detailed study of several Nader reports in 1972, including the ones on DuPont and California. DuPont cited 43 errors; the AP found slightly more than one-third constituted clear-cut mistakes while the rest were open to debate.

Among the errors were five mistakes resulting from the researchers' use of published figures that turned out to be incorrect. The report also erroneously said that DuPont supported a coastal land-use bill and that DuPont selected a minority business development plan which had, in fact, been chosen by the Independent Black Alliance.

Nader Claims Cars, Toys Safer Now

The AP also found substantive mistakes in the California land use report including an erroneous statement that Rep. John E. Moss, R-Calif., hosted a meeting of lobbyists trying to block a state land use bill. Nader apologized in a letter to Moss.

Some of Nader's own staff members or former staff members concede that the congressional profiles were poorly done, partly because the task was enormous, the time of the study was short and part-time researchers were responsible for much of the work.

"Some of the reports were not of the highest quality," said John Esposito, who formerly worked at the Center for Study of Responsive Law. He cited the 1972 Congress Project as one example and said it was "unmanageable within the given length of time."

Mark Green, on leave as director of Nader's Corporate Accountability Research Group, worked on the Congress Project, which resulted in a book, "Who Runs Congress?" as well as the profiles. He described it as "an enormous bite ... It was a great success and a great failure because it took on so much."

Another source, who declined to be identified, said the individual profiles contained many errors. He said Nader always promised to correct the errors in later printings. Since the makeup of Congress changed and many of those profiled no longer held public office, the corrections — and subsequent printings — became moot.

Nader says he issues his reports in draft form. He gives them to the news media for release five days later. At the same time, he gives the reports to those criticized. That lead time, he says, allows targets of the reports to respond and allows the news media to check potential errors. Mistakes, he says, are corrected in later versions.

Lowell Dodge, former director of the Center for Auto Safety, with which Nader worked closely, said, "Whenever there was an error, Ralph would go out of his way to correct it. He would do it quietly, without publicity, but he would do it."

Dodge himself was at odds with Nader over a report involving the safety of the Volkswagen. Nader critic David Sanford quotes Dodge as saying that Nader insisted on distorting the conclusion of the 1971 report to say that the Volkswagen was "the most hazardous car in use in significant numbers in the U.S. today." Dodge says the word "most" was inaccurate because information about the safety of comparable cars was unavailable. Road & Track Magazine also criticized the report and recommended that it be recalled.

In a recent interview, Dodge said of the Sanford account: "There are elements of truth and elements of distortion ... Ralph wanted a stronger conclusion ... We all agreed that the Volkswagen was a dangerous car. The argument was over the degree of danger."

Nader was asked whether he ignored the facts in writing the conclusion.

"That was my report. I put my name on it," said Nader, adding that he, Dodge and seven other persons worked on the report.

"Did you ignore the facts?"

"Everyone agreed with me," Nader said. "Dodge never told me he was unhappy." Nader also said Dodge also did not disclose that he was in touch with Volkswagen officials while working on the report.

"Did you ignore the facts?"

One of the center's most recent reports, on customer satisfaction, was a joint project of Nader and Call for Action, Inc., a 40-city network of volunteers, supported by broadcasters, who try to help consumers resolve their problems.

Ellen Sulzberger Straus, founder of Call for Action, said she and Arthur Best, a center lawyer, argued over the report. She said Call for Action insisted that an "executive summary"

'Elements Of Truth, Distortion' In Exposes

be included with the report. "Without the executive summary," she said, "it is somewhat distorted."

One problem centered over the distinction between people who had a specific complaint with a product and people who had no actual complaint, but felt the item could have been better. The summary stresses the distinction; the report puts both groups together.

Nader said the arguments were not serious. "I think they (Call for Action) were more concerned about industry reaction (than we were)."

Best, who is leaving the center to become a law school teacher, also said the disagreements were "extremely minor." He said the executive summary was "essentially a recap."

It is difficult to draw a cause-and-effect chart on Nader's campaigns. Most of his study reports spotlighted problems rather than suggesting solutions.

Green, asked to cite concrete accomplishments as a result of the Nader reports, said: "It's a long list. One problem though. A report is issued. In the next four years, an enormous percentage of it becomes policy, either by legislation or regulation. It's slightly presumptuous to claim a causal connection."

Nader said there have been changes. "Cars are definitely safer, across the board. Most of the drug companies are more careful in their testing. Toys on the whole are safer."

In recent years, Nader has produced fewer reports, concentrating on research groups to provide follow-up action.

The record of these groups shows a fair degree of success:

—Statistics from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration show that through March 1976, 41.5 million domestic and 7.8 million imported cars have been recalled. Auto expert Dodge says about half the recalls since 1966 were actions advocated by his group. "We got most of the biggies," he said.

Dodge also said that the rate of highway deaths has dropped from 5.3 per 100 million vehicle miles to 3.4 per 100 million vehicle miles. Part of the decrease is due to the lower speed limit, he said. The rest is due to safer automobiles.

One Nader campaign that has not been successful has been his drive for installation of air bags in automobiles. The Transportation Department is about to hold another hearing on the question.

—Many of the Nader victories come from his Health Research Group, headed by Dr. Sidney Wolfe, who left his job at the National Institutes of Health late in 1971 to join Nader.

One of the group's first targets was Red Dye No. 2, which has been linked to cancer in rats and until recently was one of the most widely used food colorings. The FDA banned the dye five months ago and the ban was recently upheld by a federal appeals court.

It took less time to get action on another issue: hexachlorophene. Wolfe and Nader urged in November 1971, that products containing hexachlorophene be removed from the open market. The FDA announced a ban on nonprescription sales of the drug in September 1972.

In June 1975 the Health Research Group urged the FDA to revoke permission for use of the food additive, trichloroethylene, TCE, used in decaffeinated coffee. The agency recently announced it would ban the chemical, known to cause liver cancer in rats.

The research group also was among the first to recognize the dangers of vinyl chloride, a plastics chemical that has been linked to cancer, birth defects and genetic injuries. The government banned its use as a propellant in aerosols, has proposed standards reducing emissions from manufacturing plants and is in the final stages of banning vinyl chloride in food packaging.

"Most of the issues we've

Errors Are Found In Critical Reports

gotten into, the government has moved," Wolfe said. "We try not to give up, even when there is no measurable success."

Wolfe said he and his staff select projects where there is strong evidence of a problem and where there is a chance of having some impact. "We try to stay away from issues where there isn't some clear cut danger," he said.

—Nader's Litigation Group has met with similar success. As a result of lawsuits initiated by the group, headed by Alan Morrison, the Supreme Court ruled that fee schedules used by Virginia lawyers violated antitrust laws; overturned a Virginia ban on prescription drug advertising; and upheld the right of a consumer to sue in the federal courts when he has been bumped from an airline flight because of overbooking. (The later case involved Nader himself; he won a $25,000 judgment from Allegheny Airlines.)

"I think we have a very good reputation for doing quality legal work," said Morrison. He said the establishment of the Litigation Group taught government and business officials that the Nader people "don't just file reports and write petitions. We'll go to court to get them enforced."

Judge Zoe Shaffer
BURKHOLZ
for CIRCUIT COURT

Judge Zoe Shaffer Burkholz... Doing a good job now as Probate and Acting Circuit Judge.

Here's why Judge Burkholz is the best qualified candidate for Circuit Judge:

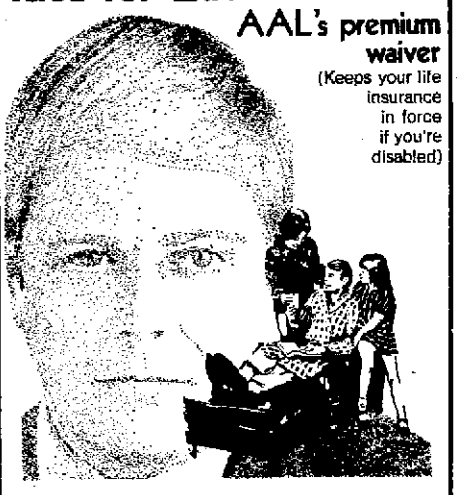

- practical experience as a working attorney — over 25 years experience in the private practice of civil law before our state courts at all levels. No other candidate has this experience.
- judicial experience as a probate judge — Probate and Circuit Court are the only two local courts with substantially similar applications of criminal and family law. No other candidate has this experience.
- actual experience as an acting circuit judge — Judge Burkholz has heard over 1,000 Circuit Court matters since being appointed an Acting Circuit Judge by the State Supreme Court in 1974. No other candidate has this experience.

In fact, Judge Burkholz has more years of legal and judicial experience than both other candidates combined. And, Judge Burkholz is the only candidate with actual Circuit Court judicial experience.

We are fortunate to have three well-qualified Circuit Judges now. Help us elect a fourth Berrien County Circuit Judge of equal caliber.

Survivors Relate Horror Of Big Thompson Flood

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — "The people in the restaurant began screaming. Within seconds, the restaurant, still full of people, plunged into the river. It was some sort of a dream. It wasn't really happening."

But it was, for Douglas Magill of Mishawaka, Ind., and his wife, Phyllis. And for hundreds of other persons stranded as a 12-foot wall of water surged down a Big Thompson Canyon west of here, killing at least 58 persons.

Hundreds of survivors were ferried out by helicopter, or carried out, or led out, on Sunday. Other hundreds remained stranded today as the search for bodies continued.

Douglas Magill: "I looked out and I saw a group of people standing out in the rain, watching the river. I said, 'Honey, you'd better get dressed.'"

The Magills' trailer was parked beside a motel and campground. The Big Thompson River snaked by outside. It was climbing, fast, when Magill moved his car to higher ground, then turned around. One of three bridges near the motel collapsed.

Magill: "Then the motel office went ... then a house went ... just floating down the river. Boulders bigger than a car would be thrown up out of the water and against another boulder. They sounded like thunder and shook the ground."

Jerry Alanko, Estes Park, Colo., rescue worker: "There were cars floating by, and people inside the cars were waving flashlights for us to help them. There was nothing we could do. You just had to watch them nosedive. ...

"Over the bridge, people at the motel were screaming and running up the hill. Propane tanks were just hissing. You could smell it."

Alanko and his wife opened their home to victims of the rising water. Then he went out to help.

Alanko: "Just around us we found half a body. One old man was up to his waist in mud. We released him — he was alive. We then found two bodies, but that's just what we could see.

"All the cars were completely filled with mud. There was no way you could see in them. ... One man put his wife and daughter in the car and went back into the house to get some belongings. When he returned to the car, his wife and daughter were gone into the river. He was in shock."

Terri Pistone, 18, Palatine, Ill., was with her family in their car: "We pulled over because of the visibility. The other people around us ... discovered both ends of the road were washed away.

"Oh, my God! The water was so high we had to run up the mountain. Then, the road started sliding into the river.

"Gas pipelines broke, and we had to put our shirts over our faces the first hour ... we had to keep moving to different sides of the mountain because it kept washing away. ...

"We slept on the side of rocks on the part where there were no plants on the mountain. It was so scary! It rained all night. We hadn't eaten since that morning and had nothing. ...

"It took forever for dawn. They (others in the party) kept asking my mom what time it was on the watch. We looked over the mountain, and we saw an orange van crushed and saw parts of other cars. ...

"The helicopter came to the place where the campers were. The helicopter landed on the road — what road there was. They kept bringing people because there was food there and a campfire."

Several hours later, the choppers transported the Pistone family to a Loveland high school. Seated across the school's auditorium from them were Herta Flatter of London, England, and her daughter's family from Cincinnati.

Mrs. Flatter: "We were just a few miles from Estes Park, and we had to stop. It was pouring. ... It got worse and worse. ... So we left the car and went into the rocks. Twelve of us — we slept huddled together like animals. It was pouring until three or four o'clock in the morning. The thunderstorms just kept coming back over. ...

SURVEYS RUIN: An unidentified resident surveys destruction wrought to his property by the Big Thompson River. Officials said Sunday at least 58 persons were killed Saturday night when the flash flood gushed through Big Thompson Canyon. (AP Wirephoto)

FIRE DEATHS

CHICAGO (AP) — Authorities say a 19-year-old North Side man has been charged with setting a predawn fire that killed six persons in a Chicago apartment building. POLICE ROUNDUP

Pair Arrested After Explosion

Berrien Sheriff's Sgt. Jack Knuth said two young men were arrested early today when three pistols and a box of military explosives were confiscated from a car he stopped in Benton township.

Knuth said he observed a car in the Belscot store parking lot, 1800 M-139, being driven recklessly. He said as he watched the car a large explosion occurred nearby. The explosion was in the parking lot and did no damage.

After stopping the car on Milton street, Knuth said he observed the box of explosives in the rear seat and found .38, .45 and .25-caliber pistols inside. He said the explosives were military "artillery simulators," used for training purposes. He reported the explosives are very powerful, but contain no shrapnel as do hand grenades.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of carrying concealed weapons were Malcom Dan Pike, 17, route 1, box 99, Shanghai road, Eau Claire, and Ricky J. Smith, 21, Fayetteville, N.C. Smith was also issued a citation for careless driving, Knuth said.

A Pipestone township man told Berrien sheriff's officers he discovered the theft of about $2,000 in goods and cash from his home when he returned from vacation.

Russell Stolfo, 4269 Clawson road, said eight rifles and shotguns, some antiques, and a pistol were taken as well as $520 in cash and a filing cabinet with all the family's personal records. Also reported stolen were hand and power tools, two televisions, golf clubs, hi-fi equipment, musical instruments and other household goods.

Carl McPike, South Bend, Ind., told St. Joseph township police Friday that two diamond rings valued at between $800 and $1,100 were stolen from his boat docked at Whispering Willows marina, 2383 Niles road.

McPike told police the rings were both men's, one a Masonic ring with a 58-point diamond, the other had a 25-point diamond, and both were gold.

Benton Harbor police said a clergyman reported his home was burglarized Sunday while he was at church and $194 stolen including $100 that was in church envelopes.

Rev. Howard Thomas, 1137 Pavone street, pastor of the Tabernacle Church of God in Christ, 757 Superior street, told police the home was ransacked and in addition to the cash a woman's turquoise ring was also taken. He said the theft occurred between 10 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. when he was at the church. Police said entry was made through a bathroom window.

Other thefts reported to Benton Harbor police:

Three citizens' band radios were reported stolen from cars in the Millburg area, Sunday, Benton township police reported.

Lee McNitt, Territorial road, said his radio was stolen from his car parked outside his home. Melvin Archer and Randy Antio, both of Third street, said their CBs were taken from their cars parked in a lot at the rear of Louis Gelder & Sons farm equipment company, Third street.

Three Illinois men were booked Saturday on charges of violating the controlled substance act (possession of marijuana) after State Trooper Charles Longenbarger inspected a parked van truck to see if occupants needed assistance.

The truck was reported parked on the shoulder off I-196, Benton township about 5:30 p.m. Longenbarger said he saw a beer can on the floorboard and made arrests after seeing suspected marijuana.

Vandals over the weekend slashed upholstery on the backs of front seats in between 25 to 30 autos, parked in lot of Square Deal Auto Salvage, 1081 Territorial road, Benton township, according to township police.

Police said the firm was to junk the vehicles but seats normally could be removed and sold. The seats were reported a total loss. The complaint was filed with police at 8:19 p.m. Saturday.

Several youths suspected of shooting dice in a field in Benton township fled in all directions when township Sgt. James Lester and Patrolman Jimmie Coburn approached about 8:32 p.m. Saturday. While the suspects escaped, the officers confiscated a bicycle and a jacket, left behind on the 1000 block of Highland avenue.

MONARCHS: Cathy Brugger, of Mexico City, Mexico, is adorned by monarch butterflies at their wintering grounds in remote mountain region north of Mexico City. Dr. Fred Urquhart, Canadian zoologist who has been searching for hidden home of the monarchs since 1937, said big orange and black butterflies covered every tree in a 20-acre region. (AP Wirephoto)

Mechanic May Be Alibi For Accused Kidnaper

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — A mechanic who worked for Frederick N. Woods has told the San Francisco Examiner that he saw Woods 150 miles from Chowchilla on the afternoon a busload of school children was kidnaped here.

"I saw Fred Thursday, July 15, and there was not a thing different about him, not a thing," Craig Hunt, 18, told the Examiner.

Hunt, who repaired old cars for Woods, said Woods was at his parents' 100-acre Portola Valley estate between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. the day the 26 children and their bus driver were kidnaped. Woods was arrested last Thursday at a Vancouver, Canada, post office where he had gone to pick up mail.

Woods, James Schoenfeld, 24, and his brother, Richard Schoenfeld, 22, were all charged in the kidaping. Bail is set at $1 million each.

Portola Valley is more than three hours from Chowchilla by car, and the bus was hijacked at about 4 p.m. It was about 4:30 p.m. on that day when worried parents started calling authorities to say that the bus, which had taken the children on a summer outing, was overdue.

An investigator said tests indicated that the battery power operating the fans that carried air into the buried van in which the children and the bus driver were held captive would have failed 48 hours after the victims freed themselves.

"We would have had one big coffin," he said.

Hunt said he has been questioned by detectives, but there was no immediate official comment on his statements indicating a possible alibi for Woods.

The FBI said surveillance of a female friend of Woods' in Palo Alto led to his capture after he telephoned asking her to send him a package. The arrest in Canada took place five hours after the elder Schoenfeld was grabbed in Menlo Park.

Authorities have said they have not ruled out the possibility that others may also have been involved in the kidnaping.

The elder Schoenfeld and Woods are to be arraigned Wednesday on 43 felony charges. The younger Schoenfeld pleaded innocent last Thursday at his arraignment and will go back to court on Wednesday, when the date for a preliminary hearing is to be set.

POSSIBLE ALIBI: Craig Hunt, 18, who worked for Frederick N. Woods says he may be able to furnish his boss an alibi for the day authorities says Woods helped kidnap a busload of school children. Hunt told the San Francisco Examiner Woods was at the home of his parents between 1 and 2 p.m. The bus was commandeered about 4 p.m. four hours from the Woods home by car. (AP Wirephoto)

Elect Tom McGrath Supervisor

Because Tom McGrath led the way . . .

Lincoln Township still has Red Arrow Highway

For several weeks, Red Arrow Highway has been closed for bridge repairs and Lincoln Township residents now know how important this highway is to our community. Tom McGrath led the fight to save this highway when the State almost decided to let beach erosion destroy it!

Lincoln Township will have its second full I-94 interchange.

For over 12 years, Tom McGrath has spearheaded the program to bring a second full interchange to the Township. Recently, the Highway Department has announced they will start construction next year.

Lincoln Township has a street lighting program

Before Tom McGrath launched the drive for a street lighting district, Lincoln Township had no street lights and no program. Now, there are lights at all major intersections as well as an established program to expand this lighting.

In spite of fatal accidents, nothing was done to safeguard Lincoln Township residents until Tom McGrath joined with other civic leaders to get automatic crossing signals installed at all major crossings in the Township. Where there were none, now there is a fully automatic, lighted signal at each of the six major crossings in the Township.

Tom McGrath will get Lincoln Township going by . . .

1. Developing realistic plans for orderly growth
2. Rapidly completing sewer and water system
3. Bringing in new industry to area to protect our low tax rate
4. Protecting recreation facilities and natural beauty of the area

Get Lincoln Township going!

Elect Tom McGrath Supervisor August 3, 1976

Tom McGrath gets things going!

• 25 years a local resident • Businessman • Four times elected president of Lakeshore Chamber of Commerce • Active in civic affairs • Extensive experience working with state and federal agencies.

RAID LEADS TO 10 HEROIN CHARGE ARRESTS

By RALPH LUTZ & TOM SAWYER
Staff Writers

Ten people were arrested Saturday and Sunday on charges involving heroin as a result of a raid Saturday at a Benton Harbor house, according to Lt. Jack Drach of the Berrien Metro narcotics unit.

Sunday, state police and metro officers said they bought suspected heroin, valued at $8,000, and arrested two Illinois men as a result of information received in the raid. The arrests Sunday were made at a truck stop at Sawyer.

The eight were arrested when troopers went to a Benton Harbor home armed with a warrant accusing a Benton Harbor man of delivery of heroin, second offense.

People inside the house attempted to flee, but were quickly apprehended, according to Trooper George Tiernan of the Benton Harbor post.

Tiernan said a search warrant was then obtained and materials were confiscated from the basement including about a half-ounce of suspected heroin and assorted alleged narcotics paraphernalia. Tiernan said the suspected heroin confiscated would have a street value of about $500.

The state police post said Mack Sesson Jr., 29, of 631 Broadway, Benton Harbor, was arrested on the warrant charging delivery of heroin and also booked on a charge of violating the controlled substance act (possession of heroin).

Sesson and three others in the house attempted to flee by breaking through a basement window. Sesson sustained a severe laceration of the left arm and was lodged in jail after treatment at Mercy hospital, the post reported.

The other seven were booked on charges of violating the controlled substance act (possession of heroin). They were identified as:

Freddie Johnson, 30, of 450 Lavette street; Martisa Cynthia Tucker, 17, of 785 Wauceda avenue; Frankie Lane Barber, 22, of 254 Jefferson street; and Lawrence C. Ewell, 31, all of Benton Harbor; and Stephen Ready Brewer, 26, of 766 South Crystal avenue; Fred Maeso Wallace, 29, of 363 Walnut avenue; and Brandon Lowell Cates, 23, of 2800 US-33 North, apartment 4-A, all of Benton township.

None of the eight was armed and no weapons were found in the house, the post reported. The post said the owner of the house, at the northwest corner of East Main street and North Hull avenue, has not been determined.

Tiernan said when officers knocked on the door, a man tried to push past to the outside, and others ran in all directions, including through the window. The arrests were made about 5:45 p.m. by five troopers.

Tiernan said because of the mass flight, a search warrant was sought after occupants were apprehended. Tiernan said the search warrant was authorized by Berrien Assistant Prosecutor Wilbur Schillinger and issued by Fifth District Judge John T. Hammond.

Tiernan said the warrant for Sesson was issued on Nov. 15, 1975, and held by the Berrien metro narcotics unit.

According to metro officers they arranged to meet with two men at the Sawyer Truck Stop, Sawyer, where an undercover officer was to buy 1½ ounces of heroin.

The buy was made in the parking area and other officers stepped in to make the arrests, metro officers said. Officers said the alleged heroin was believed to be "high-grade Mexican" variety with a street value of about $8,000.

Bloom'dale Group To Fight Rate Hike

BLOOMINGDALE — A citizens' group has been formed here to protest a proposed 55.14 per cent rate increase by the Michigan Power company which provides electricity for the area.

The group has named itself the Michigan Power Users association and has scheduled a Wednesday night meeting at the Bloomingdale high school to discuss the protest. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. and is open to the public.

The group then plans to take its protest the following day to Three Rivers, where the statepublic service commission has scheduled a 1:30 p.m. hearing on the proposed increase, according to a spokesman for the group.

President of the citizens' group is Charles Wickett, vice president is Bruce Hammon and secretary-treasurer is Donald Dragoo. All three are from Bloomingdale.

Michigan Power company has said it has 26,000 customers in southwestern Michgian.

Mrs. Lezan Not Incumbent In Township

DECATUR — Virginia Lezan, a candidate for the Democrat nomination for Decatur township treasurer in Tuesday's primary, was incorrectly identified as the incumbent in the Voters' Guide published Saturday. She is the current village treasurer.

Also in the story, the name of Mrs. Lezan's husband and the first name of a trustee candidate were incorrectly reported. Mrs. Lezan's husband's name is Henry. The trustee candidate is May S. Kaplan.

Berrien Man Tells Of Gang's Attack

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Police here said a rural Berrien Springs man was seriously injured when attacked by a gang of men wielding chains behind a Berrien Springs bar last night.

Listed in serious condition this morning at Berrien General hospital, Berrien Center, was Steven Spenner, 26, route 2, Box 378, Berrien Springs.

Spenner told Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police that he was beaten by 12 to 15 men in an alley behind the Topper bar at 112 East Ferry street shortly after 10:30 p.m.

He told officers that the men, described only as Mexicans, attacked him with a chain after an exchange of heated words.

SYRIAN PREMIER RESIGNS

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian Premier Mahmoud Ayoubi has resigned, and President Hafez Assad has asked an army general to form a new cabinet, Damascus Radio announced. No reason was given. Gen. Abdul Rahman Khalifawi, the army officer who was asked on Sunday to replace Ayoubi, has headed three previous governments since Assad came to power in November 1970.

HEALTH NEWS. . .

Too Many 'Ups' Can Cause One Big 'Down'

For some time now, Dr. Ackerman, of The Ackerman Chiropractic Center, has maintained that too many Americans are literally dying from over-tranquilized lives. "You show me a case where a seemingly young, healthy person dies suddenly from mysterious causes and I think we'll eventually discover that heart damage due to tranquilizers was the culprit.

Dr. Vince Ackerman

In this respect, it is interesting to note that recently an item appeared in a newspaper headlined "Tranquilizers Called Heart Defect Cause." The article stated that "curious defects inside the heart apparently are the reason some people die suddenly." It went on to note that the heavy use of tranquilizers is the suspected cause of the heart damage.

The source for the article was a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, written by a team of physicians.

"You must understand," says Dr. Ackerman "that tranquilizers can well cause heart lesions by blocking the action of chemicals from the adrenal glands."

He added that he was pleased to note that his colleagues in the medical profession had concluded much the same in their research project.

What does all this mean to the average individual? "Chronic stress," says Dr. Ackerman, "is a real and distinct problem suffered by many, many people, particularly those who lead a fast pace in family, business or social circles. However," he goes on, "they cannot constantly 'slow down the pace' artifically.

"This stress has a cause, and must be treated at its source. Nervous tension due to stress cannot be whisked away with a pill. It is a matter that must be dealt with at its origin; an improperly functioning system.

"Frankly, I plead with those persons who carry on a fast pace . . . who have 'ups and downs' . . . who can go-go-go and then become exhausted . . . who have trouble getting started and then can't quit . . . to seek treatment rather than that little plastic coated 'treat'."

In other words, according to Dr. Ackerman, if you have to kill yourself, at least keep your body healthfully alive.

May Divorce Wife To Get Help

WHITING, Ind. (AP) — When Kurt vowed to cherish Karen "in sickness and in health" nearly 16 years ago, he never thought he'd have to divorce her to keep his word.

But 10 years ago Karen was stricken with multiple sclerosis, and now divorce may be the only way for Kurt to deal with a growing stack of medical bills.

"I love her, and I don't think it's right to have to go through a divorce," said Kurt, the father of three teen-agers.

Karen, 34, almost totally paralyzed, now lives at a skilledcare nursing facility in nearby Munster that provides the round-the clock care she requires. The bills surpass Kurt's $13,000 salary as a meter-reader for the Northern Indiana Public Service Co.

Before Karen's transfer to the nursing home, Kurt's company insurance paid 80 per cent of the bills. But the insurance covers none of the nursing home costs, and Kurt fears his wife will be evicted if the bills aren't paid.

"I asked about Medicaid, and I was told the bills would be paid if I gave the state all my earnings except for $400 a month. That's just not enough to pay the mortgage and food and clothing for the children."

"The only alternative was a divorce," said Nona Noel, a Legal Aid Society attorney. "The state of Indiana gets control of the federal Medicaid money and sets up its own rules. And the rules say if Karen were not married, all her medical bills — even those from the nursing home — would be paid."

Kurt and Karen reluctantly agreed to a divorce, but Lake County Superior Court Judge Pro Tem Robert Berger deferred action on it when Kurt admitted that his only reason was the Medicaid regulation.

Berger questioned the regulation's validity and enjoined both the state and county welfare departments from denying any benefits to Karen that are available to single persons. Welfare authorities claim the judge has no power to control their regulations and have filed motions to vacate the order.

In the meantime, Kurt, Karen and their children await an Indiana Supreme Court ruling on the issue expected later this week.

"I hope and pray. The kids ride their bikes every few days down to see their Mom, and I see her every day," Kurt says. "If I have to go through with this divorce to keep her alive, I will, to make it legal. But I love Karen. I'll never leave her.

Abortion
SOMETHING CAN BE DONE

Supreme Court decisions are not graven into stone. In 1856 the Court decided that black slaves were property, not people. The Thirteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution overturned that terrible Court ruling.

The 1972 abortion decisions will also be reversed if those who care ACT through the ballot box. Be sure to VOTE AUGUST 3 for a candidate who supports a HUMAN LIFE AMENDMENT to stop abortion on demand.

REMEMBER: Due to an expected low voter turn-out, your vote could have 4 times the weight it will carry in November.

Survivors Relate Horror Of Big Thompson Flood

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — "The people in the restaurant began screaming. Within seconds, the restaurant, still full of people, plunged into the river. It was some sort of a dream. It wasn't really happening."

But it was, for Douglas Magill of Mishawaka, Ind., and his wife, Phyllis. And for hundreds of other persons stranded as a 12-foot wall of water surged down a Big Thompson Canyon west of here, killing at least 58 persons.

Hundreds of survivors were ferried out by helicopter, or carried out, or led out, on Sunday. Other hundreds remained stranded today as the search for bodies continued.

Douglas Magill: "I looked out and I saw a group of people standing out in the rain, watching the river. I said, 'Honey, you'd better get dressed.'"

The Magills' trailer was parked beside a motel and campground. The Big Thompson River snaked by outside. It was climbing, fast, when Magill moved his car to higher ground, then turned around. One of three bridges near the motel collapsed.

Magill: "Then the motel office went ... then a house went ... just floating down the river. Boulders bigger than a car would be thrown up out of the water and against another boulder. They sounded like thunder and shook the ground."

Jerry Alanko, Estes Park, Colo., rescue worker: "There were cars floating by, and people inside the cars were waving flashlights for us to help them. There was nothing we could do. You just had to watch them nosedive. ...

"Over the bridge, people at the motel were screaming and running up the hill. Propane tanks were just hissing. You could smell it."

Alanko and his wife opened their home to victims of the rising water. Then he went out to help.

Alanko: "Just around us we found half a body. One old man was up to his waist in mud. We released him — he was alive. We then found two bodies, but that's just what we could see.

"All the cars were completely filled with mud. There was no way you could see in them. ... One man put his wife and daughter in the car and went back into the house to get some belongings. When he returned to the car, his wife and daughter were gone into the river. He was in shock."

Terri Pistone, 18, Palatine, Ill., was with her family in their car: "We pulled over because of the visibility. The other people around us ... discovered both ends of the road were washed away.

"Oh, my God! The water was so high we had to run up the mountain. Then, the road started sliding into the river.

"Gas pipelines broke, and we had to put our shirts over our faces the first hour ... we had to keep moving to different sides of the mountain because it kept washing away, ...

"We slept on the side of rocks on the part where there were no plants on the mountain. It was so scary! It rained all night. We hadn't eaten since that morning and had nothing. ...

"It took forever for dawn. They (others in the party) kept asking my mom what time it was on the watch. We looked over the mountain, and we saw an orange van crushed and saw parts of other cars. ...

"The helicopter came to the place where the campers were. The helicopter landed on the road — what road there was. They kept bringing people because there was food there and a campfire."

Several hours later, the choppers transported the Pistone family to a Loveland high school. Seated across the school's auditorium from them were Herta Flatter of London, England, and her daughter's family from Cincinnati.

Mrs. Flatter: "We were just a few miles from Estes Park, and we had to stop. It was pouring. ... It got worse and worse. ... So we left the car and went into the rocks. Twelve of us — we slept huddled together like animals. It was pouring until three or four o'clock in the morning. The thunderstorms just kept coming back over. ...

SURVEYS RUIN: An unidentified resident surveys destruction wrought to his property by the Big Thompson River. Officials said Sunday at least 58 persons were killed Saturday night when the flash flood gushed through Big Thompson Canyon. (AP Wirephoto)

Transplant Restores Her Sight

By DON DURST

HUDSON, Mich. (AP) — From morning until night for more than a fortnight, 8-year-old Amie Barnes has approached everything with renewed confidence because her vision is stabilized again.

The traumatic experience for this third grader in Lincoln Elementary School began Aug. 18, 1973, two months before her sixth birthday.

She was helping her mother put away groceries when two pop bottles exploded in her face.

Noting that the pupil of her right eye was dislocated, a surgical team performed an emergency operation lasting seven hours and requiring 23 stitches.

When the operation was over, the surgeon confided to the parents:

"All you can do now is pray that infection doesn't setin."

Three and a half months later an ulcer developed, and lighter stitching had to be substituted so the eye could heal.

That operation left a scar through Amie's right eye, permitting light to enter but obscuring her vision.

"She could see a doll's head but not distinguish its features," Mrs. Barnes explained.

Then began a series of trips to the Ann Arbor hospital for tests at intervals in which the longest gap was six to eight weeks.

The decision for Amie's corneal transplant came during what she and her parents thought was to be a routine examination.

A new staff physician from Florida recommended that action because Amie's eyesight had not improved in a year.

The transplant was performed July 8 last year.

"Amie's recovery was a slow process," Mrs. Barnes recalled. "That eye was sore and bloodshot for three months. We tested her vision at home by standing across the room and holding up our fingers for her to count."

Safety glasses protect Amie's eyes whenever she leaves the house and her actions are restricted. She was forced to withdraw from contact sports in school after the accident to avoid what doctors feared could be a damaging blow to the head.

Amie's mother says she feels Amie was very lucky to still have her eye.

"Amie was in a lot of pain," she said. "We asked the doctor how it must feel, and he replied, 'Take a hand full of gravel and throw it into your eye. Then you'll know.'"

The cornea used in Amie's operation came from the Michigan Eye Bank at Wayne State University.

RAID LEADS TO 10 HEROIN CHARGE ARRESTS

By RALPH LUTZ & TOM SAWYER
Staff Writers

Ten people were arrested Saturday and Sunday on charges involving heroin as a result of a raid Saturday at a Benton Harbor house, according to Lt. Jack Drach of the Berrien Metro narcotics unit.

Sunday, state police and metro officers said they bought suspected heroin, valued at $8,000, and arrested two Illinois men as a result of information received in the raid. The arrests Sunday were made at a truck stop at Sawyer.

The eight were arrested when troopers went to a Benton Harbor home armed with a warrant accusing a Benton Harbor man of delivery of heroin, second offense.

People inside the house attempted to flee, but were quickly apprehended, according to Trooper George Tiernan of the Benton Harbor post.

Tiernan said a search warrant was then obtained and materials were confiscated from the basement including about a half-ounce of suspected heroin and assorted alleged narcotics paraphernalia. Tiernan said the suspected heroin confiscated would have a street value of about $500.

The state police post said Mack Sesson Jr., 29, of 631 Broadway, Benton Harbor, was arrested on the warrant charging delivery of heroin and also booked on a charge of violating the controlled substance act (possession of heroin).

Sesson and three others in the house attempted to flee by breaking through a basement window. Sesson sustained a severe laceration of the left arm and was lodged in jail after treatment at Mercy hospital, the post reported.

The other seven were booked on charges of violating the controlled substance act (possession of heroin). They were identified as:

Freddie Johnson, 30, of 450 Lavette street; Martisa Cynthia Tucker, 17, of 785 Wauceda avenue; Frankie Lane Barber, 22, of 254 Jefferson street; and Lawrence C. Ewell, 31, all of Benton Harbor; and Stephen Ready Brewer, 26, of 706 South Crystal avenue; Fred Maceo Wallace, 28, of 363 Walnut avenue; and Brandon Lowell Cates, 23, of 2880 US-33 North, apartment 4-A, all of Benton township.

None of the eight was armed and no weapons were found in the house, the post reported. The post said the owner of the house, at the northwest corner of East Main street and North Hull avenue, has not been determined.

Tiernan said when officers knocked on the door, a man tried to push past to the outside, and others ran in all directions, including through the window. The arrests were made about 5:45 p.m. by five troopers.

Tiernan said because of the mass flight, a search warrant was sought after occupants were apprehended. Tiernan said the search warrant was authorized by Berrien Assistant Prosecutor Wilbur Schillinger and issued by Fifth District Judge John T. Hammond.

Tiernan said the warrant for Sesson was issued on Nov. 15, 1975, and held by the Berrien metro narcotics unit.

According to metro officers they arranged to meet with two men at the Sawyer Truck Stop, Sawyer, where an undercover officer was to buy 1½ ounces of heroin.

The buy was made in the parking area and other officers stepped in to make the arrests, metro officers said. Officers said the alleged heroin was believed to be "high-grade Mexican" variety with a street value of about $8,000.

Bloom'dale Group To Fight Rate Hike

BLOOMINGDALE — A citizens' group has been formed here to protest a proposed 55.14 per cent rate increase by the Michigan Power company which provides electricity for the area.

The group has named itself the Michigan Power Users association and has scheduled a Wednesday night meeting at the Bloomingdale high school to discuss the protest. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. and is open to the public.

The group then plans to take its protest the following day to Three Rivers, where the statepublic service commission has scheduled a 1:30 p.m. hearing on the proposed increase, according to a spokesman for the group.

President of the citizens' group is Charles Wickett, vice president is Bruce Hammon and secretary-treasurer is Donald Drugoo. All three are from Bloomingdale.

Michigan Power company has said it has 26,000 customers in southwestern Michgian.

Mrs. Lezan Not Incumbent In Township

DECATUR — Virginia Lezan, a candidate for the Democrat nomination for Decatur township treasurer in Tuesday's primary, was incorrectly identified as the incumbent in the Voters' Guide published Saturday. She is the current village treasurer.

Also in the story, the name of Mrs. Lezan's husband and the first name of a trustee candidate were incorrectly reported. Mrs. Lezan's husband's name is Henry. The trustee candidate is May S. Kaplan.

Berrien Man Tells Of Gang's Attack

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Police here said a rural Berrien Springs man was seriously injured when attacked by a gang of men wielding chains behind a Berrien Springs bar last night.

Listed in serious condition this morning at Berrien General hospital, Berrien Center, was Steven Spenner, 26, route 2, Box 378, Berrien Springs.

Spenner told Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police that he was beaten by 12 to 15 men in an alley behind the Topper bar at 112 East Ferry street shortly after 10:30 p.m.

He told officers that the men, described only as Mexicans, attacked him with a chain after an exchange of heated words.

SYRIAN PREMIER RESIGNS

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian Premier Mahmoud Ayoubi has resigned, and President Hafez Assad has asked an army general to form a new cabinet, Damascus Radio announced. No reason was given. Gen. Abdul Rahman Khalifawi, the army officer who was asked on Sunday to replace Ayoubi, has headed three previous governments since Assad came to power in November 1970.

Too Many 'Ups' Can Cause One Big 'Down'

Dr. Vince Ackerman

For some time now, Dr. Ackerman, of The Ackerman Chiropractic Center, has maintained that too many Americans are literally dying from over-tranquilized lives. "You show me a case where a seemingly young, healthy person dies suddenly from mysterious causes and I think we'll eventually discover that heart damage due to tranquilizers was the culprit.

In this respect, it is interesting to note that recently an item appeared in a newspaper headlined "Tranquilizers Called Heart Defect Cause." The article stated that "curious defects inside the heart apparently are the reason some people die suddenly." It went on to note that the heavy use of tranquilizers is the suspected cause of the heart damage.

The source for the article was a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, written by a team of physicians.

"You must understand," says Dr. Ackerman "that tranquilizers can well cause heart lesions by blocking the action of chemicals from the adrenal glands."

He added that he was pleased to note that his colleagues in the medical profession had concluded much the same in their research project.

What does all this mean to the average individual? "Chronic stress," says Dr. Ackerman, "is a real and distinct problem suffered by many, many people, particularly those who lead a fast pace in family, business or social circles. However," he goes on, "they cannot constantly 'slow down the pace' artifically.

"This stress has a cause, and must be treated at its source. Nervous tension due to stress cannot be whisked away with a pill. It is a matter that must be dealt with at its origin; an improperly functioning system.

"Frankly, I plead with those persons who carry on a fast pace . . . who have 'ups and downs' . . . who can go-go-go and then become exhausted . . . who have trouble getting started and then can't quit . . . to seek treatment rather than that little plastic coated 'treat'."

In other words, according to Dr. Ackerman, if you have to kill yourself, at least keep your body healthfully alive.

May Divorce Wife To Get Help

WHITING, Ind. (AP) — When Kurt vowed to cherish Karen "in sickness and in health" nearly 18 years ago, he never thought he'd have to divorce her to keep his word.

But 10 years ago Karen was stricken with multiple sclerosis, and now divorce may be the only way for Kurt to deal with a growing stack of medical bills.

"I love her, and I don't think it's right to have to go through a divorce," said Kurt, the father of three teen-agers.

Karen, 34, almost totally paralyzed, now lives at a skilledcare nursing facility in nearby Munster that provides the round-the clock care she requires. The bills surpass Kurt's $13,000 salary as a meter-reader for the Northern Indiana Public Service Co.

Before Karen's transfer to the nursing home, Kurt's company insurance paid 80 per cent of the bills. But the insurance covers none of the nursing home costs, and Kurt fears his wife will be evicted if the bills aren't paid.

"I asked about Medicaid, and I was told the bills would be paid if I gave the state all my earnings except for $400 a month. That's just not enough to pay the mortgage and food and clothing for the children."

"The only alternative was a divorce," said Nona Noel, a Legal Aid Society attorney. "The state of Indiana gets control of the federal Medicaid money and sets up its own rules. And the rules say if Karen were not married, all her medical bills — even those from the nursing home — would be paid."

Kurt and Karen reluctantly agreed to a divorce, but Lake County Superior Court Judge Pro Tem Robert Berger deferred action on it when Kurt admitted that his only reason was the Medicaid regulation.

Berger questioned the regulation's validity and enjoined both the state and county welfare departments from denying any benefits to Karen that are available to single persons. Welfare authorities claim the judge has no power to control their regulations and have filed motions to vacate the order.

In the meantime, Kurt, Karen and their children await an Indiana Supreme Court ruling on the issue expected later this week.

"I hope and pray. The kids ride their bikes every few days down to see their Mom, and I see her every day," Kurt says. "If I have to go through with this divorce to keep her alive, I will, to make it legal. But I love Karen. I'll never leave her.

Abortion
SOMETHING CAN BE DONE

Supreme Court decisions are not graven into stone. In 1856 the Court decided that black slaves were property, not people. The Thirteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution overturned that terrible Court ruling.

The 1972 abortion decisions will also be reversed if those who care ACT through the ballot box. Be sure to VOTE AUGUST 3 for a candidate who supports a HUMAN LIFE AMENDMENT to stop abortion on demand.

REMEMBER: Due to an expected low voter turn-out, your vote could have 4 times the weight it will carry in November.

TACKLE WEIGHTY PROBLEM

Overeaters Adopt AA Tactics

By BETTY HANSEN

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Obesity is one of humanity's weightiest problems. Often an overload of fat gets so heavy a team is required to get rid of it.

New to the sad, fat land of the compulsive eater in Saginaw, if not to other parts of the country, is an apparently successful losing team called Overeaters Anonymous. Members claim it has helped them lose weight and control their habit of overeating when all other methods or groups had failed.

Overeaters Anonymous (OA) is based upon principles of behavior control originated by Alcoholics Anonymous and, with AA's permission, uses an adaptation of its materials, including the basic steps to appetite control and the popular "Serenity Prayer."

"In many ways, being a food addict is worse than being an alcoholic or drug addict," said Carol, who is a member of Saginaw's "Just For Today" chapter of OA.

"An alcoholic can structure his or her life so there is little or no contact with alcohol," she continued. "But a compulsive eater must contend with food for the rest of his life. It keeps him alive, even though it can kill him."

The groups meet weekly and members are supplied with coffee or iced tea to stip as they meet. Anonymity is the rule, so they can talk openly and frankly about their progress or their problems.

There is much reliance on prayer, on a higher power, and on supportiveness from other overeaters.

"A number of our members have physical problems requiring special Carol explained. "They joined OA because they had trouble staying on their diets. Some of them are here to stay alive."

The problems of the chronic overeater are the same in many respects as those of the alcoholic.

"The difficulty most of us have," said Jerry, another OA member, is that there is no such thing as just a nibble of food...only a taste. A taste, and we're on our way. With a compulsive overeater, it's the whole thing."

There are no dues or real membership roster. A free-will collection is taken at the close of each meeting, and this money is used to buy literature.

OA members are furnished with a pamphlet listing 15 rules for overcoming their compulsion to gobble down food they don't need. They also can have a couple of OA diet plus, high in protein and low in carbohydrate, or they can choose their own methods of dieting.

"We've found that often a piece of candy or a lick of chocolate frosting is enough to kick off an eating binge," said Carol.

The importance of food sponsors was emphasized by Carol and other OA members.

"These are members who have successfully abstained from compulsive overeating for 21 days. You can pick a food sponsor from the list to call when you feel an eating binge coming on," said Jackie.

"Often a member will write out a food plan at the beginning of each day, call and red it to their food sponsor. This is a commitment, a kind of promise to oneself and someone else."

The first five days of abstaining from compulsive eating usually are the hardest, OA members agree. All admit to occasional backsliding into eating binges, particularly when under stress.

The women at one meeting — there were no men — discussed the problems of "setups" for food binges, either self-inflicted or by others.

"My husband is fond of saying 'let's go for an ice cream cone'," said one. "Now I'm able to say 'I don't really feel like one right now, honey, but I'd be glad to ride along while you enjoy one.'

Democrat House Candidates Back Political Reform Law

Three Democratic candidates for the State Legislature from the 43rd and 44th Districts have pledged to work for re-enactment of the Political Reform Act of 1975, if elected, according to a poll conducted by Common Cause.

Common Cause, known as the "peoples' lobby," sent questionnaires to every legislative candidate, according to Deborah Havener of Tecumseh, Common Cause media coordinator.

Among respondents were Laurel Groenke of Baroda, Democratic candidate in the 43rd district; Charles Henderson and Lawrence Sherman ot Benton Harbor, Democratic candidates in the 44th District. Common Cause said Republican incumbents Harry Gast Jr., 43rd, and Ray Mittan, 44th, did not respond.

The Political Reform Act of 1975 passed the Legislature but was declared unconstitutional by the Michigan Supreme court because it covered separate issues. Common cause said it is proposed to make separate laws of the former single act.

Common Cause said Henderson and Sherman responded in favor of all proposals. Groenke did not respond on acts for creation of an independent ethics commission, partial public funding of campaigns for governor, and campaign contribution limits.

Common Cause said all three candidates agreed on proposals for campaign expenditure limits for candidates receiving public funds; campaign contribution disclosure statements before and after elections; disclosure of business interests, sources of income and major real estate holdings; prohibiting public officials from participating in decisions that could affect their financial interests; public reports on lobbying expenditures, and restrictions on gifts by lobbyists.

SHOREHAM, Berrien County: Founded by William Ducker. Ducker, being English, liked the 'ham' ending to words. So with its full length along the shore of Lake Michigan when it came to its name, Ducker combined 'shore' with 'ham' and named it Shoreham. Village incorporated on April 7, 1930.

STEVENSVILLE, Berrien County: Named after a prominent banker from Niles, Thomas Stevens, who owned a large tract of land in the area, and laid out the village plat in 1871. Incorporated a village in 1893.

OX CREEK, Berrien County: Historians say that in the early days of Benton township settlers invariably got stuck crossing the creek at Territorial Road with their yoke of oxen. Hence, the name, Ox Creek.

SAINT JOSEPH, Berrien County: In the early 1800's sailors called its harbor, Saranac; in 1831, founder Calvin Britain named it Newberryport; and in 1833 it was renamed after the St. Joseph River, which early Catholic missionaries named in honor of St. Joseph, patron saint of Canada. Incorporated a village in 1834 and a city in 1891.

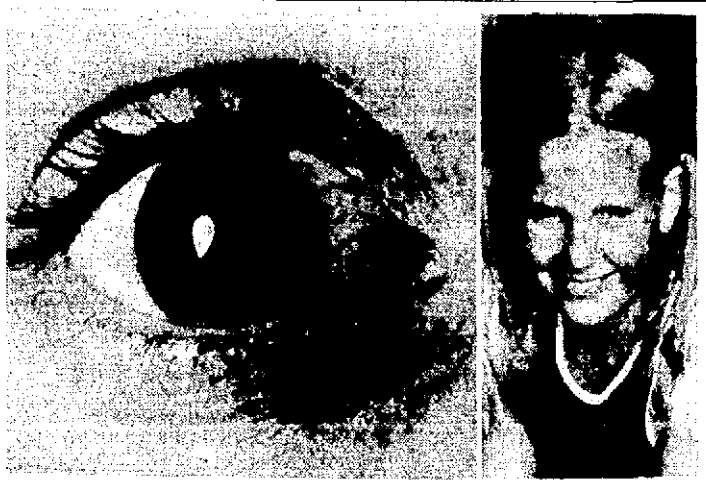

BENTON HARBOR, Berrien County: Originally named Brunson Harbor after co-founder Sterne Brunson. Renamed in 1866 for U.S. Senator Thomas Hart Benton of Missouri who had championed the Territory of Michigan's plea for statehood. Incorporated a village in 1866, a city in 1891.

BRIDGMAN, Berrien County: Named for George Bridgman who directed construction of a railroad from New Buffalo to St. Joseph, donated land for a depot, and laid out the village in 1870. Incorporated a village in 1927 and as a city in 1949.

Transplant Restores Her Sight

By DON DURST

HUDSON, Mich. (AP) — From morning until night for more than a fortnight, 8-year-old Amie Barnes has approached everything with renewed confidence because her vision is stabilized again.

The traumatic experience for this third grader in Lincoln Elementary School began Aug. 18, 1975, two months before her sixth birthday.

She was helping her mother put away groceries when two pop bottles exploded in her face.

Noting that the pupil of her right eye was dislocated, a surgical team performed an emergency operation lasting seven hours and requiring 23 stitches.

When the operation was over, the surgeon confided to the parents:

"All you can do now is pray that infection doesn't setin."

Three and a half months later an ulcer developed, and lighter stitching had to be substituted so the eye could heal.

That operation left a scar through Amie's right eye, permitting light to enter but obscuring her vision.

"She could see a doll's head but not distingnish its features," Mrs. Barnes explained.

Then began a series of trips to the Ann Arbor hospital for tests at intervals in which the longest gap was six to eight weeks.

The decision for Amie's corneal transplant came during what she and her parents thought was to be a routine examination.

A new staff physician from Florida recommended that action because Amie's eyesight had not improved in a year.

The transplant was performed July 8 last year.

"Amie's recovery was a slow process," Mrs. Barnes recalled. "That eye was sore and bloodshot for three months. We tested her vision at home by standing across the room and holding up our fingers for her to count."

Safely glasses protect Amie's eyes whenever she leaves the house and her actions are restricted. She was forced to withdraw from contact sports in school after the accident to avoid what doctors feared could be a damaging blow to the head.

Amie's mother says she feels Amie was very lucky to still have her eye.

"Amie was in a lot of pain," she said. "We asked the doctor how it must feel, and he replied, 'Take a hand full of gravel and throw it into your eye. Then you'll know.'"

The cornea used in Amie's operation came from the Michigan Eye Bank at Wayne State University.

Jack Ford Shunning Rock Musicians

PEOPLE
By Robin Adams Sloan

Q. I don't hear of President Ford's son Jack hanging around with the rock stars anymore. Was that a political decision? — M.V., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Even before he decided to pitch in and help his dad's run for the presidency, Jack had soured on rock musicians who, he felt, were using him for publicity. Also, with homosexuality rife on the rock disco scene, young Ford could only hurt his image and start ugly rumors by being pictured repeatedly in the company of the glitter crowd. But Jack still likes the music and often sits unrecognized in the general audience at concerts.

Q: I heard tha Twiggy was going to do a live concert in London. How was it? — V. McD., Cambridge, Mass.

A: Apparently, Twiggy had an almost paralyzing case of stage fright. She barely got through it — hardly able to talk, much less sing. Never again, says Twiggy. She plans to stick to movies and filmed TV from now on where there are always retakes and cue cards.

Q: Is it true that the kind of car used on the TV show "Happy Days" is becoming a collector's item? — H.Z., Columbia, S.C.

A: Yes, and now the Chrysler Corporation is cashing in on the Fonzie craze by dreaming up a Fonzmobile. For $800 worth of modification, a used Duster or Dart can be changed into a 1950-style car.

Q: Now that Glen Campbell is marrying the former wife of singer Mac Davis, how are the two "old buddies" getting along? — D.S., Macon, Ga.

A: Astonishingly enough, just fine. The two entertainers appeared together on a Las Vegas stage to tell the audience that there never were any harsh feelings between them and blame all the nasty rumors of feuding on gossip columnists and an irresponsible press. If we remember correctly, that was not the way Davis was talking a while ago. But never mind, we're just as happy to report on peace treaties as on declarations of war.

QUESTIONS YOU NEVER ASKED: What Hollywood ten percenter lost over a million dollars by making a wrong decision? That would be agent George Chasen who, according to Irving Fein in his Jack Benny biography, turned down a chance to represent the great comedian in 1965 because he thought Benny was too old at age 71. In the next nine years Benny made some $12 million for a few hours of work a week in print and TV ads.

A: Michelle reportedly flew in from London where she was preparing to star opposite Rudolph Nureyev in the film "Valentino," to catch Beatty at the convention and make sure things were all lovey-dovey as before. There must have been some sort of crisis because it was only a week or so ago that Michelle left New York for England by boat. Anyway, Michelle ought to be in Spain by now, starting on the movie, and the election ought to keep politically minded Beatty out of circulation for a while.

GUESS WHO? What book is expected to cause a huge stir in television circles? The novel being written by Cliff Barrett, who was with NBC's News and Information Service. It's fiction yes, but the title is "No Dame Is Worth a Million Dollars a Year." Now who could that be about do you suppose?

Q: Here we go candidate-watching like crazy. So can you tell us who Mrs. Carter's favorite designer is and who did that red dress she wore on nomination night? — R.R., Camden, N.J.

A: So far, Albert Nippon has the inside track with Mrs. Carter. He made the dress she wore. It retails for about $138.

Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, August 2, the 215th day of 1976. There are 151 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1934, Adolf Hitler became dictator of Germany after the death of President Paul von Hindenburg.

On this date:

In 1610, the English navigator, Henry Hudson, entered the body of water now known as Hudson Bay.

In 1914, Germany invaded France, Belgium and Luxembourg, and Russia invaded Germany as World War I was building up.

In 1927, President Calvin Coolidge said at Black Hills, South Dakota: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928."

In 1939, Albert Einstein wrote to President Franklin Roosevelt and advised that the U.S. begin an atomic research program.

In 1974, former White House Counsel John Dean was sentenced to one to four years in prison for his admitted role in the Watergate coverup.

One year ago: President Ford and Soviet Communist Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev held a second meeting in Helsinki, Finland without an apparent break-through in efforts to curb the nuclear arms race.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, most of the members of the Continental Congress in Philadelphia affixed their signatures to the engrossed copy of the American Declaration of Independence.

TACKLE WEIGHTY PROBLEM

Overeaters Adopt AA Tactics

By BETTY MANSEN

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Obesity is one of humanity's weightiest problems. Often an overload of fat gets so heavy a team is required to get rid of it.

New to the sad, fat land of the compulsive eater in Saginaw, if not to other parts of the country, is an apparently successful losing team called Overeaters Anonymous. Members claim it has helped them lose weight and control their habit of overeating when all other methods or groups had failed.

Overeaters Anonymous (OA) is based upon principles of behavior control originated by Alcoholics Anonymous and, with AA's permission, uses an adaptation of its materials, including the basic steps to appetite control and the popular "Serenity Prayer."

"In many ways, being a food addict is worse than being an alcoholic or drug addict," said Carol, who is a member of Saginaw's "Just For Today" chapter of OA.

"An alcoholic can structure his or her life so there is little or no contact with alcohol," she continued. "But a compulsive eater must contend with food for the rest of his life. It keeps him alive, even though it can kill him."

The groups meet weekly and members are supplied with coffee or iced tea to stip as they meet. Anonymity is the rule, so they can talk openly and frankly about their progress or their problems.

There is much reliance on prayer, on a higher power, and on supportiveness from other overeaters.

"A number of our members have physical problems requiring special Carol explained. "They joined OA because they had trouble staying on their diets. Some of them are here to stay alive."

The problems of the chronic overeater are the same in many respects as those of the alcoholic.

"The difficulty most of us have," said Jerry, another OA member, is that there is no such thing as just a nibble of food...only a taste. A taste, and we're on our way. With a compulsive overeater, it's the whole thing."

There are no dues or real membership roster. A free-will collection is taken at the close of each meeting, and this money is used to buy literature.

OA members are furnished with a pamphlet listing 15 rules for overcoming their compulsion to gobble down food they don't need. They also can have a couple of OA diet plus, high in protein and low in carbohydrate, or they can choose their own methods of dieting.

"We've found that often a piece of candy or a lick of chocolate frosting is enough to kick off an eating binge," said Carol.

The importance of food sponsors was emphasized by Carol and other OA members.

"These are members who have successfully abstained from compulsive overeating for 21 days. You can pick a food sponsor from the list to call when you feel an eating-binge coming on," said Jackie.

"Often a member will write out a food plan at the beginning of each day, call and red it to their food sponsor. This is a commitment, a kind of promise to oneself and someone else."

The first five days of abstaining from compulsive eating usually are the hardest, OA members agree. All admit to occasional backsliding into eating binges, particularly when under stress.

The women at one meeting — there were no men — discussed the problems of "setups" for food binges, either self-inflicted or by others.

"My husband is fond of saying 'let's go for an ice cream cone'," said one. "Now I'm able to say 'I don't really feel like one right now, honey, but I'd be glad to ride along while you enjoy one.'"

Democrat House Candidates Back Political Reform Law

Three Democratic candidates for the State Legislature from the 43rd and 44th Districts have pledged to work for re-enactment of the Political Reform Act of 1975, if elected, according to a poll conducted by Common Cause.

Common Cause, known as the "peoples' lobby," sent questionnaires to every legislative candidate, according to Deborah Havener of Tecumseh, Common Cause media coordinator.

Among respondents were Laurel Groenke of Baroda, Democratic candidate in the 43rd district; Charles Henderson and Lawrence Sherman of Benton Harbor, Democratic candidates in the 44th District. Common Cause said Republican incumbents Harry Gast Jr., 43rd, and Ray Mittan, 44th, did not respond.

The Political Reform Act of 1975 passed the Legislature but was declared unconstitutional by the Michigan Supreme court because it covered separate issues. Common cause said it is proposed to make separate laws of the former single act.

Common Cause said Henderson and Sherman responded in favor of all proposals. Groenke did not respond on acts for creation of an independent ethics commission, partial public funding of campaigns for governor, and campaign contribution limits.

Common Cause said all three candidates agreed on proposals for campaign expenditure limits for candidates receiving public funds; campaign contribution disclosure statements before and after elections; disclosure of business interests, sources of income and major real estate holdings; prohibiting public officials from participating in decisions that could affect their financial interests; public reports on lobbying expenditures, and restrictions on gifts by lobbyists.

EXCERPTS

SHOREHAM, Berrien County: Founded by William Ducker. Ducker, being English, liked the 'ham' ending to words. So with its full length along the shore of Lake Michigan when it came to its name, Ducker combined 'shore' with 'ham' and named it Shoreham. Village incorporated on April 7, 1930.

STEVENSVILLE, Berrien County: Named after a prominent banker from Niles, Thomas Stevens, who owned a large tract of land in the area, and laid out the village plat in 1871. Incorporated a village in 1893.

OX CREEK, Berrien County: Historians say that in the early days of Benton township settlers invariably got stuck crossing the creek at Territorial Road with their yoke of oxen. Hence, the name, Ox Creek.

SAINT JOSEPH, Berrien County: In the early 1800's sailors called its harbor, Saranac; in 1831, founder Calvin Britain named it Newberryport; and in 1833 it was renamed after the St. Joseph River, which early Catholic missionaries named in honor of St. Joseph, patron saint of Canada. Incorporated a village in 1834 and a city in 1891.

BENTON HARBOR, Berrien County: Originally named Brunson Harbor after co-founder Sterne Brunson. Renamed in 1866 for U.S. Senator Thomas Hart Benton of Missouri who had championed the Territory of Michigan's plea for statehood. Incorporated a village in 1866, a city in 1891.

BRIDGMAN, Berrien County: Named for George Bridgman who directed construction of a railroad from New Buffalo to St. Joseph, donated land for a depot, and laid out the village in 1870. Incorporated a village in 1927 and as a city in 1949.

Jack Ford Shunning Rock Musicians

Q. I don't hear of President Ford's son Jack hanging around with the rock stars anymore. Was that a political decision? — M.V., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Even before he decided to pitch in and help his dad's run for the presidency, Jack had soured on rock musicians who, he felt, were using him for publicity. Also, with homosexuality rife on the rock disco scene, young Ford could only hurt his image and start ugly rumors by being pictured repeatedly in the company of the glitter crowd. But Jack still likes the music and often sits unrecognized in the general audience at concerts.

Q: I heard tha Twiggy was going to do a live concert in London. How was it? — V. McD., Cambridge, Mass.

A: Apparently, Twiggy had an almost paralyzing case of stage fright. She barely got through it — hardly able to talk, much less sing. Never again, says Twiggy. She plans to stick to movies and filmed TV from now on where there are always retakes and cue cards.

Q: Is it true that the kind of car used on the TV show "Happy Days" is becoming a collector's item? — H.Z., Columbia, S.C.

A: Yes, and now the Chrysler Corporation is cashing in on the Fonzie craze by dreaming up a Fonzmobile. For $800 worth of modification, a used Duster or Dart can be changed into a 1950-style car.

Q: Now that Glen Campbell is marrying the former wife of singer Mac Davis, how are the two "old buddies" getting along? — D.S., Macon, Ga.

A: Astonishingly enough, just fine. The two entertainers appeared together on a Las Vegas stage to tell the audience that there never were any harsh feelings between them and blame all the nasty rumors of feuding on gossip columnists and an irresponsible press. If we remember correctly, that was not the way Davis was talking a while ago. But never mind, we're just as happy to report on peace treaties as on declarations of war.

QUESTIONS YOU NEVER ASKED: What Hollywood ten percenter lost over a million dollars by making a wrong decision? That would be agent George Chasen who, according to Irving Fein in his Jack Benny biography, turned down a chance to represent the great comedian in 1965 because he thought Benny was too old at age 71. In the next nine years Benny made some $12 million for a few hours of work a week in print and TV ads.

A: Michelle reportedly flew in from London where she was preparing to star opposite Rudolph Nureyev in the film "Valentino," to catch Beatty at the convention and make sure things were all lovey-dovey as before. There must have been some sort of crisis because it was only a week or so ago that Michelle left New York for England by boat. Anyway, Michelle ought to be in Spain by now, starting on the movie, and the election ought to keep politically minded Beatty out of circulation for a while.

GUESS WHO? What book is expected to cause a huge stir in television circles? The novel being written by Cliff Barrett, who was with NBC's News and Information Service. It's fiction yes, but the title is "No Dame Is Worth a Million Dollars a Year." Now who could that be about do you suppose?

The Bat, Nighttime Aerial Whiz, Is Man's Ally, Specialist Says

RIGHT MOVE: Four years ago Richard Berger was fired from a $45,000-a-year corporation executive's job. Since then he's shaved his head, sprouted a thick white beared, stuck a gold ring in his ear and has been literally flushed with success. He's known as Mr. Ric and is owner-operator of three public poker and pan parlors in San Bruno, Calif. (AP Wirephoto)

EAST LANSING — If a bat flits unceremoniously through your home, dón't get all uptight — it's more ally than foe.

"Only in a few instances are people bitten by a bat in Michigan. For the most part, they are far less dangerous than a mouse," says Glenn R. Dudderar, Michigan State university extension wildlife specialist.

The only time a bat is apt to bite is when it is handled or when it may be rabid. Almost any mammal, as is the bat, can be a carrier of rabies. But chances of a person encountering a rabid bat are about as slim as coming across any other rabid animal.

"Certainly, if a person is bitten by a bat, or any other wild animal, a doctor should be immediately consulted. Other than that minute possibility, bats native to Michigan should be considered harmless," Dudderar says.

There are eight species in Michigan — Big Brown Bat, Little Brown Bat, Keen Bat, Evening Bat, Red Bat, Silvery Bat, Hoary Bat and the Indiana Bat.

"These are extremely beneficial in that they feed entirely on flying insects. Bats are nocturnal in habit and are most often seen at dusk and early morning just before dawn. They rest during daylight hours, hanging upside down by their hind feet in some dark cave, tree and occasionally, for some species, in an occupied building," Dudderar explains.

Bats navigate and find their prey by emitting up to 200 voice beeps per second, detecting the returning echo with their large ears. It is similar to, but most sophisticated than man's sonar used in ships.

Able to hear an echo from a target small as a fruit fly, bats have been observed catching two in half a second and up to 220 in 15 minutes.

The female bat carries young with her on nightly flights, the little bats clinging tightly to the hair of the mother's body. This habit is necessary since bats do not make nests.

Depending upon the species, a female has from one to three offspring and they seldom impede the mother's ability to forage for insects. The young seem to be able to care for themselves after about 50 days.

Most bats found in houses have by chance blundered in. Usually, they will fly out through a window opened from the top or an opened door. If it can't get out, a fish net, tennis racket, broom or towel can be used to knock it down. If it isn't killed by the capture, release it outside.

"If a colony takes up residence in the attic, they should be removed because of potential of disease, the parasites they may be carrying and noise and odor bats create," Dudderar says.

They usually enter the attic from openings under the eaves, around the chimney, through vents or gaps in the wall. Getting them out may be a task.

"One way is to thoroughly light the attic for several days. As bats like complete darkness they may leave. Another is placement of mothballs, five pounds for every 2,000 cubic feet," Dudderar says.

Controversy Clouds End Of 1976 Games

Olympic Future Uncertain

By BOB GREEN
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — The 1976 Summer Olympics are over.

Now the question is, are the Olympics over? Has the world outgrown the vision of Baron de Coubertin, who sought brotherhood through sports in founding the modern Games in 1892? Has, as International Olympic Committee director Monique Berlioux said, the soul gone out of the Olympics?

The Games ended Sunday, as they started more than two weeks ago, with pomp and ceremony clouded by controversy and international political wrangling.

They ended with the Soviet Union, the host country for the 1980 Games and the country whose athletes won the most medals here, accusing Canada of kidnaping a 17-year-old diver and angrily demanding his return to Russian control.

It was symbolic of the course of the Games — athletes serving as pawns in a larger game, mere walk-on participants on a global stage concerned with politics, international diplomacy, racial tensions, wheat deals, fears, security.

"They have placed an iron collar on the Olympics," said Madame Berlioux. "The soul has gone. The Olympic spirit is missing."

The next Games are in Moscow, four years from now. There is no way of knowing how they will fare. There are reports from China indicating that enormous nation, not an Olympic participant, may stage conflicting games with invitations to the 28 African nations that boycotted the XXI Olympiad.

Beyond Moscow, the future is even more cloudy. Conflicting proposals have been made — disperse the Olympics among various countries, or give the Games a permanent site in Greece.

Phillip Krumm, the head of the United States Olympic Committee, opposed the latter suggestion and insisted that (1) the Games will continue and (2) the Americans will improve. "The name and the Games will carry on," he said, but noticed, "we face some gigantic problems of organization."

As to the Americans' performance, which ended on a high note Saturday, Krumm said, "We did better than the last Olympics against tougher competition. We spend $1 million a year on team development. The East Germans spend $50 million. We are the only country that does not have some government assistance."

The Americans won eight gold medals Saturday, five of them in boxing, for their best showing of the Games. But there was disappointment, too. They lost a couple they figured to win — Frank Shorter in the marathon and Dwight Stones in the high jump.

The United States finished with 34 gold medals, 35 silver and 25 bronze, a total of 94. Russia led with a count of 47-43-35, 125. East Germany, backed by a massive government subsidy program, produced 40-25-25, 90 over-all. Most of them came from its women, who dominated the swimming events almost to the extent the American men ruled theirs.

Shirley Babashoff, America's top woman swimmer who won three silver and a gold, cast a glance at the broad-shouldered East German women and sniffed:

"I'm glad I don't have to walk around my neighborhood looking like a guy."

The East German women won both their relays in the final day of track and field, and the American men won both of theirs.

Harvey Glance, Phoenix City, Ala.; Johnny Jones, Lampasas, Tex.; Millard Hampton, San Jose, Calif., and Steve Riddick, Philadelphia, won the 400-meter relay in 38.33 seconds.

The quartet of Harvey Frazier, Philadelphia; Bennie Brown, Malpitas, Calif.; Fred Newhouse, Baton Rouge, La., and Maxie Parks, Los Angeles, won the 1,600 meters easily in 2:58.66.

Those were the fifth and sixth gold medals collected by the Americans in track and field, a sport they once dominated. They expected to win the marathon, where Shorter was defending, and the high jump, where the flamboyant Stones holds the world record.

But an obscure East German, a converted steeplechaser named Waldemar Cierpinski, swept through a steady rain in an Olympic record 2 hours, 9 minutes and 55 seconds, putting Shorter behind him with about five miles to go in the 26-mile, 385-yard test. Shorter took the silver medal in 2:10:45.8. Lasse Viren, the bearded Finn who won the 5,000-and 10,000-meter races, finished fifth in his quest for a distance triple.

In the high jump, Poland's Jacek Wszola won at 7 feet, 4½ inches. Stones was third at 7-3.

John Walker of New Zealand won as expected with a slow, strategic 3:39.17 in the 1,500 meters. Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, the world record holder at the distance, was among the missing. His nation boycotted the Games.

Ivanka Khristove of Bulgaria won the only other track and field gold of the final day with a throw of 69-5 in the women's shot put.

There was a brother act in the boxers, too. Middleweight Mike Spinks, St. Louis, won his division and older brother Leon, a U.S. Marine stationed at Camp Lejuene, N.C., won the gold in the light-heavy class. Leo Randolph, Tacoma, Wash., won at 112 pounds, Howard Davis, Glen Cove, N.Y., took the gold at 132 pounds and Sugar Ray Leonard, Palmer Park, Md., won at 140.

The only American loser in the final round was Army Sgt. Charles Mooney, Ft. Bragg, N.C., at 119 pounds. The United States finished with five gold, a silver and a bronze, by far its best boxing showing ever.

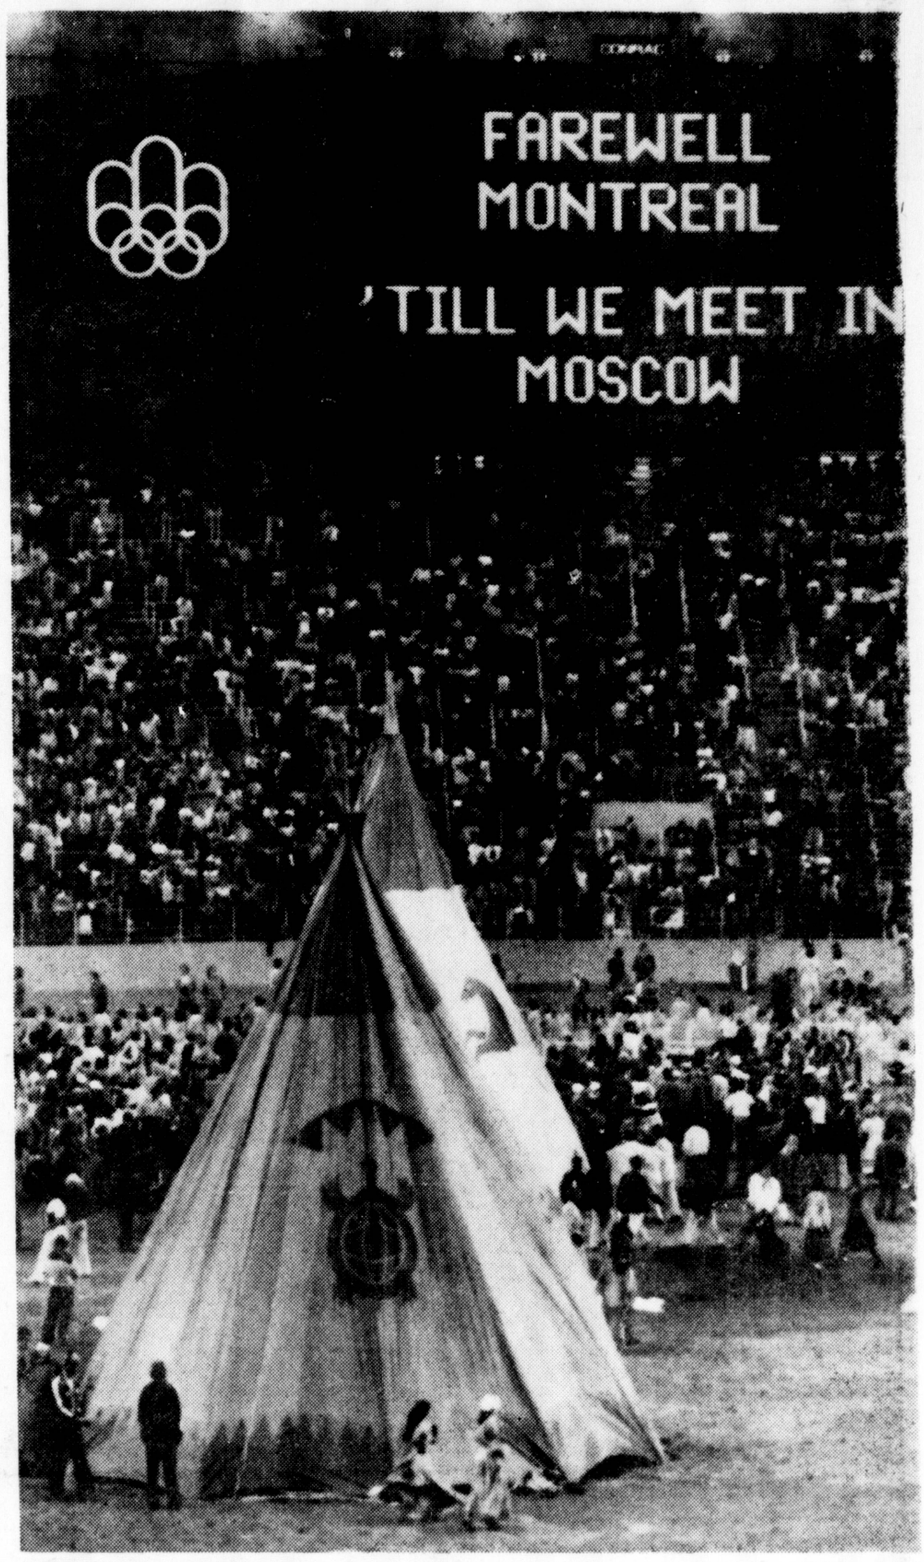

The Games closed Sunday night with France winning the equestrian team jumping gold medal, followed by West Germany and Belgium.

Only six athletes from each nation marched in the closing ceremony Sunday night, followed by the traditional lighting of candles, extinguishing of the Olympic flame and singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Then they took their memories and their medals and dispersed to the far corners of the world.

The memories may be better than the medals.

BH Nets Special Olympic Medals

Fifteen local boys and girls from the Benton Harbor Area Schools team produced 22 medals in the track and swimming events in the 1976 Michigan Special Olympics at Central Michigan University.

Local medal winners were Charles Bledsoe, first in 220-yard run and second in long jump; James Caldwell, third in the 25-yard freestyle; Tom Clark, first in long jump and second in 220 run; Jackie Cooper, second in 50 freestyle and third in 25 freestyle; Regina Flemming, third in 50 dash; and Hal Greer, third in 50 dash and long jump.

Other medal winners included Teresa Jones, third in long jump and softball throw; Jewell Moore, third in 25 backstroke; Elvis O'Neal, first in 25 freestyle; Ted Smith, first in 220 run and third in 50 dash; Duane Stoutmiles, second in 50 dash; Terry Michael, first in long jump and third in softball throw; and Kathy Viverette, first in 50 dash and softball throw. Kevin Moore and Paul Stout received participant medals.

Chaperoning the students on the trip to Mt. Pleasant were volunteers Julia Trowbridge, coordinator of the local games; and Dan Graber, Dwight Sempert and Erma Mitchell.

The Benton Harbor team was sponsored by local businesses and by donations from friends through a unique "rip-off" poster campaign. About $388 was raised for the trip.

The Special Olympics, sponsored nationally by the Joseph F. Kennedy Jr. Foundation and other groups including the Whirlpool Foundation, provides a setting for special education student-athletes to develop confidence and a sense of self-esteem.

The 15 Benton Harbor students were selected as tops in their class after local competition involving about 180 students was staged in April. Nationwide, the Olympics included 1,400 meets in every state, with nearly 300,000 special education students competing. In Michigan, it is estimated that 20,000 students vie for honors each year.

Americans Fall Behind E. Germany, Russia

Should U.S. Bail Out Olympics?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States took an inventory of its Olympic medals today, all 94 of them, then began pondering the inevitable question:

Can a nation operating as a free society continue to match athletic skills with highly regimented and totally subsidized teams from countries such as the Soviet Union and East Germany?

That question spawned other questions:

Should the U.S. government step in and bail out our Olympic effort?

Must America resort to the "factory system," glorified by the East Germans, and start turning out Olympic medalists the way Detroit produces automobiles?

"Our society would never stand for a factory system or even a national team," Krumm insists. "We need government money for development and facilities. We do not want government direction."

The grandfatherly retired business executive from Kenosha, Wis., said he had no apologies to make for the Americans' over-all performance in the Montreal Games.

"Better than Munich," he said, "and against stronger competition."

The U.S. medal total equaled the count four years ago but there was one additional gold, 34 to 33, and improvement in a number of the more obscure sports.

On the other hand, the Soviet Union enlarged its over-all superiority, increasing its total medal count from 99 to 125, and East Germany, with a population less than one-tenth that of the United States, climbed over Uncle Sam's back into second place in the standings based on golds.

The Russians won 47, East Germany 40 and the United States 34.

This subordinate position to Communist rivals is certain to provoke fresh howls from the traditional "Viewers With Alarm," who think the powerful United States should never lose sports contests.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association will say it is all the fault of the Amateur Athletic Union. The AAU will blame the NCAA. And the President may name another commission to look into it all.

Yet, America isn't ready to set up a robot school such as the East Germans have at Leipzig, with its teams of white-coated doctors, test tubes, wires and treadmills to produce world-class athletes. Nor does America seem inclined to turn all of its top athletes into students and teachers on a permanent payroll with special bonuses for extra athletic achievement, as in the Soviet Union.

The thought of a national team is offensive to most officials and athletes.

Gold medalist Mac Wilkins, one of the harshest critics of the U.S. Olympic Committee, admitted he might have thrown the discus 250 feet if he had been a product of the Leipzig factory, but added:

"That's not for me. I wouldn't trade my personal freedom for all the records in the world."

Dean Smith, the basketball coach, said, "I think it's great we have a fresh, new team every four years."

The best advertisement for the U.S. system was Bruce Jenner, winner of the 10-sport decathlon. He trained four years on his own to achieve the Olympics' toughest gold.

The dull, unresponsive eyes of Nadia Comaneci reflected what might be the tragedy of the regimentation system. The 14-year-old Romanian fascinated the world with her performance on the bars and beams of gymnastics. But here was a little girl who had experienced nothing beyond coaches and directions for half her tender years. She was an adult without a childhood.

"It was fun — a game at first," she said poignantly, "but now it is work."

Krumm says the United States must face up to one fact: "The rest of the world is catching up with us. Why should we win all the medals? I like to see small countries win."

Alberto Juantorena, from little Cuba, did what no middle distance runner had ever done before — he won the 400 and 800 meters. Bearded Lasse Viren of Finland won the 5,000 and 10,000 meter tests, each for the second time, and still had strength enough to challenge in the marathon.

The United States experienced disappointments from world record-holders expected to win and from its once indominable women swimmers. But the Americans produced five boxing champions, scored well in wrestling, almost swept the pool in men's swimming, won back the basketball championship and scored in such little recognized events as shooting, women's rowing, archery, equestrian and judo.

Track and field wasn't a complete disaster although the shot-putters failed to get a medal for the first time since 1936; the sprinters were outraced because of the absence of Steve Williams and Houston McTear, and pole-vaulter Dave Roberts and high-jumper Dwight Stones both lost to outsiders while failing to equal their world record heights in the rain.

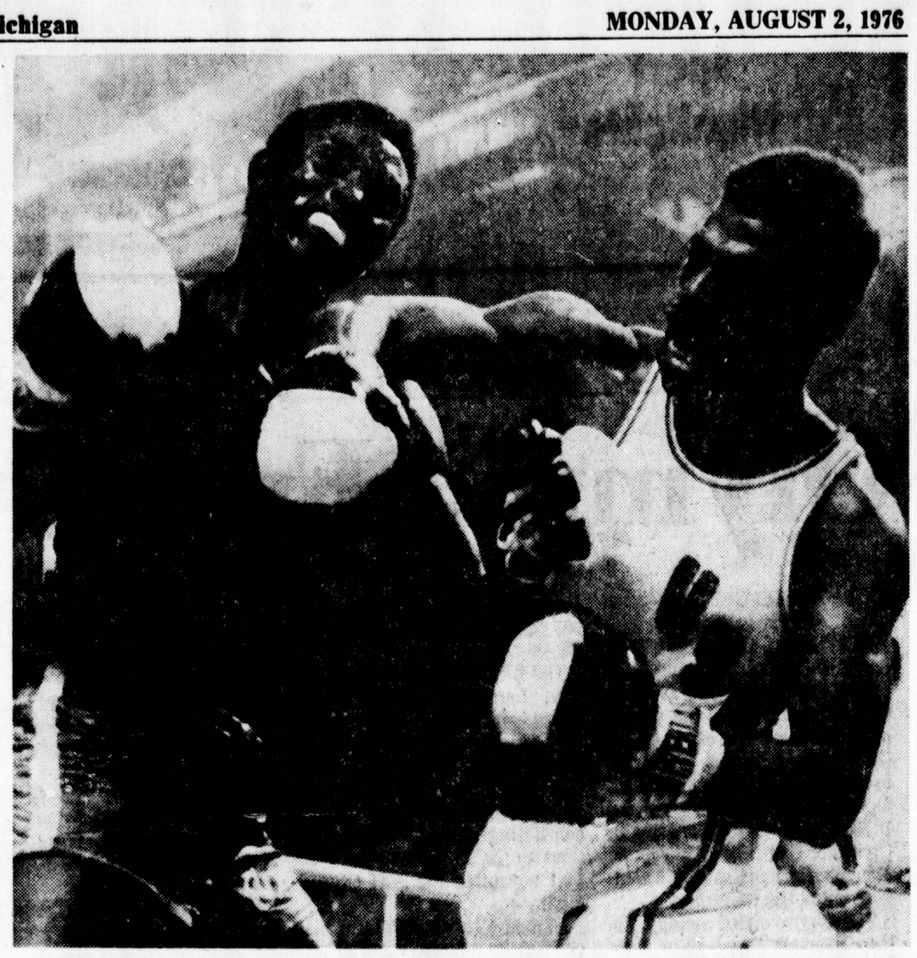

"One of our aims is to improve our showing in women's sports," Krumm said. He apparently referred to closing the gap in women's swimming and boosting women's track and field.

Otherwise, the girls carried their part of the load in the Montreal Games.

The girls' basketball team unexpectedly won a silver for second place. The women rowers won a silver and a bronze. Dorothy Morkis of Raynham, Mass., was largely responsible for the bronze in equestrian team dressage. Margaret Murdock of Topeka, Kan., became the first U.S. woman ever to win a shooting medal — a silver.

The Americans netted two golds in archery, a bronze in judo. Pete Kormann of New Haven, Conn., won a bronze in floor exercises, the first men's gymnastics medal in 44 years.

"I dispute the suggestion that we lost ground," Krumm said. "We held our own in the big name sports and showed improvement in the minor ones. Ours was a good Olympics."

U.S. Boxers Gain Five Gold Medals

The six U.S. finalists in the finals of the boxing competition emerged from the ring at the Forum Saturday night with five gold medals and a silver. Randolph, Sugar Ray Leonard, brothers Mike and Leon Spinks and Howard Davis all scored victories for gold medals while Charles Mooney lost a 5-0 decision to Yong Jo Gu of North Korea for the silver.

"This is the happiest I've been since I became a Christian," said Randolph, an 18-year-old from Tacoma, Wash.

Leonard also beat a Cuban lefthander, pounding out a unanimous decision over Andres Aldama. Sugar Ray disdained using his right hand for most of the fight but unloaded it in the final 20 seconds.

Middleweight Mike Spinks beat world champion Rufat Riskiev badly about the head and stopped the Russian in the third round.

Spinks knocked down Riskiev with a blasting right to the head in the second round of the 165-pound fight. He then forced Riskiev to take a standing count from head shots in the third round and stopped him after another standing count at 1:54.

Riskiev contended he had been hit low during an exchange, but a television replay showed no low blow.

In joining his middleweight brother as a gold medalist, Leon crashed a right to Soria's temple that dropped the Cuban flat on his face. He got up but the Soviet referee ruled he was unable to continue. Spinks also knocked Soria down in the first round of the 178-pound bout.

Davis put on a brilliant exhibition of fighting in winning the 132-pound championship. He speared Romanian Simion Cutov with left jabs and rocked him with right hands throughout the three rounds. At one point, he slammed home seven shots to the head of the frustrated Cutov.

Mooney, who was fighting with a heavy chest cold, faded quickly in the third round in losing the unanimous decision to the North Korean.

In other boxing finals Saturday night, World Champion Jorge Hernandez of Cuba speared North Korean Byong Uk Li with jabs and crisp right hands and won the Olympic 106-pound light-flyweight boxing championship on a 4-1 decision.

Big Winners, Losers At Olympics

MONTREAL (AP) — The philosophical credo of the Olympics is to compete, not to win. Philosophically, then, there were more than 7,000 winners at the 1976 Summer Games.

But on the theory that gold is indeed more cherished than silver, bronze or a paper certificate of participation, here are the biggest winners and losers in the five major sports:

Track and Field

Bruce Jenner of the United States laid claim to the title of the world's best athlete with a record-shattering performance in the decathlon. A strong man with matinee-idol looks, Jenner says he would welcome movie offers.

Alberto Juantorena of Cuba, who strides like a thoroughbred race horse, galloped to impressive victories in the 400 and 800 meters, the first man ever to win this double in Olympic history. He dedicated both triumphs to his leader, Fidel Castro, and the revolution.

Lasse Viren of Finland won the Woolworth double — the 5,000 and 10,000 meters — for the second straight Olympics. He tried the killing marathon for the first time ever, finished fifth, and said: "The race was not so very hard. I trained almost 30 miles a day."

The biggest losers in track and field are Americans Dwight Stones and Frank Shorter.

Stones, a heavy favorite in the high jump, didn't like the Olympic housing accommodations so he returned to California to train. He didn't like the rain that fell constantly during the high jump final. He didn't like the way the Canadians didn't finish the Olympic edifices on time. He didn't like his third-place finish, either.

Shorter trained four years to finish second in the grueling 26-plus miles of marathon. "In 1972 (at Munich), I never expected to win," Shorter said. "Today (Sunday), I did."

Swimming and Diving

The American men won 12 of 13 gold medals. Particularly brilliant was John Naber, who took four golds — two in relay races — and a silver, and Brian Goodell, a 17-year-old high school kid who won both the 400-and grueling 1,500-meter freestyles in world record times.

The East German women won 11 of 13 gold medals. Kornelia Ender, a classy 17-year-old, was the dominant member of the team, winning three individual races, including two that were only 25 minutes apart.

Klaus Dibiasi of Italy won his third straight Olympic gold in platform diving and his fourth medal in this event spanning a 12-year period.

The swimming and diving losers were the American women, who won a single gold medal but went under swinging at the broad-shouldered East Germans, and the Russian diving team.

We don't want to lift weights and look like them, the American women said as they had no difficulty lifting their bronze and silver medals. The Russians went home one diver short, losing 17-year-old Sergei Nemtsanov to Canada — by defection, according to the Canadians, and by the charms of a young girl, according to the Soviets.

Gymnastics

Nadia Comaneci of Romania, the doll of the gymnastics set, won three individual gold medals, then made the covers of "Newsweek," "Time" and "Sports Illustrated." She was given a perfect 10 seven times.

Nikolai Andrianov of the Soviet Union won four individual gold medals, but didn't make the cover of any publication, at least in the West.

The losers in the gymnastics were Russia's Olga Korbut and, in one sense, Andrianov.

Miss Korbut, love object of the gymnastic world when she won two gold medals four years ago, lost her stage to Comaneci and picked up a lone individual silver medal. Asked by one reporter how she felt about her drop in status, Miss Korbut answered: "I don't want to answer that." Then she walked out of the room.

Andrianov fell victim to the syndrome that no one loves a male gymnast. His big night immediately followed Comaneci's, but there was no fuss. "I'm not jealous," he said. "People are always more interested in women then men."

Basketball

The United States regained the gold medal in the sport born in America. Coach Dean Smith gets the top award as the man who molded 12 individuals into a smooth-working unit. The top American players were Adrian Dantley and Scott May, but the biggest winners may be the Buffalo Braves and Chicago Bulls, who now own the respective services of Dantley and May.

The biggest basketball loser was the Soviet Union, which killed the four-year-old grudge game with the United States by losing to Yugoslavia in the semifinals. Secondary losers are the teams in the National Basketball Association that don't have the rights to May and Dantley.

Boxing

Cuban Teofilo Stevenson won his second straight Olympic heavyweight gold medal, stopping all four of his opponents.

The biggest boxing losers were Stevenson's four opponents, especially American John Tate, who showed much courage and little sense by fighting recklessly against the big Cuban. His reward was a devastating right hand, which knocked him silly for the 10-count.

Overall, the biggest winners were the Soviet Union, with 47 gold medals, East Germany, with 40, and the United States, with 34.

Among the biggest losers were the athletes of Taiwan, who trained for the Olympics but didn't compete because of a political dispute with Canada.

But, because of this political problem and others, such as the withdrawl of 28 African nations, the biggest loser probably was the Olympic ideal.

Rush New Coach

Hauch Takes Race

Controversy Clouds End Of 1976 Games

Olympic Future Uncertain

By BOB GREEN
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — The 1976 Summer Olympics are over.

Now the question is, are the Olympics over? Has the world outgrown the vision of Baron de Coubertin, who sought brotherhood through sports in founding the modern Games in 1892? Has, as International Olympic Committee director Monique Berlioux said, the soul gone out of the Olympics?

The Games ended Sunday, as they started more than two weeks ago, with pomp and ceremony clouded by controversy and international political wrangling.

They ended with the Soviet Union, the host country for the 1980 Games and the country whose athletes won the most medals here, accusing Canada of kidnaping a 17-year-old diver and angrily demanding his return to Russian control.

It was symbolic of the course of the Games — athletes serving as pawns in a larger game, mere walk-on participants on a global stage concerned with politics, international diplomacy, racial tensions, wheat deals, fears, security.

"They have placed an iron collar on the Olympics," said Madame Berlioux. "The soul has gone. The Olympic spirit is missing."

The next Games are in Moscow, four years from now. There is no way of knowing how they will fare. There are reports from China indicating that enormous nation, not an Olympic participant, may stage conflicting games with invitations to the 28 African nations that boycotted the XXI Olympiad.

Beyond Moscow, the future is even more cloudy. Conflicting proposals have been made — disperse the Olympics among various countries, or give the Games a permanent site in Greece.

Phillip Krumm, the head of the United States Olympic Committee, opposed the latter suggestion and insisted that (1) the Games will continue and (2) the Americans will improve. "The name and the Games will carry on," he said, but noticed, "we face some gigantic problems of organization."

As to the Americans' performance, which ended on a high note Saturday, Krumm said, "We did better than the last Olympics against tougher competition. We spend $1 million a year on team development. The East Germans spend $50 million. We are the only country that does not have some government assistance."

The Americans won eight gold medals Saturday, five of them in boxing, for their best showing of the Games. But there was disappointment, too. They lost a couple they figured to win — Frank Shorter in the marathon and Dwight Stones in the high jump.

The United States finished with 34 gold medals, 35 silver and 25 bronze, a total of 94. Russia led with a count of 47-43-35, 125. East Germany, backed by a massive government subsidy program, produced 40-25-25, 90 over-all. Most of them came from its women, who dominated the swimming events almost to the extent the American men ruled theirs.

Shirley Babashoff, America's top woman swimmer who won three silver and a gold, cast a glance at the broad-shouldered East German women and sniffed:

"I'm glad I don't have to walk around my neighborhood looking like a guy."

The East German women won both their relays in the final day of track and field, and the American men won both of theirs.

Harvey Glance, Phoenix City, Ala.; Johnny Jones, Lampasas, Tex.; Millard Hampton, San Jose, Calif., and Steve Riddick, Philadelphia, won the 400-meter relay in 38.33 seconds.

The quartet of Harvey Frazier, Philadelphia; Bennie Brown, Malpitas, Calif.; Fred Newhouse, Baton Rouge, La., and Maxie Parks, Los Angeles, won the 1,600 meters easily in 2:58.65.

Those were the fifth and sixth gold medals collected by the Americans in track and field, a sport they once dominated. They expected to win the marathon, where Shorter was defending, and the high jump, where the flamboyant Stones holds the world record.

But an obscure East German, a converted steeplechaser named Waldemar Cierpinski, swept through a steady rain in an Olympic record 2 hours, 9 minutes and 55 seconds, putting Shorter behind him with about five miles to go in the 26-mile, 385-yard test. Shorter took the silver medal in 2:10:45.8. Lasse Viren, the bearded Finn who won the 5,000- and 10,000-meter races, finished fifth in his quest for a distance triple.

In the high jump, Poland's Jacek Wszola won at 7 feet, 4½ inches. Stones was third at 7-3.

John Walker of New Zealand won as expected with a slow, strategic 3:39.17 in the 1,500 meters. Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, the world record holder at the distance, was among the missing. His nation boycotted the Games.

Ivanka Khristove of Bulgaria won the only other track and field gold of the final day with a throw of 69-5 in the women's shot put.

There was a brother act in the boxers, too. Middleweight Mike Spinks, St. Louis, won his division and older brother Leon, a U.S. Marine stationed at Camp Lejuene, N.C., won the gold in the light-heavy class. Leo Randolph, Tacoma, Wash., won at 112 pounds, Howard Davis, Glen Cove, N.Y., took the gold at 132 pounds and Sugar Ray Leonard, Palmer Park, Md., won at 140.

The only American loser in the final round was Army Sgt. Charles Mooney, Ft. Bragg, N.C., at 119 pounds. The United States finished with five gold, a silver and a bronze, by far its best boxing showing ever.

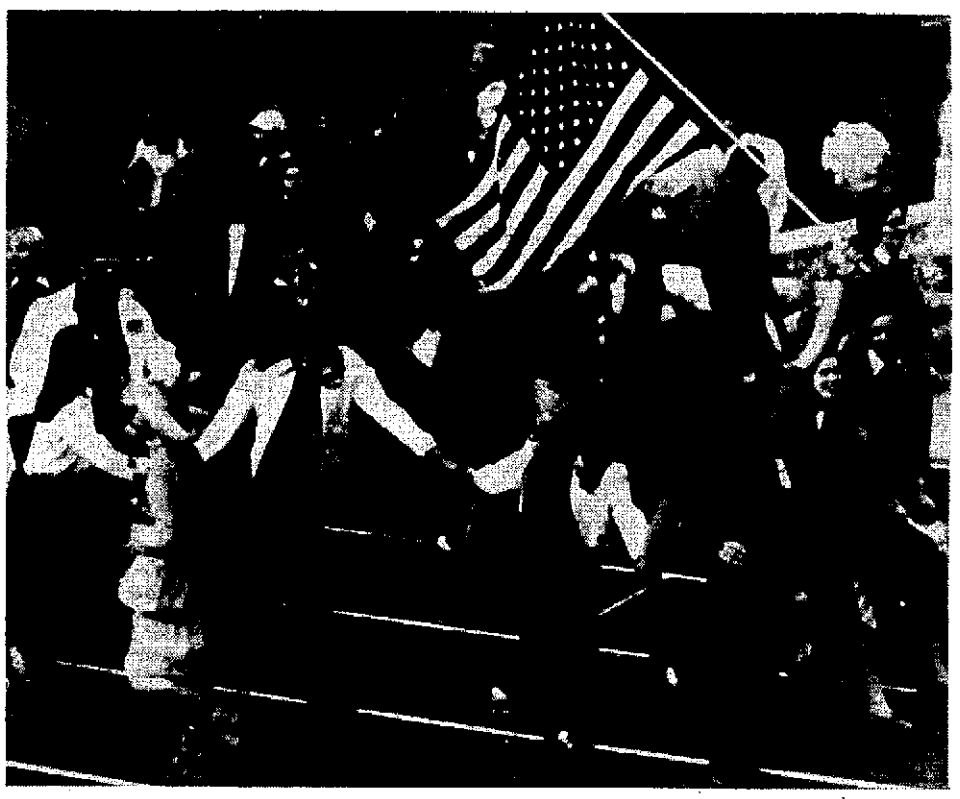

The Games closed Sunday night with France winning the equestrian team jumping gold medal, followed by West Germany and Belgium.

Only six athletes from each nation marched in the closing ceremony Sunday night, followed by the traditional lighting of candles, extinguishing of the Olympic flame and singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Then they took their memories and their medals and dispersed to the far corners of the world.

The memories may be better than the medals.

BH Nets Special Olympic Medals

Fifteen local boys and girls from the Benton Harbor Area Schools team produced 22 medals in the track and swimming events in the 1876 Michigan Special Olympics at Central Michigan University.

Local medal winners were Charles Bledsoe, first in 220-yard run and second in long jump; James Caldwell, third in the 25-yard freestyle; Tom Clark, first in long jump and second in 220 run; Jackie Cooper, second in 50 freestyle and third in 25 freestyle; Regina Flemming, third in 50 dash; and Hal Greer, third in 50 dash and long jump.

Other medal winners included Teresa Jones, third in long jump and softball throw; Jewell Moore, third in 25 backstroke; Elvis O'Neal, first in 25 freestyle; Ted Smith, first in 220 run and third in 50 dash; Duane Stoutmiles, second in 50 dash; Terry Michael, first in long jump and third in softball throw; and Kathy Viverette, first in 50 dash and softball throw. Kevin Moore and Paul Stout received participant medals.

Chaperoning the students on the trip to Mt. Pleasant were volunteers Julia Trowbridge, coordinator of the local games; and Dan Graber, Dwight Sempert and Erma Mitchell.

The Benton Harbor team was sponsored by local businesses and by donations from friends through a unique "rip-off" poster campaign. About $388 was raised for the trip.

The Special Olympics, sponsored nationally by the Joseph F. Kennedy Jr. Foundation and other groups including the Whirlpool Foundation, provides a setting for special education student-athletes to develop confidence and a sense of self-esteem.

The 15 Benton Harbor students were selected as tops in their class after local competition involving about 180 students was staged in April. Nationwide, the Olympics included 1,400 meets in every state, with nearly 300,000 special education students competing. In Michigan, it is estimated that 20,000 students vie for honors each year.

Pitching Keys St. Joe's Legion District Crown

By JACK WALKDEN
Staff Sports Writer

Whether it be on the mound or at the plate, St. Joseph Legion's Gary Meek has a way of making things happen.

And Sunday afternoon the crafty lefthander pitched St. Joe to the American Legion district baseball championship with a 2-1 victory over Three Oaks.

The victory was the third without a loss in the tourney for St. Joe, now 33-9. Post 163 will now advance to the zone tournament at Jackson Aug. 13.

"Our pitching throughout the whole tournament was the difference," St. Joseph coach Mike Wyngarden said. "We only gave up two runs in three games and you can't ask for anymore than that."

St. Joe's pitching had to come through because the hitters collected just 16 hits in the three games.

Meek gave up just three hits in his five innings of work. Roger Schwoebel came in to get the final six outs.

"Gary's guttiness is the thing that impresses me," Wyngarden said. "When someone gets a hit off him he gets mad and bares down."

Though he allowed at least one baserunner in every inning, Meek was really never in any serious trouble. The only run against the southpaw was due to Meek's own wildness. Losing pitcher Jeff Lenard walked to open the third and advanced to second on a wild pitch. Lenard scampered to third on an infield out and crossed the plate on Randy Chase's sacrifice fly.

"We had great defense," Meek said. "Without the defense we wouldn't have had a chance. The defense kept us together. Those double plays got me out of a couple of jams."

St. Joseph was also assisted by the opposing pitcher for one of its runs. Paul Knuth, Rick Dyer and Cory Benford opened the second inning with singles. Lenard then balked a run across the plate.

"Three Oaks is a good team," Wyngarden said. "This is the sixth time this year that we've beaten them and that defies the law of averages. I can tell you I wouldn't have wanted to play them again Monday night."

Had Three Oaks won Sunday's game, a second championship tilt would have been needed tonight.

St. Joe had gained the title game by blanking Three Oaks 4-0 Saturday in what Wyngarden called the "really key game of the tournament."

Benford pitched a brilliant three-hitter and walked just one. Though he struck out only two, Benford had Three Oaks beating the ball into the ground throughout the contest.

"Cory throws low and at the corners," Wyngarden said. "He gets the opposition to hit the ball into the ground alot."

Meek took over at the plate in that game, breaking a scoreless tie with a bases-loaded double in the fourth inning. Knuth wrapped up the scoring with a two-run single.

Three Oaks moved into the championship game by topping Lakeshore 8-4. Lakeshore had beaten South Haven 5-4 and Hastings 5-2.

Mike Koziel slammed a triple and a single and Busse and Randy Chase each belted a double and a single for the winners. Jeff Caple collected two hits for the losers.

Steve Rennhack pitched and batted Lakeshore past South Haven. While picking up the victory on the mound, Rennhack also smashed three hits for Lakeshore. Losing pitcher Ken Cullum had two hits for South Haven.

Carter, Musso Spark Bears' Win

DENVER (AP) — Virg Carter was a forgotten man, and Johnny Musso had yet to prove he could play in the National Football League. But both have caught the eye of Chicago Bears Coach Jack Pardee.

Carter, a former Bear whose career appeared about ended after he threw only five passes all last season, took charge of an unproductive Chicago offense in the second half Saturday night and sparked his team to a 15-14 triumph over the Denver Broncos in an NFL exhibition game.

Musso, who has carried the ball only six times in the NFL after stints in the Canadian and World football leagues, sliced through the Denver defense for 79 tough yards on 21 carries and scored what proved to be the clinching touchdown in the fourth quarter.

"I'm real pleased with them," Pardee said of the pair. "We counted heavily on them."

The Bears, playing their first pre-season game of the summer, dominated offensively in the first half but managed only a pair of Bob Thomas field goals. Denver cornerback Louis Wright returned an interception 63 yards for a TD and Jim Turner added the extra point, resulting in the Broncos' 7-6 halftime edge.

Carter relieved Bears' starter Bob Avellini early in the third period and, mixing his plays well, took Chicago to a field goal and touchdown on successive possessions.

Musso's score, set up by an interception by defensive tackle Ron Rydalch at the Denver 21-yard line, gave the Bears a 15-7 lead, although the extra-point try failed.

The Broncos, stymied most of the game by a stout Chicago defense and their own errors, made it close midway through the final period when Norris Weese lofted a 49-yard pass to Fair Hooker and then connected with Mike Franckowiak on a three-yard scoring toss.

"I was disappointed with our over-all intensity," said Denver Coach John Ralston, whose team is now 1-1 in the pre-season. Ralston said he felt part of that problem was due to "having just too many players." The Broncos must cut 12 players by Tuesday to reavlimit.

Pardee prasied both his offensive and defensive lines, but said, "We've got to learn to score touchdowns. We had the ball an awfully long time without scoring."

The Bears resume exhibition play Saturday against Seattle at Spokane, while Denver visits San Francisco on Sunday.

Lion Rookies Impressive In Victory Over Buffalo

Another rookie, first-round draft pick James Hunter, also had performed well for the Lions and the fact wasn't lost on Ford.

"You know, we have a tremendous group of young people on this team, and you can't help but feel we are on the verge of something very exciting here," Ford said quietly as his eyes swept the large room filled with large men in various stages of dress and undress.

Coach Rick Forzano, standing within earshot, agreed. "Our players, especially the veterans, have a great feeling for one another," Forzano said.

But it was the Lions' rookie crop that had both owner and coach looking forward to good things down the road.

"Ricardo's not bad for distance," Forzano said of the 5-foot-10, 175-pound native of Paraguay who also booted a 47-yarder earlier in the game. "He's 2-for-2 on field goals and also kicked off very well. I like him right now."

Ricardo, a free agent from San Diego State, is listed as a rookie even though he played last year for the California Sun of the now defunct World Football League where he was good on 13 of 15 attempts.

"I love kicking in Pontiac Stadium," where the only wind in the air-supported dome is a slight breeze, the muscular, mustachioed placekicker told a knot of reporters clustered by his locker.

"That's' one of the main reasons I signed with Detroit," Ricardo said. "The other reason is this club's organization. It really is a great bunch of people and they're giving me a good chance."

Forzano also gave high marks to Hunter, the rookie defensive back who lugged four punts and two kickoffs 105 yards, the longest a 33-yard gallop with the opening kickoff.

"He's a bona fide natural athlete," Forzano said of the former Grambling star. "He really hit some people out there today."

For his part, Hunter also had nothing but praise for his new surroundings and co-workers.

"Lem Barney is exactly the type of guy I always thought he would be," the soft-spoken Hunter said as he peeled an elastic bandage off his leg. "When I first met him, it was like I'd known him for years.

"Lem and Dick Jauron worked with me all week. The veterans on this club are very unselfish and it helped me get prepared."

From his spot near the center of the emptying locker room, it was clear the man who pays the bills appreciated it, too.

The Lions scored first on a three-yard pass from Greg Landry to Bobby Thompson in the first four minutes of the second quarter. Landry had taken the Lions 86 yards in 11 plays, and set up the score with a 44-yard pass to Leonard Thompson who went out of bounds at the Bills' two.

Buffalo roared back to take a 10-7 halftime lead, scoring on Gary Marangi's five-yard pass to Reuben Gant and a 50-yard field goal by John Leypoldt.

Leypoldt's long shot was set up when Bills rookie linebacker Dan Jilek — an ex-Michigan star who played his high school ball at nearby Sterling Heights Stevenson — intercepted a pass thrown by Detroit's Gary Danielson.

Ricardo tied the score at 10-10 in the third quarter with his 47-yard field goal. Then, after Buffalo had drawn even at 17-17 on a pass from Marangi to former Michigan tight end Paul Seymour, Ricardo capped the Lions' final drive with his game-winning 33-yarder.

SPARTAN STAR

Michigan State senior fullback Levi Jackson of Detroit became MSU's third single season 1,000-yard rusher when he gained 1,063 yards on 230 carries in 1975.

Americans Fall Behind E. Germany, Russia

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States took an inventory of its Olympic medals today, all 94 of them, then began pondering the inevitable question:

Can a nation operating as a free society continue to match athletic skills with highly regimented and totally subsidized teams from countries such as the Soviet Union and East Germany?

That question spawned other questions:

Should the U.S. government step in and bail out our Olympic effort?

Must America resort to the "factory system," glorified by the East Germans, and start turning out Olympic medalists the way Detroit produces automobiles?

One of the people responsible for answering such questions is Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"Our society would never stand for a factory system or even a national team," Krumm insists. "We need government money for development and facilities. We do not want government direction."

The grandfatherly retired business executive from Kenosha, Wis., said he had no apologies to make for the Americans' over-all performance in the Montreal Games.

"Better than Munich," he said, "and against stronger competition."

The U.S. medal total equaled the count four years ago but there was one additional gold, 34 to 33, and improvement in a number of the more obscure sports.

On the other hand, the Soviet Union enlarged its over-all superiority, increasing its total medal count from 98 to 125, and East Germany, with a population less than one-tenth that of the United States, climbed over Uncle Sam's back into second place in the standings based on golds.

The Russians won 47, East Germany 40 and the United States 34.

This subordinate position to Communist rivals is certain to provoke fresh howls from the traditional "Viewers With Alarm," who think the powerful United States should never lose sports contests.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association will say it is all the fault of the Amateur Athletic Union. The AAU will blame the NCAA. And the President may name another commission to look into it all.

Yet, America isn't ready to set up a robot school such as the East Germans have at Leipzig, with its teams of white-coated doctors, test tubes, wires and treadmills to produce world-class athletes. Nor does America seem inclined to turn all of its top athletes into students and teachers on a permanent payroll with special bonuses for extra athletic achievement, as in the Soviet Union.

The thought of a national team is offensive to most officials and athletes.

Gold medalist Mac Wilkins, one of the harshest critics of the U.S. Olympic Committee, admitted he might have thrown the discus 250 feet if he had been a product of the Leipzig factory, but added:

"That's not for me. I wouldn't trade my personal freedom for all the records in the world."

Dean Smith, the basketball coach, said, "I think it's great we have a fresh, new team every four years."

The best advertisement for the U.S. system was Bruce Jenner, winner of the 10-sport decathlon. He trained four years on his own to achieve the Olympics' toughest gold.

The dull, unresponsive eyes of Nadia Comaneci reflected what might be the tragedy of the regimentation system. The 14-year-old Romanian fascinated the world with her performance on the bars and beams of gymnastics. But here was a little girl who had experienced nothing beyond coaches and directions for half her tender years. She was an adult without a childhood.

"It was fun — a game at first," she said poignantly, "but now it is work."

Krumm says the United States must face up to one fact: "The rest of the world is catching up with us. Why should we win all the medals? I like to see small countries win."

Alberto Juantorena, from little Cuba, did what no middle distance runner had ever done before — he won the 400 and 800 meters. Bearded Lasse Viren of Finland won the 5,000 and 10,000 meter tests, each for the second time, and still had strength enough to challenge in the marathon.

The United States experienced disappointments from world record-holders expected to win and from its once indominable women swimmers. But the Americans produced five boxing champions, scored well in wrestling, almost swept the pool in men's swimming, won back the basketball championship and scored in such little recognized events as shooting, women's rowing, archery, equestrian and judo.

Track and field wasn't a complete disaster although the shot-putters failed to get a medal for the first time since 1936; the sprinters were outraced because of the absence of Steve Williams and Houston McTear, and pole-vaulter Dave Roberts and high-jumper Dwight Stones both lost to outsiders while failing to equal their world record heights in the rain.

"One of our aims is to improve our showing in women's sports," Krumm said. He apparently referred to closing the gap in women's swimming and boosting women's track and field.

Otherwise, the girls carried their part of the load in the Montreal Games.

The girls' basketball team unexpectedly won a silver for second place. The women rowers won a silver and a bronze. Dorothy Morkis of Raynham, Mass., was largely responsible for the bronze in equestrian team dressage. Margaret Murdock of Topeka, Kan., became the first U.S. woman ever to win a shooting medal — a silver.

The Americans netted two golds in archery, a bronze in judo. Pete Kormann of New Haven, Conn., won a bronze in floor exercises, the first men's gymnastics medal in 44 years.

"I dispute the suggestion that we lost ground," Krumm said. "We held our own in the big name sports and showed improvement in the minor ones. Ours was a good Olympics."

U.S. Boxers Gain Five Gold Medals

The six U.S. finalists in the finals of the boxing competition emerged from the ring at the Forum Saturday night with five gold medals and a silver. Randolph, Sugar Ray Leonard, brothers Mike and Leon Spinks and Howard Davis all scored victories for gold medals while Charles Mooney lost a 5-0 decision to Yong Jo Gu of North Korea for the silver.

"This is the happiest I've been since I became a Christian," said Randolph, an 18-year-old from Tacoma, Wash.

Leonard also beat a Cuban lefthander, pounding out a unanimous decision over Andres Aldama. Sugar Ray disdained using his right hand for most of the fight but unloaded it in the final 20 seconds.

Middleweight Mike Spinks beat world champion Rufat Riskiev badly about the head and stopped the Russian in the third round.

Spinks knocked down Riskiev with a blasting right to the head in the second round of the 165-pound fight. He then forced Riskiev to take a standing count from head shots in the third round and stopped him after another standing count at 1:54.

Riskiev contended he had been hit low during an exchange, but a television replay showed no low blow.

In joining his middleweight brother as a gold medalist, Leon crashed a right to Soria's temple that dropped the Cuban flat on his face. He got up but the Soviet referee ruled he was unable to continue. Spinks also knocked Soria down in the first round of the 178-pound bout.

Davis put on a brilliant exhibition of fighting in winning the 132-pound championship. He speared Romanian Simion Cutov with left jabs and rocked him with right hands throughout the three rounds. At one point, he slammed home seven shots to the head of the frustrated Cutov.

Mooney, who was fighting with a heavy chest cold, faded quickly in the third round in losing the unanimous decision to the North Korean.

In other boxing finals Saturday night, World Champion Jorge Hernandez of Cuba speared North Korean Byong Uk Li with jabs and crisp right hands and won the Olympic 106-pound light-flyweight boxing championship on a 4-1 decision.

Big Winners, Losers At Olympics

MONTREAL (AP) — The philosophical credo of the Olympics is to compete, not to win. Philosophically, then, there were more than 7,000 winners at the 1976 Summer Games.

But on the theory that gold is indeed more cherished than silver, bronze or a paper certificate of participation, here are the biggest winners and losers in the five major sports:

Track and Field

Bruce Jenner of the United States laid claim to the title of the world's best athlete with a record-shattering performance in the decathlon. A strong man with matinee-idol looks, Jenner says he would welcome movie offers.

Alberto Juantorena of Cuba, who strides like a thoroughbred race horse, galloped to impressive victories in the 400 and 800 meters, the first man ever to win this double in Olympic history. He dedicated both triumphs to his leader, Fidel Castro, and the revolution.

Lasse Viren of Finland won the Woolworth double — the 5,000 and 10,000 meters — for the second straight Olympics. He tried the killing marathon for the first time ever, finished fifth, and said: "The race was not so very hard. I trained almost 30 miles a day."

The biggest losers in track and field are Americans Dwight Stones and Frank Shorter.

Stones, a heavy favorite in the high jump, didn't like the Olympic housing accommodations so he returned to California to train. He didn't like the rain that fell constantly during the high jump final. He didn't like the way the Canadians didn't finish the Olympic edifices on time. He didn't like his third-place finish, either.

Shorter trained four years to finish second in the grueling 26-plus miles of marathon. "In 1972 (at Munich), I never expected to win," Shorter said. "Today (Sunday), I did."

Swimming and Diving

The American men won 12 of 13 gold medals. Particularly brilliant was John Naber, who took four golds — two in relay races — and a silver, and Brian Goodell, a 17-year-old high school kid who won both the 400-and grueling 1,500-meter freestyles in world record times.

The East German women won 11 of 13 gold medals. Kornelia Ender, a classy 17-year-old, was the dominant member of the team, winning three individual races, including two that were only 25 minutes apart.

Klaus Dibiasi of Italy won his third straight Olympic gold in platform diving and his fourth medal in this event spanning a 12-year period.

The swimming and diving losers were the American women, who won a single gold medal but went under swinging at the broad-shouldered East Germans, and the Russian diving team.

We don't want to lift weights and look like them, the American women said as they had no difficulty lifting their bronze and silver medals. The Russians went home one diver short, losing 17-year-old Sergei Nemtsanov to Canada — by defection, according to the Canadians, and by the charms of a young girl, according to the Soviets.

Gymnastics

Nadia Comaneci of Romania, the doll of the gymnastics set, won three individual gold medals, then made the covers of "Newsweek," "Time" and "Sports Illustrated." She was given a perfect 10 seven times.

Nikolai Andrianov of the Soviet Union won four individual gold medals, but didn't make the cover of any publication, at least in the West.

The losers in the gymnastics were Russia's Olga Korbut and, in one sense, Andrianov.

Miss Korbut, love object of the gymnastic world when she won two gold medals four years ago, lost her stage to Comaneci and picked up a lone individual silver medal. Asked by one reporter how she felt about her drop in status, Miss Korbut answered: "I don't want to answer that." Then she walked out of the room.

Andrianov fell victim to the syndrome that no one loves a male gymnast. His big night immediately followed Comaneci's, but there was no fuss. "I'm not jealous," he said. "People are always more interested in women then men."

Basketball

The United States regained the gold medal in the sport born in America. Coach Dean Smith gets the top award as the man who molded 12 individuals into a smooth-working unit. The top American players were Adrian Dantley and Scott May, but the biggest winners may be the Buffalo Braves and Chicago Bulls, who now own the respective services of Dantley and May.

The biggest basketball loser was the Soviet Union, which killed the four-year-old grudge game with the United States by losing to Yugoslavia in the semifinals. Secondary losers are the teams in the National Basketball Association that don't have the rights to May and Dantley.

Boxing

Cuban Teofilo Stevenson won his second straight Olympic heavyweight gold medal, stopping all four of his opponents.

The biggest boxing losers were Stevenson's four opponents, especially American John Tate, who showed much courage and little sense by fighting recklessly against the big Cuban. His reward was a devastating right hand, which knocked him silly for the 10-count.

Overall, the biggest winners were the Soviet Union, with 47 gold medals, East Germany, with 40, and the United States, with 34.

Among the biggest losers were the athletes of Taiwan, who trained for the Olympics but didn't compete because of a political dispute with Canada.

But, because of this political problem and others, such as the withdrawl of 28 African nations, the biggest loser probably was the Olympic ideal.

Rush New Coach

Hauch Takes Race

HARTFORD — Gary Hauch of Colonia won the feature race for the semi-late model cars Friday night at Hartford Motor Speedway here.

MSU Student Newspaper Lists Charges

Hayes, OSU Recruiting Illegally?

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Woody Hayes and his Ohio State football machine allegedly have been using funds from alumni groups in recruiting prospective student athletes in violation of NCAA and Big Ten rules, according to a student newspaper at Michigan State University.

Sources have told the State News, the daily student newspaper at Michigan State, that police officers and a former high school football coach have received monetary compensation in exchange for transporting prospects to the Columbus campus for visits.

One source, who was close to the Buckeye grid scene for several years, told the State News that two Warren, O., police officers received $75 and $60 respectively from a member of an Ohio State alumni group in the Warren, O. area.

The source, who requested anonymity in exchange for information, stated that Warren police officer William Misocky received $60 in January 1975 from Frank Lafferty, a member of the OSU alumni association, to transport Kelton Dansler to Columbus for a recruiting visit.

Misocky, an eight-year veteran of the force who was assigned to Warren G. Harding High School as juvenile officer when the incident occurred, admitted he was involved, saying, "Yes, I remember taking Dansler to OSU and yes, Frank Lafferty gave me $60 to cover expenses."

Such payment is illegal according to NCAA and Big Ten rules.

Lafferty, who later gave Dansler a job at the Avalon Inn in Warren, couldn't recall the incident.

He told the State News "I'm trying to place the event. I can't really remember. I just barely know Officer Misocky from school. I know a lot of people there because I was on the Board of Education."

Misocky added that while in Columbus he stayed with Dansler and ate meals with the coaching staff in the university cafeteria which were paid for by the Ohio State coaches.

The policeman also said, "I can't say yes or no as to whether any other officer had been doing the same thing and getting paid."

However, the State News source said that in May, 1975, Warren Police Officer Steve Papalas told him that he (Papalas) had received $75 from an OSU booster for driving a prospect to Columbus for a 2½-day visit.

The source said that Papalas took Buckeye defensive lineman Arron Brown and Brown's mother to Ohio State in March 1974. The source also said that Buckeye defensive coach George Hill paid for the group's meals with an Ohio State voucher.

At the time he took Brown to OSU, Papalas was assigned as a juvenile officer at Warren Western Reserve High School. Papalas was unavailable for comment Sunday concerning the allegations. According to Misocky, "Papalas and I were partners on the force and he was assigned to schools on the east side of town and I was assigned to the west side. Right now he is on vacation."

A second source told the State News that he had received money for taking high school prospects to the OSU campus.

The source, a former high school football coach in Ohio who also wished to keep his identity secret, said, "The first time it happened was in 1972. Each week a group of OSU boosters in Warren got together at an alumnae meeting and watched films of the previous week's games.

"Once, Frank Lafferty came up to me and said he wanted me to take prospects to Columbus and said, 'Don't worry about expenses. We have a fund to take care of such things.'"

The coach told the State News he had his first opportunity in 1972 when Dr. Louie Cohen of Warren asked that he take some prospects.

"Before I left, Dr. Cohen gave me a check for $90 to $110. I don't really remember the exact amount, to cover expenses," he said.

Two more years passed before the high school coach was called on again. He was asked to take a player who later enrolled at Notre Dame to an Ohio State game.

The coach said, "Dr. Robert Heckel gave me $70 or $75 in cash to cover the expenses and the room we stayed in at the motel was also paid for.

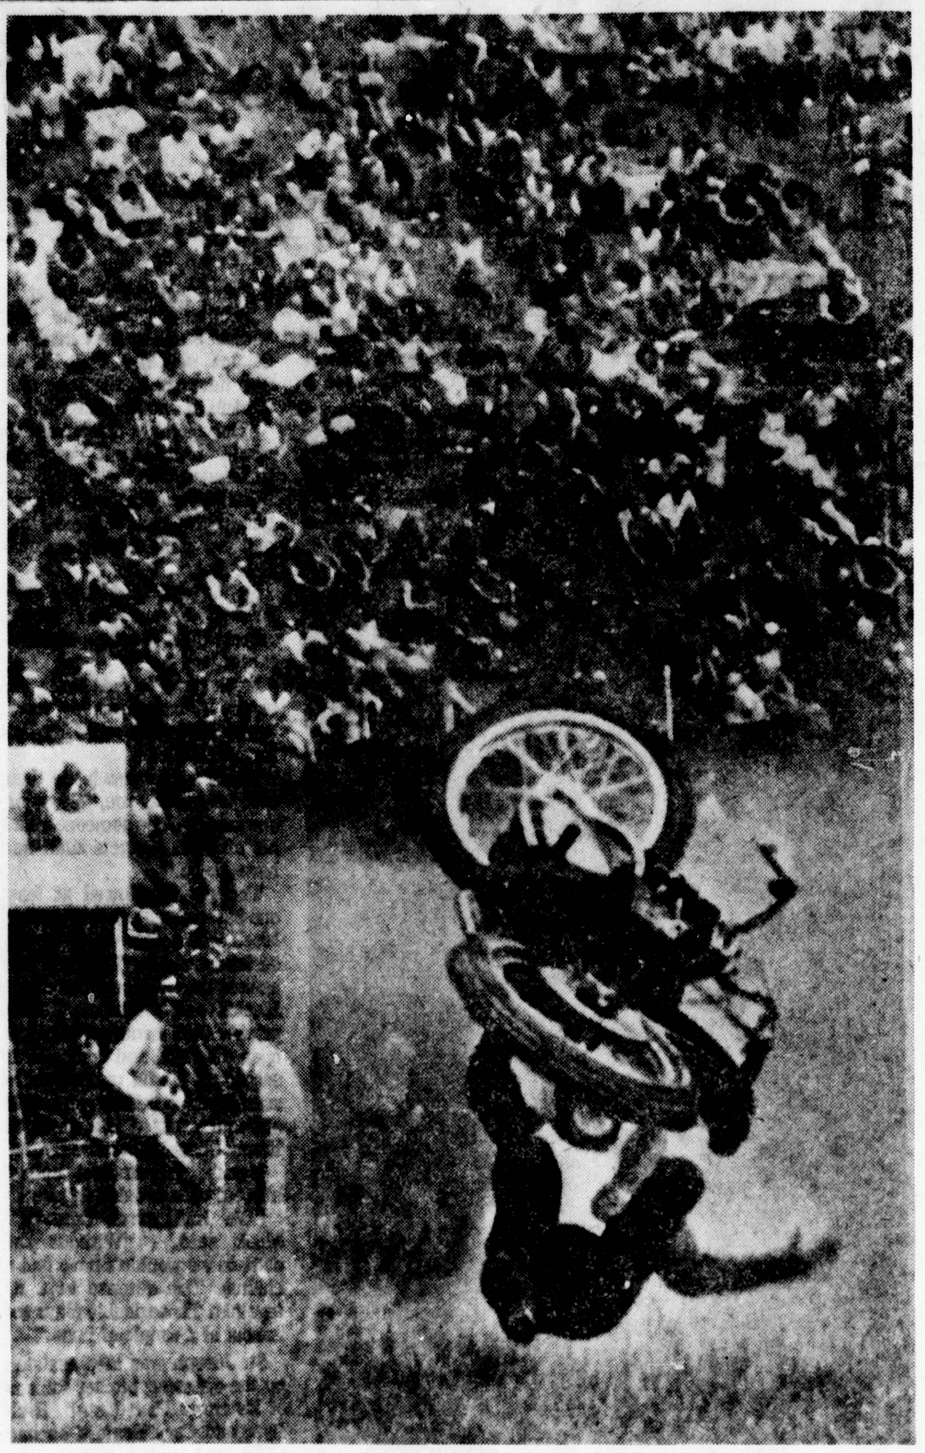

"At first," he continued, "I told Dr. Heckel that he didn't have to do it, but he told me, 'Don't worry about it, everybody does it.'"

Dr. Heckel did not return a phone call and there was no listing in Warren for Dr. Cohen.

Last Friday in Chicago, a State News reporter, Ed Ronders, attempted to question Coach Woody Hayes about the allegations contained in the State News story published today.

Hayes responded by saying, "I hope you do print that. I have a good reputation, you know, and I'll be glad to drag you in court. In fact, you ..., I'll grab you." Ronders said Hayes at that point tried to grab him around the neck.

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke, when told of the allegations concerning Ohio State, commented, "I know nothing about it. I have no information at all. I have to look at the rules at that time. I can't see where it represents any great deal."

Seahawks' Debut Spoiled

Super Bowl Champ Steelers Triumph

SEATTLE (AP) — Jack Patera is a straight shooter. He tells it like it is.

"It was nice to come close, but it would have been nice to win," the rookie head coach of the upstart Seattle Seahawks said after his first-year National Football League team lost 27-20 to the San Francisco 49ers Sunday in a preseason opener for both clubs.

Expansion teams aren't supposed to win their first preseason game. Seattle and the NFL's other newcomer this season, Tampa Bay, didn't.

But the Kingdome crowd of 60,825, some of whom booed the Seahawks as they left the field trailing 17-0 at halftime, had plenty to cheer about in the second half when quarterback Jim Zorn, who spelled starting quarterback Neil Graff after halftime, passed and ran Seattle's way back into the game.

The victory was the first for new 49er head Coach Monte Clark, whose team held a 24-0 third-period lead before Seattle caught fire behind Zorn for three late touchdowns to make it a game.

"We accomplished two goals we had going into the game," said Clark, a former assistant under Don Shula at Miami. "We got to see all our people and still won."

Zorn, who was with the Dallas Cowboys through the preseason last year before being cut two days before the season opener to make room for Preston Pearson, passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third. He made a scrambling bid for a fourth score in the waning seconds, but was dropped two yards short of the goal line as the clock ran out.

"This game gives us a great deal of confidence going into next week," said Zorn. "Our receivers were great, even better than I thought they would be."

San Francisco jumped ahead 7-0 late in the first period on Delvin William's eight-yard run. The 14-play, 89-yard drive consumed 9:56 of the quarter.

Larry Schreiber hauled in a four-yard scoring pass from veteran quarterback Jim Plunkett, obtained from New England in the offseason, for a second quarter score, and Kermit Johnson scored on a 17-yard run in the third period to put the 49ers ahead 24-0. Veteran Bruce Gossett also booted field goals of 2 and 20 yards for San Francisco.

The New England Patriots, in the only other game Sunday, won the first overtime game of the year, beating the visiting New York Giants 13-7 in a night contest.

Most of last season's winners opened this year's pre-season play on a successful note Saturday. Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh beat New Orleans 24-14, Baltimore blanked Cleveland 21-0, Washington trimmed Atlanta 17-10, St. Louis nipped the New York Jets 13-12, Los Angeles ruined Tampa Bay's debut 26-3 and Cincinnati slipped by Green Bay 23-17. In clashes between winners, Oakland edged Super Bowl runnerup Dallas 17-14 and Miami put down Minnesota 16-3. In other games Chicago nudged Denver 15-14, Detroit defeated Buffalo 20-17 with O.J. Simpson still absent and San Diego bounced Philadelphia 20-7.

In some of the top performances of the weekend, Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw connected on 15 of 20 passes for 194 yards and two touchdowns, both to John Stallworth, and Don McCauley ran for two scores for Baltimore, last year's Cinderella team.

Quarterback Virgil Carter came off the bench in the second quarter and directed Chicago to two scores, including a two-yard plunge by Johnny Musso late in the final quarter. Don Woods scored twice for San Diego and rookie Joe Washington added a third.

Washington's victory was spoiled by a dislocated right shoulder suffered by All-Pro wide receiver Charley Taylor, who will be out four to six weeks.

Bowlby Top Hillclimber

MUSKEGON , Mich. (AP) — Earl Bowlby of Logan, Ohio, captured his second national motorcycle hillclimbing title Sunday in the National Championship Hill Climb held at Muskegon's Mt. Garfield.

Bowlby's time of 5.294 seconds was good enough to give him the Class A (professional) top prize, including winnings of $1,020. He last won the American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned event in 1968.

David Mosley of Allan, Ky. was first in the Class B amateur division with a time of 6.128 seconds, and took home $750 in prize money.

Placing second in Class A was James Thompson of Gahanna, Ohio, with 5.622 seconds, and third place went to Jerry Kinzer of Prestonberg, Ky. with a time of 5.638.

Two cyclists from Laurelville, Ohio, took second and third place in class B. James Clark had a time of 6.192 for second and Keith Grooms took third with 6.244.

More than 10,000 spectators turned out to watch the field of 15 professionals and 15 amateurs compete in the annual national championships. Qualifiers were determined by points accumulated in motorcycle hillclimb events across the country earlier in the year.

Ann Arbor Diver Upset

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) — Dan Watson of Ashland, Ky., upset Bruce Kimball of Ann Arbor, Mich., to win the boys 13-to-14 three-meter national diving championship Saturday.

Watson outpointed Kimball, who won in the 12-year-old bracket last year, 356.65 to 348.15 as the fourth annual National Age Group Diving Championships opened at DeAnza College.

A total 251 divers are entered in the four-day AAU-sanctioned event. Winners will represent the United States later this year in competition with age-group divers from Canada and Mexico at Mexico City.

In platform diving for 17-and 18-year-olds, Lori Wehtlawfer of Ann Arbor, Mich., beat Julie Eachman of Mobile, Ala., 321.85 to 293.40.

On the one-meter board, Cheryl Jones of Madera, Calif. was 12-and-under champion and the winner in the 13-to-14-year-old division was Jean Meyer of Los Angeles.

For boys 12-and-under, Mike Wantuk of Miami won the three-meter title with 275.45 points.

Preps Playing At Pontiac

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan high school football championships will be held Nov. 27 at Pontiac Stadium, the Michigan High School Athletic Association, Inc. and stadium officials announced Wednesday.

Championship games in all four classes will be played on that day, the officials said.

Pitching Keys St. Joe's Legion District Crown

By JACK WALKDEN
Staff Sports Writer

Whether it be on the mound or at the plate, St. Joseph Legion's Gary Meek has a way of making things happen.

And Sunday afternoon the crafty lefthander pitched St. Joe to the American Legion district baseball championship with a 2-1 victory over Three Oaks.

The victory was the third without a loss in the tourney for St. Joe, now 33-9. Post 163 will now advance to the zone tournament at Jackson Aug. 13.

"Our pitching throughout the whole tournament was the difference," St. Joseph coach Mike Wyngarden said. "We only gave up two runs in three games and you can't ask for anymore than that."

St. Joe's pitching had to come through because the hitters collected just 16 hits in the three games.

Meek gave up just three hits in his five innings of work. Roger Schwoebel came in to get the final six outs.

"Gary's guttiness is the thing that impresses me," Wyngarden said. "When someone gets a hit off him he gets mad and bares down."

Though he allowed at least one baserunner in every inning, Meek was really never in any serious trouble. The only run against the southpaw was due to Meek's own wildness. Losing pitcher Jeff Lenard walked to open the third and advanced to second on a wild pitch. Lenard scampered to third on an infield out and crossed the plate on Randy Chase's sacrifice fly.

"We had great defense," Meek said. "Without the defense we wouldn't have had a chance. The defense kept us together. Those double plays got me out of a couple of jams."

St. Joseph was also assisted by the opposing pitcher for one of its runs. Paul Knuth, Rick Dyer and Cory Benford opened the second inning with singles. Lenard then balked a run across the plate.

"Three Oaks is a good team," Wyngarden said. "This is the sixth time this year that we've beaten them and that defies the law of averages. I can tell you I wouldn't have wanted to play them again Monday night."

Had Three Oaks won Sunday's game, a second championship till would have been needed tonight.

St. Joe had gained the title game by blanking Three Oaks 4-0 Saturday in what Wyngarden called the "really key game of the tournament."

Benford pitched a brilliant three-hitter and walked just one. Though he struck out only two, Benford had Three Oaks beating the ball into the ground throughout the contest.

"Cory throws low and at the corners," Wyngarden said. "He gets the opposition to hit the ball into the ground alot."

Meek took over at the plate in that game, breaking a scoreless tie with a bases-loaded double in the fourth inning. Knuth wrapped up the scoring with a two-run single.

Three Oaks moved into the championship game by topping Lakeshore 8-4. Lakeshore had beaten South Haven 5-4 and Hastings 5-2.

Mike Koziel slammed a triple and a single and Busse and Randy Chase each belted a double and a single for the winners. Jeff Caple collected two hits for the losers.

Steve Rennhack pitched and batted Lakeshore past South Haven. While picking up the victory on the mound, Rennhack also smashed three hits for Lakeshore. Losing pitcher Ken Cullum had two hits for South Haven.

Carter, Musso Spark Bears' Win

DENVER (AP) — Virg Carter was a forgotten man, and Johnny Musso had yet to prove he could play in the National Football League. But both have caught the eye of Chicago Bears Coach Jack Pardee.

Carter, a former Bear whose career appeared about ended after he threw only five passes all last season, took charge of an unproductive Chicago offense in the second half Saturday night and sparked his team to a 15-14 triumph over the Denver Broncos in an NFL exhibition game.

Musso, who has carried the ball only six times in the NFL after stints in the Canadian and World football leagues, sliced through the Denver defense for 79 tough yards on 21 carries and scored what proved to be the clinching touchdown in the fourth quarter.

"I'm real pleased with them," Pardee said of the pair. "We counted heavily on them."

The Bears, playing their first pre-season game of the summer, dominated offensively in the first half but managed only a pair of Bob Thomas field goals. Denver cornerback Louis Wright returned an interception 63 yards for a TD and Jim Turner added the extra point, resulting in the Broncos' 7-6 halftime edge.

Carter relieved Bears' starter Bob Avellini early in the third period and, mixing his plays well, took Chicago to a field goal and touchdown on successive possessions.

Musso's score, set up by an interception by defensive tackle Ron Rydalch at the Denver 21-yard line, gave the Bears a 15-7 lead, although the extra-point try failed.

The Broncos, stymied most of the game by a stout Chicago defense and their own errors, made it close midway through the final period when Norris Weese lofted a 49-yard pass to Fair Hooker and then connected with Mike Franckowiak on a three-yard scoring toss.

"I was disappointed with our over-all intensity," said Denver Coach John Ralston, whose team is now 1-1 in the pre-season. Ralston said he felt part of that problem was due to "having just too many players." The Broncos must cut 12 players by Tuesday to reach limit.

Pardee praised both his offensive and defensive lines, but said, "We've got to learn to score touchdowns. We had the ball an awfully long time without scoring."

The Bears resume exhibition play Saturday against Seattle at Spokane, while Denver visits San Francisco on Sunday.

Lion Rookies Impressive In Victory Over Buffalo

Another rookie, first-round draft pick James Hunter, also had performed well for the Lions and the fact wasn't lost on Ford.

"You know, we have a tremendous group of young people on this team, and you can't help but feel we are on the verge of something very exciting here," Ford said quietly as his eyes swept the large room filled with large men in various stages of dress and undress.

Coach Rick Forzano, standing within earshot, agreed. "Our players, especially the veterans, have a great feeling for one another," Forzano said.

But it was the Lions' rookie crop that had both owner and coach looking forward to good things down the road.

"Ricardo's not bad for distance," Forzano said of the 5-foot-10, 175-pound native of Paraguay who also booted a 47-yarder earlier in the game. "He's 2-for-2 on field goals and also kicked off very well. I like him right now."

Ricardo, a free agent from San Diego State, is listed as a rookie even though he played last year for the California Sun of the now defunct World Football League where he was good on 13 of 15 attempts.

"I love kicking in Pontiac Stadium," where the only wind in the air-supported dome is a slight breeze, the muscular, mustachioed placekicker told a knot of reporters clustered by his locker.

"That's one of the main reasons I signed with Detroit," Ricardo said. "The other reason is this club's organization. It really is a great bunch of people and they're giving me a good chance."

Forzano also gave high marks to Hunter, the rookie defensive back who lugged four punts and two kickoffs 105 yards, the longest a 33-yard gallop with the opening kickoff.

"He's a bona fide natural athlete," Forzano said of the former Grambling star. "He really hit some people out there today."

For his part, Hunter also had nothing but praise for his new surroundings and co-workers.

"Lem Barney is exactly the type of guy I always thought he would be," the soft-spoken Hunter said as he peeled an elastic bandage off his leg. "When I first met him, it was like I'd known him for years.

"Lem and Dick Jauron worked with me all week. The veterans on this club are very unselfish and it helped me get prepared."

From his spot near the center of the emptying locker room, it was clear the man who pays the bills appreciated it, too.

The Lions scored first on a three-yard pass from Greg Landry to Bobby Thompson in the first four minutes of the second quarter. Landry had taken the Lions 86 yards in 11 plays, and set up the score with a 44-yard pass to Leonard Thompson who went out of bounds at the Bills' two.

Buffalo roared back to take a 10-7 halftime lead, scoring on Gary Marangi's five-yard pass to Reuben Gant and a 50-yard field goal by John Leypoldt.

Leypoldt's long shot was set up when Bills rookie linebacker Dan Jilek — an ex-Michigan star who played his high school ball at nearby Sterling Heights Stevenson — intercepted a pass thrown by Detroit's Gary Danielson.

Ricardo tied the score at 10-10 in the third quarter with his 47-yard field goal. Then, after Buffalo had drawn even at 17-17 on a pass from Marangi to former Michigan tight end Paul Seymour, Ricardo capped the Lions' final drive with his game-winning 33-yarder.

SPARTAN STAR

Michigan State senior fullback Levi Jackson of Detroit became MSU's third single season 1,000-yard rusher when he gained 1,003 yards on 230 carries in 1975.

Surprising Twins Move Into Second

Sox' Gossage Outduels Tanana

From Associated Press

"I guess I enjoy baseball now as much as ever," says Manager Gene Mauch.

"It's almost like we have someone up there looking out for us and that's a great feeling," notes outfielder Larry Hisle.

"I really feel good — I'm all pumped up," exclaims relief pitcher Tom Johnson.

The Twins' elevated status in the American League West is the reason for this natural high. A prisoner of the cellar for many years, the Twins are up in the rarified air of second place after a doubleheader sweep over the Oakland A's Sunday.

"We just haven't been winning both games of doubleheaders for two or three years," said Hisle after the Twins whipped their longtime tormentors, 8-7 in 12 innings and 6-2. "This series is the best I can ever remember being involved in."

The sweep was the Twins' fourth doubleheader victory this season and their second in five days. The onetime West doormats have now won seven straight games and 12 of their last 141the Twins rallied from a two-run deficit in the ninth and came from behind twice in extra innings to defeat Oakland on a bases-loaded walk to Roy Smalley in the 12th inning of their opener. Hisle singled three times, drove in two runs and scored another, leading the Twins to their second-game victory.

Coupled with Kansas City's 8-4 loss to the Texas Rangers, the Twins moved within nine games of the West leaders. In other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Detroit Tigers 4-3; the Boston Red Sox edged the New York Yankees 5-4; the Cleveland Indians turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in 10 innings and the Chicago White Sox defeated the California Angels 2-1.

Gaylord Perry survived a shaky start and scattered 10 hits and Texas handed southpaw Andy Hassler his 18th straight defeat in beating Kansas City. The Royals collected five hits and three of their runs off Perry, 10-8, in the first two innings, but the crafty righthander settled down, allowing only one more run in the ninth.

Rick Burleson doubled in two runs in the ninth inning and scored on a sacrifice fly by Carl Yastrzemski as the Red Sox edged New York and extended the Yankees' losing streak to three games.

Ray Fosse's check-swing bloop single scored Tommy Smith with the winning run in the 10th inning, leading Cleveland over Milwaukee. Smith opened the 10th with a single off loser Bill Castro, 3-1, and took second on a sacrifice. Fosse followed with his bloop hit, which landed between center fielder Gorman Thomas and second baseman Gary Sutherland.

Ralph Garr tripled to open the eighth inning and scored the winning run on a grounder as Chicago edged California behind the five-hit pitching of Rich Gossage. Gossage, 6-10, snapped a personal seven-game losing streak and posted his first victory since June 9 as he outdueled Angel ace Frank Tanana, 12-8, who permitted only six hits.

Walks Key Birds' Win Over Tigers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Detroit Tiger reliever John Hiller loaded the bases by walking three Baltimore hitters with two out in the ninth inning and then Reggie Jackson singled home the winning run as the Orioles defeated the Detroit Tigers Sunday, 4-3.

Hiller, 10-5, who retired nine consecutive batters while notching his 10th save Saturday night, pitched hitless ball again for two innings before the three walks set up Jackson's single through the middle. Jackson also slammed a homer in the opening inning, his 18th of the season.

Detroit starter Ray Bare had allowed only four hits when he was removed in the seventh following Rick Dempsey's two-out single which pulled the Orioles into a 3-3 tie. Ken Singleton's solo homer started the inning.

The Tigers scored all of their runs in the seventh off Wayne Garland, when Baltimore made a pair of two-out errors. Rusty Staub's double and Jason Thompson's single accounted for runs, and another scored on second baseman Bobby Grich's miscue.

Detroit's Ron LeFlore, who opened the ninth with his fourth hit, was cut down trying to score on a throw by center fielder Paul Blair, with Dempsey effectively blocking the plate.

Two walks loaded the bases before Fred Holdsworth, 2-0, the third Baltimore pitcher of the inning came in and got Alex Johnson to hit into a force play.

The streaking Orioles have won six of their last seven to chop five games off the still imposing lead of the New York Yankees in the American League East and now trail by a more respectable 9½ games.

The Yanks have lost six of their last seven.

"They have too good a pitching staff to go into a prolonged slump," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said of the Yanks. "But I'd have to say that six out of seven is a partial slump."

"I never thought it would happen this way," Weaver added. "I thought maybe the Yanks might play .500 ball the rest of the season, and we'd could catch them by playing super outstanding ball."

"I'm sure New York is starting to think about us," added Jackson. "But we've still got to keep winning."

"This is New York's first real bad spell," Jackson said. "Champions come out of them, and the Yanks have a big enough lead and a good enough club to come out. If they don't, they don't deserve to win."

It was the second homer in two games for Jackson, who had missed three games after being beaned by New York's Dock Ellis last Tuesday night and so far has performed only as a designated hitter.

"With the money I'm making, I've got to play," said Jackson, who had three of Baltimore's five hits and stole two bases. "I might go back to the outfield later in the week."

Allin Posts Close Win

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Brian "Bud" Allin, who collected a fistful of decorations as an Army artilleryman in Viet Nam, now is a bundle of nerves on the pro golf tour. And he likes it that way.

"It's nice to be nervous, that's what this game is all about," the 31-year-old Allin said Sunday after collecting $40,000 with a pressure-packed, one-stroke victory in the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Classic.

"I was nervous, kind of shaky out there," Allin said. "It's been so long since I've won, since 1974, I really wanted this one. I was so nervous I quit looking at the scoreboard.

"I didn't know I was ahead. I didn't look at the leader board from the 10th hole until the 18th. Then I looked up at the board when I was on that last green. I knew I needed just two putts to win and I went out and got them."

While admitting to a case of nerves, he gave the jitters to rivals as the 72-hole tournament turned into a horse race in the final round, interrupted by a thunderstorm for 1½ hours in late morning.

After six holes, there was a five-way tie for the lead. Allin took a bogey 5 on the 64th hole, but then settled down, and his challengers gradually faded. Allin took the lead for good when Bob Menne had a bogey on the 68th hole.

Acutally, Allin nailed down his fifth PGA victory, and first since 1974, by sinking a 25-foot putt for a birdie 2 on the 70th hole. That gave him a two-stroke lead and enabled him to withstand the closing charge of Ben Crenshaw, the tour's leading money winner this year.

Crenshaw, struggling with few birdies but never going over par, found the birdie range on the last two holes. However, his charge fell short as Allin refused to bend to the pressure.

Allin, who started the fourth round two strokes off the pace, finished with a one-under-par 70 for a 72-hole total of 277, seven strokes under regulation at the Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Crenshaw, given a sponsor's exemption when he was a rookie in 1973 here, finished with a 70 for 278, good for $22,800, boosting his earnings for the year to $213,000.

Lee Elder, who faltered to a closing 74, tied for third with Menne and Lanny Wadkins at 279. There was a whopping deadlock at 280. Then, at 281, came third-round leader Mac McLendon, who wound up with a fat 76.

The rain-plagued tournament was so troublesome that Gary Player, one of golf's all-time greats, didn't pick up a penny. Player took a big 79 in the final round and finished out of the money with 293.

MSU Student Newspaper Lists Charges

Hayes, OSU Recruiting Illegally?

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Woody Hayes and his Ohio State football machine allegedly have been using funds from alumni groups in recruiting prospective student athletes in violation of NCAA and Big Ten rules, according to a student newspaper at Michigan State University.

Sources have told the State News, the daily student newspaper at Michigan State, that police officers and a former high school football coach have received monetary compensation in exchange for transporting prospects to the Columbus campus for visits.

One source, who was close to the Buckeye grid scene for several years, told the State News that two Warren, O., police officers received $75 and $60 respectively from a member of an Ohio State alumni group in the Warren, O. area.

The source, who requested anonymity in exchange for information, stated that Warren police officer William Misocky received $60 in January 1975 from Frank Lafferty, a member of the OSU alumni association, to transport Kelton Dansler to Columbus for a recruiting visit.

Misocky, an eight-year veteran of the force who was assigned to Warren G. Harding High School as juvenile officer when the incident occurred, admitted he was involved, saying, "Yes, I remember taking Dansler to OSU and yes, Frank Lafferty gave me $60 to cover expenses."

Such payment is illegal according to NCAA and Big Ten rules.

Lafferty, who later gave Dansler a job at the Avalon Inn in Warren, couldn't recall the incident.

He told the State News "I'm trying to place the event. I can't really remember. I just barely know Officer Misocky from school. I know a lot of people there because I was on the Board of Education."

Misocky added that while in Columbus he stayed with Dansler and ate meals with the coaching staff in the university cafeteria which were paid for by the Ohio State coaches.

The policeman also said, "I can't say yes or no as to whether any other officer had been doing the same thing and getting paid."

However, the State News source said that in May, 1975, Warren Police Officer Steve Papalas told him that he (Papalas) had received $75 from an OSU booster for driving a prospect to Columbus for a 2½-day visit.

The source said that Papalas took Buckeye defensive lineman Arron Brown and Brown's mother to Ohio State in March 1974. The source also said that Buckeye defensive coach George Hill paid for the group's meals with an Ohio State voucher.

At the time he took Brown to OSU, Papalas was assigned as a juvenile officer at Warren Western Reserve High School. Papalas was unavailable for comment Sunday concerning the allegations. According to Misocky, "Papalas and I were partners on the force and he was assigned to schools on the east side of town and I was assigned to the west side. Right now he is on vacation."

A second source told the State News that he had received money for taking high school prospects to the OSU campus.

The source, a former high school football coach in Ohio who also wished to keep his identity secret, said, "The first time it happened was in 1972. Each week a group of OSU boosters in Warren got together at an alumnae meeting and watched films of the previous week's games.

"Once, Frank Lafferty came up to me and said he wanted me to take prospects to Columbus and said, 'Don't worry about expenses. We have a fund to take care of such things.'"

The coach told the State News he had his first opportunity in 1972 when Dr. Louie Cohen of Warren asked that he take some prospects.

"Before I left, Dr. Cohen gave me a check for $90 to $110. I don't really remember the exact amount, to cover expenses," he said.

Two more years passed before the high school coach was called on again. He was asked to take a player who later enrolled at Notre Dame to an Ohio State game.

The coach said, "Dr. Robert Heckel gave me $70 or $75 in cash to cover the expenses and the room we stayed in at the motel was also paid for.

"At first," he continued, "I told Dr. Heckel that he didn't have to do it, but he told me, 'Don't worry about it, everybody does it.'"

Dr. Heckel did not return a phone call and there was no listing in Warren for Dr. Cohen.

Last Friday in Chicago, a State News reporter, Ed Rooders, attempted to question Coach Woody Hayes about the allegations contained in the State News story published today.

Hayes responded by saying, "I hope you do print that. I have a good reputation, you know, and I'll be glad to drag you in court. In fact, you .... I'll grab you." Rooders said Hayes at that point tried to grab him around the neck.

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke, when told of the allegations concerning Ohio State, commented, "I know nothing about it. I have no information at all. I have to look at the rules at that time. I can't see where it represents any great deal."

Seahawks' Debut Spoiled

Super Bowl Champ Steelers Triumph

"It was nice to come close, but it would have been nice to win," the rookie head coach of the upstart Seattle Seahawks said after his first-year National Football League team lost 27-20 to the San Francisco 49ers Sunday in a preseason opener for both clubs.

Expansion teams aren't supposed to win their first preseason game. Seattle and the NFL's other newcomer this season, Tampa Bay, didn't.

But the Kingdome crowd of 60,525, some of whom booed the Seahawks as they left the field trailing 17-0 at halftime, had plenty to cheer about in the second half when quarterback Jim Zorn, who spelled starting quarterback Neil Graff after halftime, passed and ran Seattle's way back into the game.

The victory was the first for new 49er head Coach Monte Clark, whose team held a 24-0 third-period lead before Seattle caught fire behind Zorn for three late touchdowns to make it a game.

"We accomplished two goals we had going into the game," said Clark, a former assistant under Don Shula at Miami. "We got to see all our people and still won."

Zorn, who was with the Dallas Cowboys through the preseason last year before being cut two days before the season opener to make room for Preston Pearson, passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third. He made a scrambling bid for a fourth score in the waning seconds, but was dropped two yards short of the goal line as the clock ran out.

"This game gives us a great deal of confidence going into next week," said Zorn. "Our receivers were great, even better than I thought they would be."

San Francisco jumped ahead 7-0 late in the first period on Delvin William's eight-yard run. The 14-play, 80-yard drive consumed 9:56 of the quarter.

Larry Schreiber hauled in a four-yard scoring pass from veteran quarterback Jim Plunkett, obtained from New England in the offseason, for a second quarter score, and Kermit Johnson scored on a 17-yard run in the third period to put the 49ers ahead 24-0. Veteran Bruce Gossett also booted field goals of 2 and 20 yards for San Francisco.

The New England Patriots, in the only other game Sunday, won the first overtime game of the year, beating the visiting New York Giants 13-7 in a night contest.

Most of last season's winners opened this year's pre-season play on a successful note Saturday. Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh beat New Orleans 24-14. Baltimore blanked Cleveland 21-0. Washington trimmed Atlanta 17-10, St. Louis nipped the New York Jets 13-12. Los Angeles ruined Tampa Bay's debut 28-3 and Cincinnati slipped by Green Bay 23-17. In clashes between winners, Oakland edged Super Bowl runnerup Dallas 17-14 and Miami put down Minnesota 16-3. In other games Chicago nudged Denver 15-14, Detroit defeated Buffalo 20-17 with O.J. Simpson still absent and San Diego bounced Philadelphia 20-7.

In some of the top performances of the weekend, Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw connected on 15 of 28 passes for 194 yards and two touchdowns, both to John Stallworth, and Don McCauley ran for two scores for Baltimore, last year's Cinderella team.

Quarterback Virgil Carter came off the bench in the second quarter and directed Chicago to two scores, including a two-yard plunge by Johnny Musso late in the final quarter. Dan Woods scored twice for San Diego and rookie Joe Washington added a third.

Washington's victory was spoiled by a dislocated right shoulder suffered by All-Pro wide receiver Charley Taylor, who will be out four to six weeks.

Bowlby Top Hillclimber

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — Earl Bowlby of Logan, Ohio, captured his second national motorcycle hillclimbing title Sunday in the National Championship Hill Climb held at Muskegon's Mt. Garfield.

Bowlby's time of 5.284 seconds was good enough to give him the Class A (professional) top prize, including winnings of $1,020. He last won the American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned event in 1968.

David Mosley of Allan, Ky. was first in the Class B amateur division with a time of 6.128 seconds, and took home $750 in prize money.

Placing second in Class A was James Thompson of Gahanna, Ohio, with 5.622 seconds, and third place went to Jerry Kinzer of Prestonberg, Ky. with a time of 5.638.

Two cyclists from Laurelville, Ohio, took second and third place in class B. James Clark had a time of 6.192 for second and Keith Grooms took third with 6.244.

More than 10,000 spectators turned out to watch the field of 15 professionals and 15 amateurs compete in the annual national championships. Qualifiers were determined by points accumulated in motorcycle hillclimb events across the country earlier in the year.

Ann Arbor Diver Upset

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) — Dan Watson of Ashland, Ky., upset Bruce Kimball of Ann Arbor, Mich., to win the boys 13-to-14 three-meter national diving championship Saturday.

Watson outpointed Kimball, who won in the 12-year-old bracket last year, 356.65 to 348.15 as the fourth annual National Age Group Diving Championships opened at DeAnza College.

A total 251 divers are entered in the four-day AAU-sanctioned event. Winners will represent the United States later this year in competition with age-group divers from Canada and Mexico at Mexico City.

In platform diving for 17-and 18-year-olds, Lori Wehtlawfer of Ann Arbor, Mich., beat Julie Eachman of Mobile, Ala., 321.85 to 293.40.

On the one-meter board, Cheryl Jones of Madera, Calif. was 12-and-under champion and the winner in the 13-to-14-year-old division was Jean Meyer of Los Angeles.

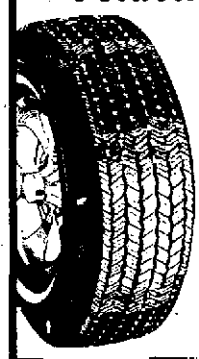

For boys 12-and-under, Mike Wantuk of Miami won the three-meter title with 275.45 points.

Preps Playing At Pontiac

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan high school football championships will be held Nov. 27 at Pontiac Stadium, the Michigan High School Athletic Association, Inc. and stadium officials announced Wednesday.

Championship games in all four classes will be played on that day, the officials said.

Lauda Critical After Wreck

MANNHEIM, West Germany (AP) — World champion driver Niki Lauda, an outspoken critic of the Nuerburgring, remained in critical condition today from injuries received in a three-car crash Sunday during the Formula I German Grand Prix.

Doctors in the intensive-care unit at Mannheim Medical Hospital were most concerned about Lauda's lungs, damaged by poisonous fumes he inhaled in the cockpit of his burning Ferrari 312 T2, a hospital spokesman said.

The 27-year-old Austrian driver also suffered first, second and third-degree facial burns expected to require plastic surgery.

The hospital spokesmen said doctors were waiting for Lauda's condition to improve before they performed any operations and that it might be 14 days before surgery could be undertaken.

Other injuries Lauda received in the third-lap wreck included less serious burns to his wrists and arms, a broken collar bone and other minor fractures, said Dr. Rudolf Zellner, head of the plastic surgery department at another clinic in nearby Ludwigshafen.

The race, which was won later by Briton James Hunt in a McLaren Ford M23, was interrupted for 1½ hours by the wreck about 6¼ miles from the grandstand at the Nuerburgring track. Hunt is second to Lauda in the championship standings.

Lauda's car lost a rear wheel in the third lap and swerved into a guard fence on the sharp left turn known as Berwerk Corner. The car burst into flames.

Brett Lunger of Wilmington, Del. making his European Grand Prix debut in a Surtees-Ford TS19, and West German Harald Ertl in a Hesketh Ford 308 B crashed into the wreck, but were unhurt.

The wife of the Austrian, former model Marlene Knaus, 26, flew from Austria to be at his bedside. They have only been married four months.

Lauda, favored to win the championship for the second straight year, leads the Grand Prix standings with 58 points. Hunt's victory gave him 44 points in second place with Jody Scheckter of South Africa in third place with 34 points after finishing second to Hunt.

Hunt led the entire race, which started in a slight drizzle. Hunt's West German teammate Jochen Mass was third behind Scheckter. Only 15 of the 26 starters finished the race.

After the race, and the crash, the controversial Nuerburgring was a choice subject. Ertl said the crash "didn't have anything to do with the Nuerburgring."

But critics claim the 49-year-old circuit is not safe enough for modern 500-horsepower racers capable of doing well over 200 miles per hour. Lauda himself was one of the critics, even after a commission of racing drivers and auto experts inspected recent improvements a few months ago and declared it safe.

Jones Fails To Pick Up Padres

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Randy Jones wanted to pick up his San Diego Padres by picking up his 19th victory of the season. The team had lost seven of the last eight games — the only victory coming in his last start — and the time was ripe for Jones to top the Reds again as he had done the last four times he had faced them.

But all Randy Jones picked up Sunday was his fifth loss, because his sinker picked up when it was supposed to have dropped.

"I just made two mistakes," said Jones, who is entitled to two after recording more than one-third of his club's victories this year. "I wanted to pick the ball club up. I was really excited. I realized I couldn't make too many mistakes against the Reds."

Two turned out to be too many. "I hung a sinker to (George) Foster and the big thing was hanging a sinker to (Doug) Flynn."

The first mistake, in the fourth inning, became Foster's 23rd home run of the season and 2nd run batted in. Flynn sent the second miscue into center field for the single that scored the eventual winning runs in the 5-4 Reds triumph.

In the other National League games Sunday, Montreal blanked Pittsburgh 2-0; Chicago trimmed St. Louis 2-1 in 10 innings; Philadelphia swept New York 7-6 in 11 innings and 2-0; Houston topped Atlanta 6-0, then Los Angeles stopped San Francisco 4-1 and 4-3 in 10 innings.

Wayne Garrett's first-inning triple and an eighth-inning RBI single by Ellis Valentine backed a five-hitter by Steve Rogers in the Expos' victory.

Pete LaCock, whose error with two outs in the ninth inning allowed the tying run to score, singled home the winning run with two outs in the 10th inning Sunday to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

LaCock also drove in the game's first run with a single in the eighth inning after Bill Madlock had walked and Jerry Morales had spoiled John Denny's no-hit bid with a two-out single.

But the Chicago defense collapsed in the ninth as two errors helped the Cards tie it. Cubs starter Ray Burris, working on a four-hitter, was victimized by a three-base error by left fielder Jose Cardenal on Willie Crawford's fly ball and one by first baseman LaCock, which permitted Crawford to score with two out.

Before Morales' eighth-inning hit, his sinking line drive to right field had come closest to being a Chicago hit. Crawford, however, made a diving, one-hand catch on the play.

With each passing inning, it appeared Denny would have the first Cardinals' no-hitter since Bob Gibson hurled one on Aug 14, 1971 — an 11-0 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

It would have been the first no-hitter against the Cubs since all-time great Dodgers lefthander Sandy Koufax hurled a perfect game in Los Angeles on Sept 9, 1965.

And it would have been the first such effort at Wrigley Field since Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds threw his in 10 innings on Aug. 19, 1965.

But the trivia went out the window when Morales sent a ground ball just out of the reach of St. Louis second baseman Doug Clary.

"I don't want to talk to you vultures," a distressed Denny said to newsmen. "Get away from me."

Mike Schmidt's 27th homer of the season took the nightcap for Philadelphia after Garry Maddox' 11th-inning single scored Jay Johnstone from first base to win the opener. Greg Luzinskn had a grand slam in the opener, but New York came back to tie it in the ninth inning.

Larry Dierker's five-hit shutout of Atlanta was his second in a row overall, his third in a row at home and his fourth of the season. Jose Cruz drove in two runs and had three hits to pace the victory.

Reliever Charlie Hough picked up his ninth save of the season by protecting Don Sutton's victory in the opener, then won the nightcap on his own as the Dodgers swept the Giants. Bill Buckner had seven hits in the doubleheader but did not drive in a run.

Deyo Out In Semis

"It wasn't our best race," said Barton, a 19-year-old who postponed his first year of college to train for the competition. "But we're young. We didn't expect to make it into the final."

Olson Champ

HOUGHTON — Terri Olson, a South Bend resident who spends her summers in Michigan, won the girls division of the American Water Ski Association Michigan State Championship here Saturday.

It was her first girls division title, although she had won the junior girls title four years running.

Plangger's Ready For District

The local team took the first game 6-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Rich Plangger and then won the nightcap 3-2 with George Luther pitching a four-hitter.

The district opens Tuesday night at Plangger's Park. Niles Fayette faces Fister's Real Estate at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Plangger's faces Tuesday's winner at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The two losers play at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The championship game is slated for 7:30 p.m. Friday. If necessary, a second championship contest will be played at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Centreville Selects Sexton

BUCHANAN — Pat Sexton, Buchanan junior varsity basketball coach the past two seasons, has been named to the head coaching job at Centreville high school.

In three years as a coach at Buchanan Sexton posted a 35-18 record. During the first two years he coached many members of this year's state championship team. In 1973-74 he coached the eighth graders to a 12-1 record. The following year he was elevated to the junior varsity job and with many of the same kids finished with a 17-3 mark.

This past season he took an 0-18 freshman team and coached them to a 6-14 mark on the junior varsity.

Sexton has a degree from Western Michigan University.

Free Physicals At Dowagiac

DOWAGIAC — Lee Memorial hospital staff members here will be providing free physicals for Dowagiac school students who will be taking part in school-sponsored athletics in the 1976-77 school year.

The physicals will be offered only on Wednesday, Aug. 4, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the high school, a hospital spokesman said.

Barlow Captures Tennis Tourney

SOUTH BEND — Anne Barlow of Benton Harbor won the girls division of the 55th annual St. Joseph Valley Open tennis championships here Sunday.

Barlow, a student at Lake Michigan Catholic, beat Karen Day of LaPorte in the title match 7-5, 6-1 at Lapeer Park on the campus of Notre Dame University.

In the second week in August, Barlow will be playing in the River Forest Invitational in River Forest, Ill

Wolff Keys N. Lincoln

Eric Wolff hurled a two-hitter as North Lincoln downed Niles 13-0 on Saturday. Steve Ramerman went three-for-four and Don Fedor pounded out a pair of hits for the winners.

Bob Steinke pitched Lakeshore West past Benton Heights 12-6. DeRoach and Glavach both had two hits and Runge notched three hits for Lakeshore.

In a losers' bracket game tonight, Coloma will meet Benton Harbor No. 1. On Saturday Fairplain topped Coloma 10-6 while Dowagiac downed Benton Harbor 7-5.

Dave Maxwell got the win while Dan Saiz was tagged with the loss for Coloma. Frank Krizinski struck out six for Dowagiac in gaing the win while Kevin Allen was the losing hurler.

In the only other Saturday contest, Dennis Warkentien hurled Decatur past Buchanan 10-3. Bob Couchman was the losing pitcher and Allan Ward had two hits.

On Sunday, St. Joseph clobbered Bridgman 14-2, Lakeshore East blanked Watervliet 10-0 and Benton Harbor No. 2 got by New Buffalo 8-4.

Royal Oak Is Tourney Winner

WATERVLIET — Jones Motor Inn of Royal Oak won five-straight games to take the team title in the second annual Watervliet Slowpitch Softball tourney Sunday.

Jones beat United Sports of Berrien Springs 11-3 in the championship game. Jim Sellgren got the win while Mike Mason went 17 for 21 in the tourney.

Sonny Duffel was the losing pitcher for United Sports. Mike Yates of United was th leading hitter in the tournament, smacking 21 safties.

Surprising Twins Move Into Second

Sox' Gossage Outduels Tanana

From Associated Press

"I guess I enjoy baseball now as much as ever," says Manager Gene Mauch.

"It's almost like we have someone up there looking out for us and that's a great feeling," notes outfielder Larry Hisle.

The Twins' elevated status in the American League West is the reason for this natural high. A prisoner of the cellar for many years, the Twins are up in the rarified air of second place after a doubleheader sweep over the Oakland A's Sunday.

"We just haven't been winning both games of doubleheaders for two or three years," said Hisle after the Twins whipped their longtime tormentors, 8-7 in 12 innings and 6-2. "This series is the best I can ever remember being involved in."

The sweep was the Twins' fourth doubleheader victory this season and their second in five days. The onetime West doormats have now won seven straight games and 12 of their last 14the Twins rallied from a two-run deficit in the ninth and came from behind twice in extra innings to defeat Oakland on a bases-loaded walk to Roy Smalley in the 12th inning of their opener. Hisle slugged three times, drove in two runs and scored another, leading the Twins to their second-game victory.

Coupled with Kansas City's 8-4 loss to the Texas Rangers, the Twins moved within nine games of the West leaders. In other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Detroit Tigers 4-3; the Boston Red Sox edged the New York Yankees 5-4; the Cleveland Indians turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in 10 innings and the Chicago White Sox defeated the California Angels 2-1.

Gaylord Perry survived a shaky start and scattered 10 hits and Texas handed southpaw Andy Hassler his 18th straight defeat in beating Kansas City. The Royals collected five hits and three of their runs off Perry, 10-8, in the first two innings, but the crafty righthander settled down, allowing only one more run in the ninth.

Rick Burleson doubled in two runs in the ninth inning and scored on a sacrifice fly by Carl Yastrzemski as the Red Sox edged New York and extended the Yankees' losing streak to three games.

Ralph Garr tripled to open the eighth inning and scored the winning run on a grounder as Chicago edged California behind the five-hit pitching of Rich Gossage. Gossage, 6-10, snapped a personal seven-game losing streak and posted his first victory since June 9 as he outdueled Angel ace Frank Tanana, 12-8, who permitted only six hits.

Walks Key Birds' Win Over Tigers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Detroit Tiger reliever John Hiller loaded the bases by walking three Baltimore hitters with two out in the ninth inning and then Reggie Jackson singled home the winning run as the Orioles defeated the Detroit Tigers Sunday, 4-3.

Hiller, 10-5, who retired nine consecutive batters while notching his 10th save Saturday night, pitched hitless ball again for two innings before the three walks set up Jackson's single through the middle. Jackson also slammed a homer in the opening inning, his 18th of the season.

Detroit starter Ray Bare had allowed only four hits when he was removed in the seventh following Rick Dempsey's two-out single which pulled the Orioles into a 3-3 tie. Ken Singleton's solo homer started the inning.

The Tigers scored all of their runs in the seventh off Wayne Garland, when Baltimore made a pair of two-out errors. Rusty Staub's double and Jason Thompson's single accounted for runs, and another scored on second baseman Bobby Grich's miscue.

Detroit's Ron LeFlore, who opened the ninth with his fourth hit, was cut down trying to score on a throw by center fielder Paul Blair, with Dempsey effectively blocking the plate.

Two walks loaded the bases before Fred Holdsworth, 2-0, the third Baltimore pitcher of the inning came in and got Alex Johnson to hit into a force play.

The streaking Orioles have won six of their last seven to chop five games off the still imposing lead of the New York Yankees in the American League East and now trail by a more respectable 9½ games.

The Yanks have lost six of their last seven.

"They have too good a pitching staff to go into a prolonged slump," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said of the Yanks. "But I'd have to say that six out of seven is a partial slump."

"I never thought it would happen this way," Weaver added. "I thought maybe the Yanks might play .500 ball the rest of the season, and we'd could catch them by playing super outstanding ball."

"I'm sure New York is starting to think about us," added Jackson. "But we've still got to keep winning."

"This is New York's first real bad spell," Jackson said. "Champions come out of them, and the Yanks have a big enough lead and a good enough club to come out. If they don't, they don't deserve to win."

It was the second homer in two games for Jackson, who had missed three games after being beaned by New York's Dock Ellis last Tuesday night and so far has performed only as a designated hitter.

"With the money I'm making, I've got to play," said Jackson, who had three of Baltimore's five hits and stole two bases. "I might go back to the outfield later in the week."

STONES LOVES CANADIANS: High jumper Dwight Stones of Huntington Beach, Conn., holds up warm-up T-shirt at the Olympic stadium Saturday with "I love French Canadians" on the back in an attempt to make peace with track and field fans. The 22-year-old world record holder had irritated many residents of Montreal when he was quoted in a newspaper article as saying French Canadians were rude and inconsiderate. Allin Posts Close Win

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Brian "Bud" Allin, who collected a fistful of decorations as an Army artilleryman in Viet Nam, now is a bundle of nerves on the pro golf tour. And he likes it that way.

"It's nice to be nervous, that's what this game is all about," the 31-year-old Allin said Sunday after collecting $40,000 with a pressure-packed, one-stroke victory in the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Classic.

"I was nervous, kind of shaky out there," Allin said. "It's been so long since I've won, since 1974, I really wanted this one. I was so nervous I quit looking at the scoreboard.

"I didn't know I was ahead. I didn't look at the leader board from the 10th hole until the 18th. Then I looked up at the board when I was on that last green. I knew I needed just two putts to win and I went out and got them."

While admitting to a case of nerves, he gave the jitters to rivals as the 72-hole tournament turned into a horse race in the final round, interrupted by a thunderstorm for 1½ hours in late morning.

After six holes, there was a five-way tie for the lead. Allin took a bogey 5 on the 64th hole, but then settled down, and his challengers gradually faded. Allin took the lead for good when Bob Menne had a bogey on the 68th hole.

Acutally, Allin nailed down his fifth PGA victory, and first since 1974, by sinking a 25-foot putt for a birdie 2 on the 70th hole. That gave him a two-stroke lead and enabled him to withstand the closing charge of Ben Crenshaw, the tour's leading money winner this year.

Crenshaw, struggling with few birdies but never going over par, found the birdie range on the last two holes. However, his charge fell short as Allin refused to bend to the pressure.

Allin, who started the fourth round two strokes off the pace, finished with a one-under-par 70 for a 72-hole total of 277, seven strokes under regulation at the Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Crenshaw, given a sponsor's exemption when he was a rookie in 1973 here, finished with a 70 for 278, good for $22,800, boosting his earnings for the year to $213,000.

Lee Elder, who faltered to a closing 74, tied for third with Menne and Lanny Watkins at 279. There was a whopping deadlock at 280. Then, at 281, came third-round leader Mac McLendon, who wound up with a 76.

The rain-plagued tournament was so troublesome that Gary Player, one of golf's all-time greats, didn't pick up a penny. Player took a big 79 in the final round and finished out of the money with 293.

Lauda Critical After Wreck

MANNHEIM, West Germany (AP) — World champion driver Niki Lauda, an outspoken critic of the Nuerburgring, remained in critical condition today from injuries received in a three-car crash Sunday during the Formula I German Grand Prix.

Doctors in the intensive-care unit at Mannheim Medical Hospital were most concerned about Lauda's lungs, damaged by poisonous fumes he inhaled in the cockpit of his burning Ferrari 312 T2, a hospital spokesman said.

The 27-year-old Austrian driver also suffered first, second and third-degree facial burns expected to require plastic surgery.

The hospital spokesmen said doctors were waiting for Lauda's condition to improve before they performed any operations and that it might be 14 days before surgery could be undertaken.

Other injuries Lauda received in the third-lap wreck included less serious burns to his wrists and arms, a broken collar bone and other minor fractures, said Dr. Rudolf Zellner, head of the plastic surgery department at another clinic in nearby Ludwigshafen.

The race, which was won later by Briton James Hunt in a McLaren Ford M23, was interrupted for 1½ hours by the wreck about 6½ miles from the grandstand at the Nuerburgring track. Hunt is second to Lauda in the championship standings.

Lauda's car lost a rear wheel in the third lap and swerved into a guard fence on the sharp left turn known as Berwerk Corner. The car burst into flames.

Brett Lunger of Wilmington, Del. making his European Grand Prix debut in a Surtees-Ford TS16, and West German Harald Ertl in a Hesketh Ford 308 D crashed into the wreck, but were unhurt.

The wife of the Austrian, former model Marlene Knaus, 26, flew from Austria to be at his bedside. They have only been married four months.

Lauda, favored to win the championship for the second straight year, leads the Grand Prix standings with 38 points. Hunt's victory gave him 41 points in second place with Jody Scheckter of South Africa in third place with 34 points after finishing second to Hunt.

Hunt led the entire race, which started in a slight drizzle. Hunt's West German teammate Jochen Mass was third behind Scheckter. Only 15 of the 26 starters finished the race.

After the race, and the crash, the controversial Nuerburgring was a choice subject. Ertl said the crash "didn't have anything to do with the Nuerburgring."

But critics claim the 49-year-old circuit is not safe enough for modern 500-horsepower racers capable of doing well over 200 miles per hour. Lauda himself was one of the critics, even after a commission of racing drivers and auto experts inspected recent improvements a few months ago and declared it safe.

LaCock Both Goat, Hero As Cubs Win

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Randy Jones wanted to pick up his San Diego Padres by picking up his 19th victory of the season. The team had lost seven of the last eight games — the only victory coming in his last start — and the time was ripe for Jones to top the Reds again as he had done the last four times he had faced them.

But all Randy Jones picked up Sunday was his fifth loss, because his sinker picked up when it was supposed to have dropped.

"I just made two mistakes," said Jones, who is entitled to two after recording more than one-third of his club's victories this year. "I wanted to pick the ball club up. I was really excited. I realized I couldn't make too many mistakes against the Reds."

Two turned out to be too many. "I hung a sinker to (George) Foster and the big thing was hanging a sinker to (Doug) Flynn."

The first mistake, in the fourth inning, became Foster's 23rd home run of the season and 72nd run batted in. Flynn sent the second miscue into center field for the single that scored the eventual winning runs in the 5-4 Reds triumph.

In the other National League games Sunday, Montreal blanked Pittsburgh 2-0; Chicago trimmed St. Louis 2-1 in 10 innings; Philadelphia swept New York 7-6 in 11 innings and 2-0; Houston topped Atlanta 6-0, then Los Angeles stopped San Francisco 4-1 and 4-3 in 10 innings.

Wayne Garrett's first-inning triple and an eighth-inning RBI single by Ellis Valentine backed a five-hitter by Steve Rogers in the Expos' victory.

Pete LaCock, whose error with two outs in the ninth inning allowed the tying run to score, singled home the winning run with two outs in the 10th inning Sunday to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

LaCock also drove in the game's first run with a single in the eighth inning after Bill Madlock had walked and Jerry Morales had spoiled John Denny's no-hit bid with a two-out single.

But the Chicago defense collapsed in the ninth as two errors helped the Cards tie it. Cubs starter Ray Burris, working on a four-hitter, was victimized by a three-base error by left fielder Jose Cardenal on Willie Crawford's fly ball and one by first baseman LaCock, which permitted Crawford to score with two out.

With each passing inning, it appeared Denny would have the first Cardinals' no-hitter since Bob Gibson hurled one on Aug 14, 1971 — an 11-0 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

It would have been the first no-hitter against the Cubs since all-time great Dodgers lefthander Sandy Koufax hurled a perfect game in Los Angeles on Sept 9, 1965.

And it would have been the first such effort at Wrigley Field since Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds threw his in 10 innings on Aug. 19, 1965.

But the trivia went out the window when Morales sent a ground ball just out of the reach of St. Louis second baseman Doug Clary.

"I don't want to talk to you vultures," a distressed Denny said to newsmen. "Get away from me."

Mike Schmidt's 27th homer of the season took the nightcap for Philadelphia after Garry Maddox' 11th-inning single scored Jay Johnstone from first base to win the opener. Greg Luzinskn had a grand slam in the opener, but New York came back to tie it in the ninth inning.

Larry Dierker's five-hit shutout of Atlanta was his second in a row overall, his third in a row at home and his fourth of the season. Jose Cruz drove in two runs and had three hits to pace the victory.

Reliever Charlie Hough picked up his ninth save of the season by protecting Don Sutton's victory in the opener, then won the nightcap on his own as the Dodgers swept the Giants. Bill Buckner had seven hits in the doubleheader but did not drive in a run.

Deyo Out In Semis

Barton of Horton, Mich. and Deyo were sixth and last in their semifinal heat

"It wasn't our best race," said Barton, a 19-year-old who postponed his first year of college to train for the competition. "But we're young. We didn't expect to make it into the final."

Olson Champ

HOUGHTON — Terri Olson, a South Bend resident who spends her summers in Michigan, won the girls division of the American Water Ski Association Michigan State Championship here Saturday.

It was her first girls division title, although she had won the junior girls title four years running.

Plangger's Ready For District

The local team took the first game 6-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Rich Plangger and then won the nightcap 3-2 with George Luther pitching a four-hitter.

The district opens Tuesday night at Plangger's Park. Niles Fayette faces Fister's Real Estate at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Plangger's faces Tuesday's winner at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The two losers play at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The championship game is slated for 7:30 p.m. Friday. If necessary, a second championship contest will be played at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Centreville Selects Sexton

BUCHANAN — Pat Sexton, Buchanan junior varsity basketball coach the past two seasons, has been named to the head coaching job at Centreville high school.

In three years as a coach at Buchanan Sexton posted a 35-18 record. During the first two years he coached many members of this year's state championship team. In 1973-74 he coached the eighth graders to a 12-1 record. The following year he was elevated to the junior varsity job and with many of the same kids finished with a 17-3 mark.

This past season he took an 0-18 freshman team and coached them to a 6-14 mark on the junior varsity.

Sexton has a degree from Western Michigan University.

Free Physicals At Dowagiac

DOWAGIAC — Lee Memorial hospital staff members here will be providing free physicals for Dowagiac school students who will be taking part in school-sponsored athletics in the 1976-77 school year.

The physicals will be offered only on Wednesday, Aug. 4, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the high school, a hospital spokesman said.

Barlow Captures Tennis Tourney

SOUTH BEND — Anne Barlow of Benton Harbor won the girls division of the 55th annual St. Joseph Valley Open tennis championships here Sunday.

Barlow, a student at Lake Michigan Catholic, beat Karen Day of LaPorte in the title match 7-5, 6-1 at Lapeer Park on the campus of Notre Dame University.

In the second week in August, Barlow will be playing in the River Forest Invitational in River Forest, Ill.

Wolff Keys N. Lincoln

Eric Wolff hurled a two-hitter as North Lincoln downed Niles 13-0 on Saturday. Steve Ranneman went three-for-four and Don Fedor pounded out a pair of hits for the winners.

Bob Steinke pitched Lakeshore West past Benton Heights 12-6. DeRoach and Glavach both had two hits and Runge notched three hits for Lakeshore.

In a losers' bracket game tonight, Coloma will meet Benton Harbor No. 1. On Saturday Fairplain topped Coloma 10-6 while Dowagiac downed Benton Harbor 7-5.

Dave Maxwell got the win while Dan Suiz was tagged with the loss for Coloma. Frank Krizinski struck out six for Dowagiac in gaing the win while Kevin Allen was the losing hurler.

In the only other Saturday contest, Dennis Warkentien hurled Decatur past Buchanan 10-3. Bob Couchman was the losing pitcher and Allan Ward had two hits.

On Sunday, St. Joseph clobbered Bridgman 14-2, Lakeshore East blanked Watervliet 10-0 and Benton Harbor No. 2 got by New Buffalo 8-4.

Royal Oak Is Tourney Winner

WATERVLIET — Jones Motor Inn of Royal Oak won five-straight games to take the team title in the second annual Watervliet Slowpitch Softball tourney Sunday.

Jones beat United Sports of Berrien Springs 11-3 in the championship game. Jim Sellgren got the win while Mike Mason went 17 for 21 in the tourney.

Sonny Duffel was the losing pitcher for United Sports. Mike Yates of United was th leading hitter in the tournament, smacking 21 safties.

Ace For Dasse

South Haven Waits Word On Sail-By

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — Bicentennial officials here hope to confirm by Tuesday that the Norwegian tall ship Christian Radich will definitely sail past the South Haven shoreline Thursday morning enroute from Chicago to Grand Haven.

Viktor Anderson, coordinator of Bicentennial activities in South Haven, announced last week that the captain of the Radich had agreed to adjust his course so that the 238-foot sailing vessel could be seen from along the shoreline between South Haven and Grand Haven.

Anderson had estimated that the Radich would sail past South Haven between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Thursday. Anderson said this past weekend that he expected to receive a definite sailing schedule Tuesday.

The Radich arrived in Chicago yesterday for a five-day visit at Navy pier. The Chicago Sun Times yesterday said the Radich would leave Chicago at 3 a.m. Thursday.

The 40-year-old Radich has three masts and a sail area of 14,525 square feet. It is used as a training vessel for the Norse merchant marine and carries a crew of 87 cadets and 15 officers. The Radich has been at sea since April and will return to Norway at the end of September.

Three other tall ships are scheduled to visit the South Haven port between Aug. 15 and Sept. 4.

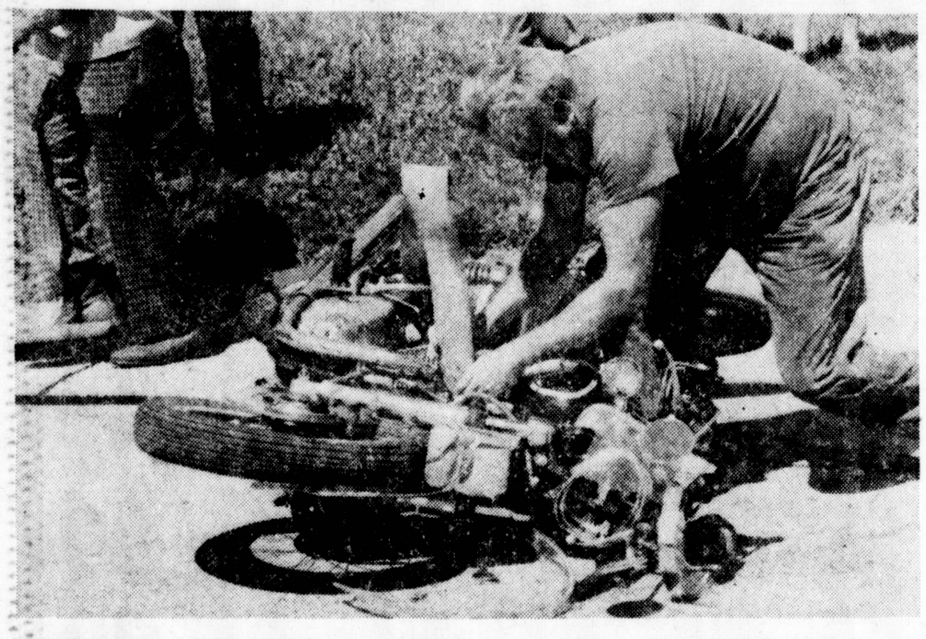

The Danish barque "Maritee" will visit from Aug. 15 to 21 as originally announced.

The visit of the Panamanian tall ship "Erawan" has been changed to Aug. 21 to 23. The 150-foot ship had originally been scheduled to arrive Aug. 20.

The Erawan will be open to the public trom 2 to 5 p.m. each day. A $1 admission fee will be charged for touring the ship due to the expenses involved for the ship to travel the Great Lakes.

The ship will also be available for private dinner parties. Information on reservations can be btained from the bicentennial office.

The final visitor to South Haven will be the yawl "Leonid Teliga" from Poland from Aug. 31 to Sept. 4. The ship had originally been scheduled to arrive Aug. 23.

CYCLIST HOSPITALIZED: Ronald Marks, 35, Box 161, East Center street, Coloma, was reported in fair condition in Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, with injuries received when his motorcycle and car collided in Hagar township Sunday afternoon. Berrien sheriff's deputies said crash occurred at intersection of Kerlikowske and Coloma roads. Ricky Dotson, 21, 1072 Jennings avenue, Benton Harbor, identified as driver of car, was arrested on charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants, deputies said. about 2:45 p.m. Driver of car was treated at Mercy hospital following crash and released. Hooking tow strap onto cycle is Ace Schinck of Ace garage, Lake Michigan beach. (Cliff Stevens photo)

CHICAGO WELCOMES SHIP: A fireboat sprays a salute as small yachts and tugs escort Norwegian sailing vessel Christian Radich on its arrival at Chicago's Navy Pier, center, Sunday. The ship will remain in Chicago until Aug. 5, when it will begin a tour of the Great Lakes region. South Haven officials hope to know by Tuesday whether ship is to pass South Haven as part of tour. Traffic Accidents Kill 13 In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three head-on collisions claimed five lives, as 13 persons died this weekend in Michigan traffic accidents, according to state police.

(None of the traffic deaths was recorded in the four-county southwestern Michigan area of Berrien, Van Buren, Cass and Allegan.)

Thomas J. Jarosi, 23, and Mike McManus, 20, both from Toledo, Ohio, died Saturday in a head-on crash on Michigan 46 in Muskegon County's Moorland Township.

Anthony Alksnes, 60, of Taylor, and Brian M. Krugier, 24, of Detroit, were killed Sunday when the cars they were driving collided head-on on a Taylor city road.

James A. Martin, 29, of St. Clair died Sunday on Michigan 115 in Wexford County when his car was involved in a head-on collision.

The other victims were:

Robert G. Cottingham, 51, of Lansing, killed Friday night when his car ran into a fixed object at a Lansing intersection.

Keith Knopek, 6, of Fraser, died Friday night when he was hit by a car on a Fraser road.

Alan W. Harder, 16, of Essexville, died Saturday when his car ran off a raod in Tuscola County's Wisner Township.

John T. Reeves, 8, of Pinconning, died Saturday, when he was hit by a car while bicycle riding on a road in Bay County's Pinconning Township.

Gregory Piper, 17, of Lansing, died Sunday on Michigan 28 in Luce County when the car in which he was a passenger was struck broadside.

Boothby's Daughter Still In Hospital

Robin R. Boothby, 17, daughter of Atty. and Mrs. Lee Boothby, remained hospitalized today in "good" condition at Berien General hospital, Berrien Center, as result of a car-truck collision last Tuesday in Royalton township.

Miss Boothby, Lake Chapin road, Berrien Springs, was driving a car involved in a collision with a truck loaded with about 3,400 pounds of tomatoes, Berrien sheriff's deputies said. Driver of the truck was identified as James W. Gesto, 24, South Bend, Ind., who was unhurt. The smashup occurred at the intersection of US 31-33 and John Beers road.

MUGGED REPORTER: Associated Press reporter Holly Sims, 26, holds knife dropped by a would-be mugger who tried to steal her purse Friday while she was on her way to a store in Detroit. She wound up interviewing her assailant, who rode away empty-handed and promised not to try to mug her again. (AP Wirephoto)

One Car Of Train Derails

C & O officials in St. Joseph said the boxcar was back on the tracks about 2 a.m. today after the accident about 5:20 p.m. Sunday. The accident occurred near Sackett's Lakeshore Brick & Stone, Inc., 5320 St. Joseph avenue. No crossings were blocked or damaged, officials said. Deputies said an apparent malfunction of the car's wheels caused the derailment. The train was bound for Grand Rapids.

Senate Hopeful Baker Asks Austin's Resignation

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — U.S. Senate hopeful Deane Baker of Ann Arbor has called for the resignation of Secretary of State Richard Austin in the aftermath of allegations about a state patronage system involving Austin's political appointees.

Baker, a Republican, said Saturday Austin, a Democrat in the Senate race, should resign because of disclosures that about $10 million in state revenue collected by the Automobile Club of Michigan was funneled through branch offices operated by Austin's appointees.

The disclosure about funds collected by the auto club from license plate sales and going to Austin's political coffers is the latest revelation about a political fund-raising system in which Austin's appointees in his branch offices kick back part of their salaries to his campaign.

"I don't think it's compatible for a government official ... to use a patronage system to raise money," Baker told 300 to 400 Kent County Republicans.

"If a Republican had done that (collected money from a patronage system) they would drive him from office. They would hound him, the press would hound him, the community of Michigan would just not rest until the person, if he were a Republican, had been driven from office. I think we have to call them as we see them. That's what I do today, and that's why I call upon Dick Austin to resign his office as secretary of state."

Baker is one four Republican seeking the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate seat soon to be vacated by the retiring Philip Hart.

Austin said after the controversy about the patronage system arose that he would no longer accept the kickback funds from his branch managers.

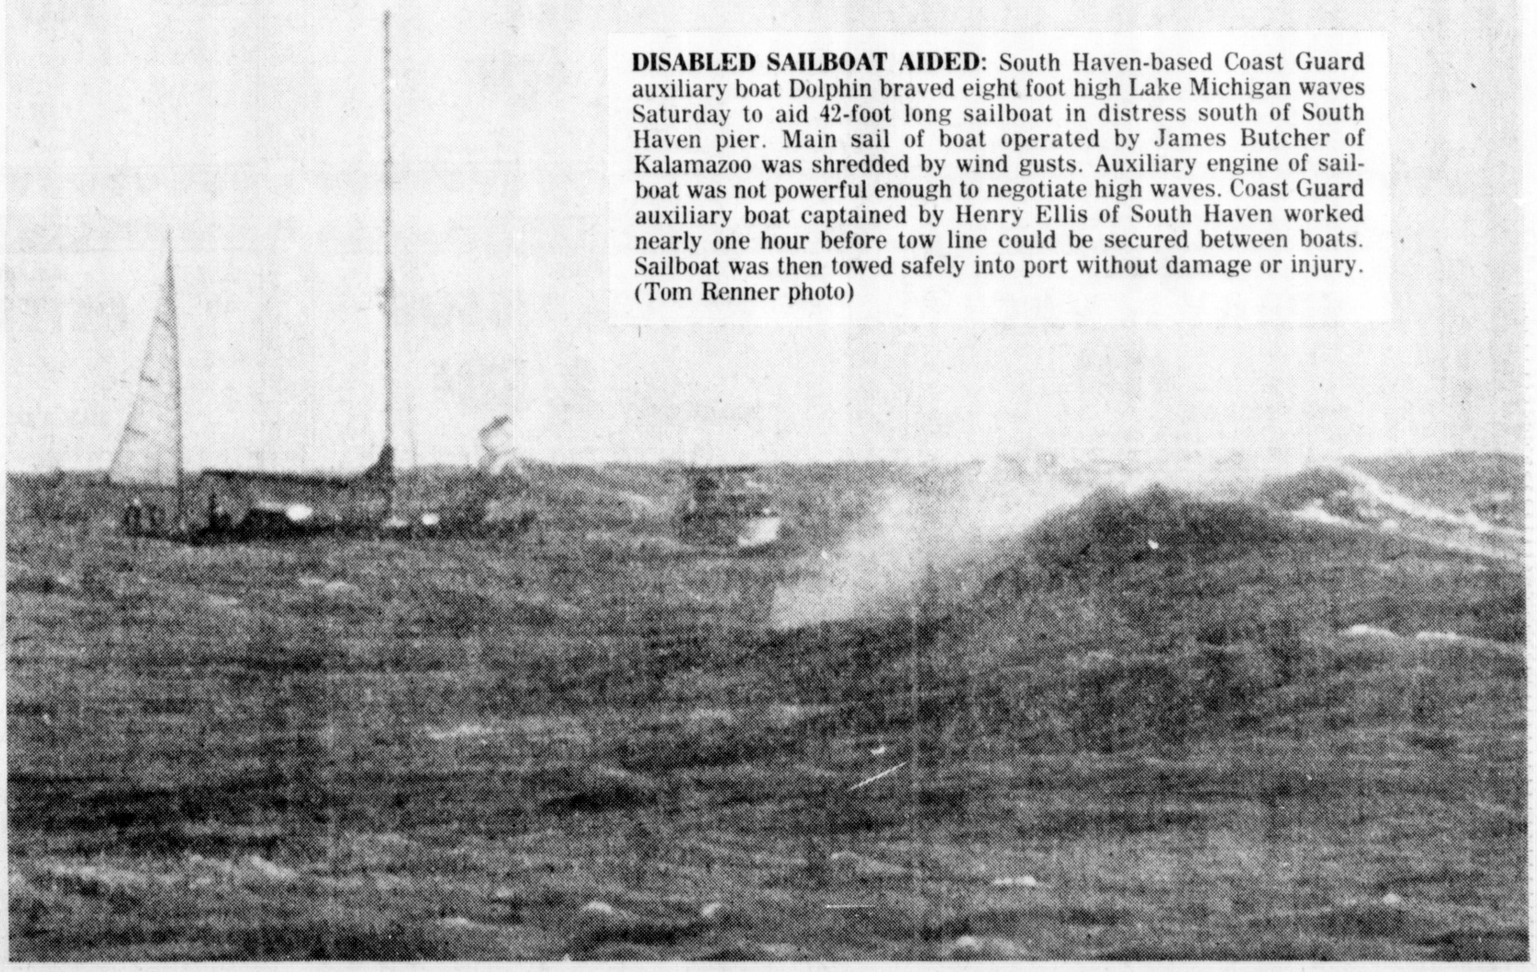

Cruiser Hits Piling

A 28-foot cabin cruiser was damaged Friday when it struck a piling in the St. Joseph river, the St. Joseph Coast Guard reported.

William D. Klemm, 1076 Maple lane, Hagar township, was the operator of the boat. The Coast Guard reported no injuries in the 8:25 p.m. accident.

An unidentified diver cut the piling off below the water, the Coast Guard said, and the boat was towed to the West Basin marina for repairs.

DISABLED SAILBOAT AIDED: South Haven-based Coast Guard auxiliary boat Dolphin braved eight foot high Lake Michigan waves Saturday to aid 42-foot long sailboat in distress south of South Haven pier. Main sail of boat operated by James Butcher of Kalamazoo was shredded by wind gusts. Auxiliary engine of sailboat was not powerful enough to negotiate high waves. Coast Guard auxiliary boat captained by Henry Ellis of South Haven worked nearly one hour before tow line could be secured between boats. Sailboat was then towed safely into port without damage or injury. (Tom Renner photo)

SOUTH HAVEN — Bicentennial officials here hope to confirm by Tuesday that the Norwegian tall ship Christian Radich will definitely sail past the South Haven shoreline Thursday morning enroute from Chicago to Grand Haven.

Viktor Anderson, coordinator of Bicentennial activities in South Haven, announced last week that the captain of the Radich had agreed to adjust his course so that the 238-foot sailing vessel could be seen from along the shoreline between South Haven and Grand Haven.

Anderson had estimated that the Radich would sail past South Haven between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Thursday. Anderson said this past weekend that he expected to receive a definite sailing schedule Tuesday.

The Radich arrived in Chicago yesterday for a five-day visit at Navy pier. The Chicago Sun Times yesterday said the Radich would leave Chicago at 3 a.m. Thursday.

The 40-year-old Radich has three masts and a sail area of 14,525 square feet. It is used as a training vessel for the Norse merchant marine and carries a crew of 87 cadets and 15 officers. The Radich has been at sea since April and will return to Norway at the end of September.

Three other tall ships are scheduled to visit the South Haven port between Aug. 15 and Sept. 4.

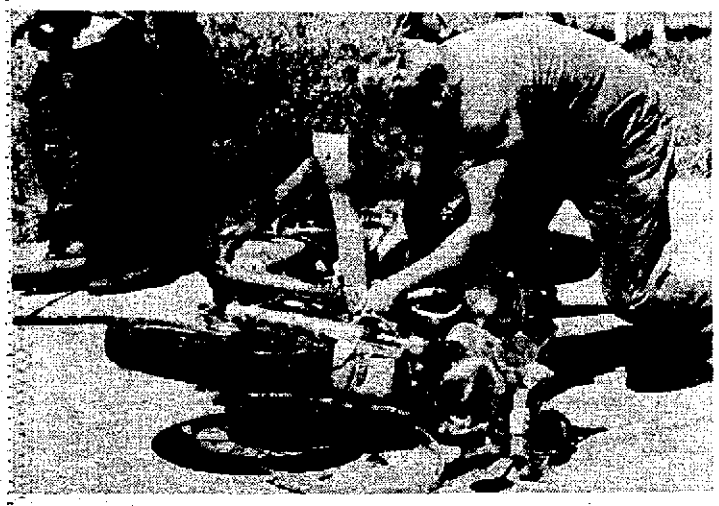

The Danish barque "Maritee" will visit from Aug. 15 to 21 as originally announced.

The visit of the Panamanian tall ship "Erawan" has been changed to Aug. 21 to 23. The 150-foot ship had originally been scheduled to arrive Aug. 20.

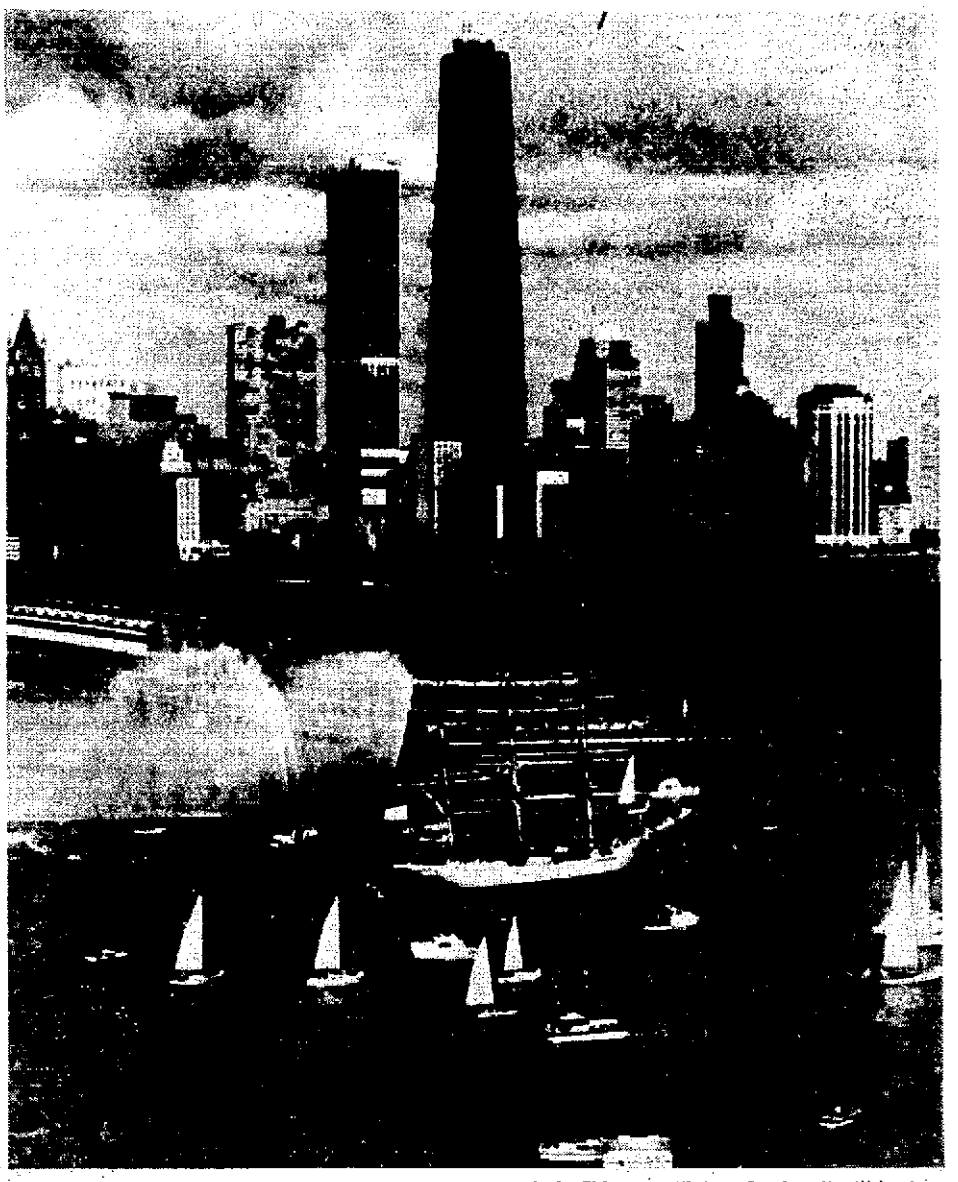

The Erawan will be open to the public from 2 to 5 p.m. each day. A $1 admission fee will be charged for touring the ship due to the expenses involved for the ship to travel the Great Lakes.

The ship will also be available for private dinner parties. Information on reservations can be btained from the bicentennial office.

The final visitor to South Haven will be the yawl "Leonid Teliga" from Poland from Aug. 31 to Sept. 4. The ship had originally been scheduled to arrive Aug. 23.

CYCLIST HOSPITALIZED: Ronald Marks, 35, Box 161, East Center street, Coloma, was reported in fair condition in Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, with injuries received when his motorcycle and car collided in Hagar township Sunday afternoon. Berrien sheriff's deputies said crash occurred at intersection of Kerlikowske and Coloma roads. Ricky Dotson, 21, 1072 Jennings avenue, Benton Harbor, identified as driver of car, was arrested on charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants, deputies said. about 2:45 p.m. Driver of car was treated at Mercy hospital following crash and released. Hooking tow strap onto cycle is Ace Schinck of Ace garage, Lake Michigan beach. (Cliff Stevens photo)

CHICAGO WELCOMES SHIP: A fireboat sprays a salute as small yachts and tugs escort Norwegian sailing vessel Christian Radich on its arrival at Chicago's Navy Pier, center, Sunday. The ship will remain in Chicago until Aug. 5, when it will begin a tour of the Great Lakes region. South Haven officials hope to know by Tuesday whether ship is to pass South Haven as part of tour. Traffic Accidents Kill 13 In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three head-on collisions claimed five lives, as 13 persons died this weekend in Michigan traffic accidents, according to state police.

(None of the traffic deaths was recorded in the four-county southwestern Michigan area of Berrien, Van Buren, Cass and Allegan.)

Thomas J. Jarosi, 23, and Mike McManus, 20, both from Toledo, Ohio, died Saturday in a head-on crash on Michigan 46 in Muskegon County's Moorland Township.

Anthony Alksnes, 60, of Taylor, and Brian M. Krugier, 24, of Detroit, were killed Sunday when the cars they were driving collided head-on on a Taylor city road.

James A. Martin, 29, of St. Clair died Sunday on Michigan 115 in Wexford County when his car was involved in a head-on collision.

The other victims were:

Robert G. Cottingham, 51, of Lansing, killed Friday night when his car ran into a fixed object at a Lansing intersection.

Keith Knopek, 6, of Fraser, died Friday night when he was hit by a car on a Fraser road.

Theodore L. Morse, 45, of Ravenna, killed Friday night, when his car ran off a road in Muskegon County's Egleston Township.

Alan W. Harder, 16, of Essexville, died Saturday when his car ran off a raod in Tuscola County's Wisner Township.

John T. Reeves, 8, of Pinconning, died Saturday, when he was hit by a car while bicycle riding on a road in Bay County's Pinconning Township.

Frank Osmialowski, 73, of Washington, died Sunday, in rural Macomb County when his car ran off the road and struck a tree.

Gregory Piper, 17, of Lansing, died Sunday on Michigan 28 in Luce County when the car in which he was a passenger was struck broadside.

Boothby's Daughter Still In Hospital

Robin R. Boothby, 17, daughter of Atty. and Mrs. Lee Boothby, remained hospitalized today in "good" condition at Berrien General hospital, Berrien Center, as result of a car-truck collision last Tuesday in Royalton township.

Miss Boothby, Lake Chapin road, Berrien Springs, was driving a car involved in a collision with a truck loaded with about 3,400 pounds of tomatoes, Berrien sheriff's deputies said. Driver of the truck was identified as James W. Gesto, 24, South Bend, Ind., who was unhurt. The smashup occurred at the intersection of US 31-33 and John Beers road.

Deputies said the accident remains under investigation. Miss Boothby reportedly sustained a ractured pelvis.

MUGGED REPORTER: Associated Press reporter Holly Sims, 26, holds knife dropped by a would-be mugger who tried to steal her purse Friday while she was on her way to a store in Detroit. She wound up interviewing her assailant, who rode away empty-handed and promised not to try to mug her again. (AP Wirephoto)

Cruiser Hits Piling

A 28-foot cabin cruiser was damaged Friday when it struck a piling in the St. Joseph river, the St. Joseph Coast Guard reported.

William D. Klemm, 1076 Maple lane, Hagar township, was the operator of the boat. The Coast Guard reported no injuries in the 8:25 p.m. accident.

An unidentified diver cut the piling off below the water, the Coast Guard said, and the boat was towed to the West Basin marina for repairs.

One Car Of Train Derails

Berrien sheriff's deputies said one car of a Cheasapeake & Ohio railroad freight train jumped the tracks in Stevensville Sunday.

C & O officials in St. Joseph said the boxcar was back on the tracks about 2 a.m. today after the accident about 5:20 p.m. Sunday. The accident occurred near Sackett's Lakeshore Brick & Stone, Inc., 5320 St. Joseph avenue. No crossings were blocked or damaged, officials said. Deputies said an apparent malfunction of the car's wheels caused the derailment. The train was bound for Grand Rapids.

Senate Hopeful Baker Asks Austin's Resignation

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — U.S. Senate hopeful Deane Baker of Ann Arbor has called for the resignation of Secretary of State Richard Austin in the aftermath of allegations about a state patronage system involving Austin's political appointees.

Baker, a Republican, said Saturday Austin, a Democrat in the Senate race, should resign because of disclosures that about $11 million in state revenue collected by the Automobile Club of Michigan was funneled through branch offices operated by Austin's appointees.

The disclosure about funds collected by the auto club from license plate sales and going to Austin's political coffers is the latest revelation about a political fund-raising system in which Austin's appointees in his branch offices kick back part of their salaries to his campaign.

"I don't think it's compatible for a government official ... to use a patronage system to raise money," Baker told 300 to 400 Kent County Republicans.

"If a Republican had done that (collected money from a patronage system) they would drive him from office. They would hound him, the press would hound him, the community of Michigan would just not rest until the person, if he were a Republican, had been driven from office. I think we have to call them as we see them. That's what I do today, and that's why I call upon Dick Austin to resign his office as secretary of state."

Baker is one four Republican seeking the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate seat soon to be vacated by the retiring Philip Hart.

Austin said after the controversy about the patronage system arose that he would no longer accept the kickback funds from his branch managers.

DISABLED SAILBOAT AIDED: South Haven-based Coast Guard auxiliary boat Dolphin braved eight foot high Lake Michigan waves Saturday to aid 42-foot long sailboat in distress south of South Haven pier. Main sail of boat operated by James Butcher of Kalamazoo was shredded by wind gusts. Auxiliary engine of sailboat was not powerful enough to negotiate high waves. Coast Guard auxiliary boat captained by Henry Ellis of South Haven worked nearly one hour before tow line could be secured between boats. Sailboat was then towed safely into port without damage or injury. (Tom Renner photo)

Boat Theft Convictions

GRAND HAVEN, Mich. (AP) — Two Kenosh, Wis., men have been convicted of grand larceny for stealing a $135,000 yacht two years ago. Mort Sher, 39, the owner and operator of the Trident Marina at Kenosha, and 33-year-old Michael Davis, a salesman at the marina, were convicted in Ottawa County Circuit Court. Judge James E. Townsend convicted the pair after a fiveday trial without a jury. He set their sentencing for Aug. 30. The 44-foot vessel, the Mary B., was taken from its slip at Spring Lake on July 1, 1974. It was recovered at Kenosha 18 days later.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Advances Broadly

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained more than a point in the early going, and advances took a 2-1 lead over declines in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that the market had developed some upward momentum in its moderate rally on Friday.

They said it got a boost when a prime rate reduction from 7¼ to 7 per cent, begun last week by a few major banks, was matched by numerous others this morning.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.35 to 984.64.

Gainers held a 7-5 edge on losers among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index rose .24 to 55.26.

Big Board volume came to 14.83 million shares.

Higher Tax Bracket

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Charging the Michigan Citizens Lobby with just trying to save face, Senate Republican Leader Robert Davis says the group's graduated income tax proposal will not insulate many persons from inflation and higher taxes. Davis said inflation will force incomes up for many persons and force them into the higher income tax bracket provided in the proposal. The Gaylord lawmaker called the proposal, which will be on the Nov. 2 ballot, an "inequitable temporary proposal." But Doug Ross, co-director of the citizens lobbying group, said Davis didn't read the proposal carefully. Ross said the proposal provides for inflation by increasing each year the income at which higher tax rates take effect. Under the proposal, taxes for all income under $25,000 would be rolled back from the current 4.6 per cent to 3.9 per cent. Income over $25,000 would be taxed at 9 per cent. But that $25,000 figure would increase with inflation, Ross said.

Hear Merrill Lynch tell how writing options on your stocks could bring added income

At our next Merrill Lynch Forum, we'll explain a relatively little-known investment technique called Option Writing.

It could help you make money on your common stocks – cash payment for agreeing to sell the stocks in the future.

At the forum you'll learn:

- How much money you could reasonably expect to make – over a period of time.
- How Option Writing can produce a continuous cash flow while helping you cut stock market losses.
- Whether Option Writing is the right strategy for you. The risks involved. How to get started.

You'll also get a free prospectus on The Options Clearing Corporation.

The forum is free. But space is limited. So make your reservations today. Just call (616) 451-3061. Or mail the coupon. But come.

Time and place:
Thursday, August 12th, 8:00 p.m.

Chrysler Plans Big Note Offer

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Financial Corp. has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission covering a proposed $100 million issue of seven-year notes due in 1983, the firm said today.

The firm said proceeds of the issue, to be added to the general funds of the company, will be used to cut short-term borrowing.

Underwriters, including the First Boston Corp. and Merril Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., expect to offer the notes the week of Aug. 16, officials said.

Chrysler Financial Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Chrysler Corp., is involved in wholesale and retail financing of the parent company's products.

Vandalism Suspected In Leak

Berrien county sheriff's deputies from the Galien substation said the gas, a fertilizer, leaked from a wagon storage tank owned by the Galien elevator.

Deputies said the leak was found after they received a telephone call at 10:45 p.m. from a nearby resident who complained of ammonia fumes.

A valve to the tank had apparently been opened deliberately, deputies said.

Deputies said the leak caused no damage or injuries. Galien firemen were called to wash down the fertilizer.

I shall not see the shadows,
I shall not feel the rain,
I shall not hear the nightengale sing on as if in pain.
And dreaming throughout the twilight
That doth rise nor set.
Happily I may remember and happily may forget.
Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Brother, Sisters & Grandparents.

Boat Theft Convictions

GRAND HAVEN, Mich. (AP) — Two Kenosh, Wis., men have been convicted of grand larceny for stealing a $135,000 yacht two years ago. Mort Sher, 39, the owner and operator of the Trident Marina at Kenosha, and 33-year-old Michael Davis, a salesman at the marina, were convicted in Ottawa County Circuit Court, Judge James E. Townsend convicted the pair after a fiveday trial without a jury. He set their sentencing for Aug. 30. The 44-foot vessel, the Mary B., was taken from its slip at Spring Lake on July 1, 1974. It was recovered at Kenosha 18 days later.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Advances Broadly

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained more than a point in the early going, and advances took a 2-1 lead over declines in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that the market had developed some upward momentum in its moderate rally on Friday.

They said it got a boost when a prime rate reduction from 7¼ to 7 per cent, begun last week by a few major banks, was matched by numerous others this morning.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.35 to 984.64.

Gainers held a 7-5 edge on losers among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index rose .24 to 55.26.

Big Board volume came to 14.83 million shares.

Higher Tax Bracket

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Charging the Michigan Citizens Lobby with just trying to save face, Senate Republican Leader Robert Davis says the group's graduated income tax proposal will not insulate many persons from inflation and higher taxes. Davis said inflation will force incomes up for many persons and force them into the higher income tax bracket provided in the proposal. The Gaylord lawmaker called the proposal, which will be on the Nov. 2 ballot, an "inequitable temporary proposal." But Doug Ross, co-director of the citizens lobbying group, said Davis didn't read the proposal carefully. Ross said the proposal provides for inflation by increasing each year the income at which higher tax rates take effect. Under the proposal, taxes for all income under $25,000 would be rolled back from the current 4.6 per cent to 3.9 per cent. Income over $25,000 would be taxed at 9 per cent. But that $25,000 figure would increase with inflation, Ross said.

Chrysler Plans Big Note Offer

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Financial Corp. has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission covering a proposed $100 million issue of seven-year notes due in 1983, the firm said today.

The firm said proceeds of the issue, to be added to the general funds of the company, will be used to cut short-term borrowing.

Underwriters, including the First Boston Corp. and Merril Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., expect to offer the notes the week of Aug. 16, officials said.

Chrysler Financial Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Chrysler Corp., is involved in wholesale and retail financing of the parent company's products.

LICENSE SUSPENDED

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The State Board of Pharmacy has suspended the license of Grand Rapids pharmacist Kenneth Sikkenga, who is charged with distributing two drugs illegally.

Vandalism Suspected In Leak

Berrien county sheriff's deputies from the Galien substation said the gas, a fertilizer, leaked from a wagon storage tank owned by the Galien elevator.

Deputies said the leak was found after they received a telephone call at 10:45 p.m. from a nearby resident who complained of ammonia fumes.

A valve to the tank had apparently been opened deliberately, deputies said.

Deputies said the leak caused no damage or injuries. Galien firemen were called to wash down the fertilizer.

BEARS CHILD

DETROIT (AP) — Gladys Knight, lead singer of the Motown group Gladys Knight and the Pips, is the mother of a 10-pound baby boy. Miss Knight's husband, Barry Hankerson, said after seeing his 23-inch son, "I bet it was her vegetarian diet. That boy is as big as two sacks of sugar."

Hear Merrill Lynch tell how writing options on your stocks could bring added income

At our next Merrill Lynch Forum, we'll explain a relatively little-known investment technique called Option Writing.

It could help you make money on your common stocks – cash payment for agreeing to sell the stocks in the future.

At the forum you'll learn:

- How much money you could reasonably expect to make – over a period of time.
- How Option Writing can produce a continuous cash flow while helping you cut stock market losses.
- Whether Option Writing is the right strategy for you. The risks involved. How to get started.

In Memoriam 3

IN LOVING MEMORY OF ANITA GALLERT
Who will be 22 on August 2nd.
When I am dead my dearest,
Sing no sad songs for me.
Nor shady Cyprus trees.
Be the green grass above me.
With showers & dew drops wet.
And it thou will remember & it thou will forget
I shall not see the shadows.
I shall not feel the rain.
I shall not hear the nightingale sing on as if in pain.
And dreaming throughout the twilight
That doth rise nor set.
Haply I may remember and haply may forget.
Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Brother, Sisters & Grandparents.

ROOM FOR HORSES!
50-3215...The lawn surrounding this 4 bedroom home on 4 acres is like a thick green carpet. Around the home are large, stately trees giving privacy as well as protection. Close the gates after you enter the drive and the children or pets can run free—completely surrounded by a picturesque fence. The 2 story home is as impressive with its large living room with fireplace, formal dining room with bay window, private patio, 2½ baths, finished basement, family room with cathedral ceilings and spacious 2 car garage, dream kitchen. Priced in upper sixties.

¾ ACRE IN LAKESHORE NEAR LAKE
30-3606...With its large trees and splendid grounds, this stone ranch home features over 2000 sq. ft. with fireplace in the 12 x 27 family room, 3 bedrooms including full master bath, dining room, sun room and 1st floor utility. The 2 car garage has a completely paneled and carpeted den and workshop with additional working area for the hobbyist. Now picture a huge veranda overlooking the spectacular private backyard and you know you must see this lovely home.

BRICK DUPLEX NEAR ST. JOE RIVER
1780...Not too often can you find a brick duplex in a prestige location in the city of St. Joe. Lots of trees and superb surroundings with a view of the St. Joe River are available. There is a two bedroom unit and a 1 bedroom unit with a fireplace and basement. All separate utilities - meters with individual gas furnaces. This is truly a unique opportunity for the investor or individual looking for both a lovely home and/or a source of income.

TWO ACRES
10-3927...Spread out in this 4-5 bedroom home in Three Oaks. Garage plus 3 out buildings, new water softener and fenced yard—a home for a growing family. Call John Franta, 426-3634

COUNTRY SETTING
10-4028...Large shade trees surround this Sawyer home. Well built and in excellent condition, you'll appreciate the aluminum siding, family room and paneled living room. Attic with pull down stairway provides lots of storage. All this and water frontage, too. See it today. $33,900. Call John Franta, 426-3634.

2 STORIES OF CHARM IN BLUFFWOOD TERRACE
30-3447...Decorated to perfection is this new 4 bedroom available for immediate possession. Master bedroom offers twin closets and private bath. Formal dining room, family room with fireplace, fully equipped built-in kitchen, central air conditioning, 2½ car garage and more. Have a home to sell first? We may be able to take it in on trade.

SPACIOUS FAMILY HOME ON RAVINE
30-3671...Gracious suburban living on ¾ acre ravine lot. Six spacious bedrooms, master baths and dressing area. Perfect home for entertaining. St. Joseph Schools.

DOLLARS AND SENSE

ST. JOE SCHOOLS-NEAR MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
30-3040...This excellent 4 bedroom family home has over 1700 sq. ft. of living area. Two full baths, large 14x22 ft. living room and separate dining room. Fenced back yard is great for pets, children, or just plain gossiping with neighbors. The full basement could be finished for a rec room. Attached garage. $29,900.

ONE AND A HALF ACRE BUILDING SITE
30-3550...On Cleveland Ave., 4 miles south of St. Joe. Large barn, unusual trees, many lilacs and other bushes. $24,900.

MOVE TO THE COUNTRY
20-3546... Located north of Buchanan, this 3 bedroom, aluminum sided rancher is sitting on 8 acres of wooded, rolling land but with plenty of room for some small scale farming. This is the chance to move to your own mini-farm for under $30,000.

At That Moment

OVER THERE

The Argonne Forest had been twice tortured, by nature and by man.

Created a gullied thicket of dense trees and rocks, it was further ravaged and bloodied by the great World War I battle of Verdun in 1916, when Germany spent 300,000 lives for only 130 square miles of French territory.

It was but one instance of the insanity of trench warfare that pitted charging men in wave after wave against the machine gun. On an average day, both sides suffered 7,000 casualties. In a major battle such as the Somme in 1916, the British lost 60,000 men on the very first day — and the fightng in the bootsucking mud of Flanders raged for months longer.

But 1918, in the fourth year of war, Russia had already dropped out, her armies bled white, her government overthrown by Lenin and his Bolsheviks. After Verdun, a mutiny had swept the French army, involving 100,000 men in 52 divisions. But the Central Powers, Germany and Austria-Hungary, were also feeling the strain. The British blockade brought deep hunger and unrest to the German home front. By September, 1918, Austria was demanding that Germany sue for peace.

A major reason was that the Doughboys were coming. The Yanks, taking their nickname from the adobe dust that caked them during the chase after Pancho Villa on the Mexican border two years before, had landed almost 40 divisions since their commander, Gen. John J. Pershing, stepped ashore in France on June 28, 1917.

His men were strong, fresh, bred to the belief their country could do anything. They had not known the scars of the Somme with its 1.3 million casualties, nor choked on the rolling clouds of mustard gas, nor seen comrades buried alive under the mud of a shell blast at Ypres.

They strode into battle in July, 1918, to the tune of George M. Cohan's "Over There," to help stop the Germans' last great offensive at Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry, the Second Battle of the Marne. . .

Now, on Sept. 26, 1918, they go over the top again, across the moonscape of Verdun and the Argonne — "a blind world of whiteness and noise," one officer called it. The aim is to drive north, to meet eventually with the British driving east from Flanders and trap the German armies in a giant pouch.

It is a time of heroic tableaus: Col. George S. Patton, his primitive tanks shot from under him, leading his men against German machine guns and firing his two ivory-handled pistols as he runs; Alvin York, a corporal then and a deadeyed Tennesseean, nipping off Germans like squirrels until they surrender en masse. How many had he taken? his commander asks, as the mob passes by.

"Jesus, Lieutenant, I ain't had time to count 'em all yet."

There were, in fact, 132.

There, leading the men of his 42nd Rainbow Division, is Douglas MacArthur in a cloth overseas hat. He didn't like helmets. There is Capt. Harry S. Truman, an artillery officer with the 35th Division, and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, who became America's leading air ace in an age of trailing silk scarves and cognac glasses smashed in the fireplace. And there is Capt. Nelson Holderman, with five wounds, using two rifles as crutches while firing his .45 at the Germans, Capt. Holderman of the "Lost Battalion" which held out, though surrounded, for six days.

And there are the unnamed, such as this 37-mm gun crew manning their weapon in the never-never-again land of the Argonne Forest.

The Yanks make three miles the first day, then gradually bog down in a tangle of supply lines. At their end of the line, the British also slow down after initial success. But between them, they have written the inevitable on the wall.

On Oct. 4, Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany orders his government to wire President Wilson for peace terms. Five weeks later, the War to End Wars ends. Total cost: 8.5 million dead, including 53,000 Americans.

STATE LIBRARY

Bookmobile Helps Migrant Children

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State Library bookmobiles are swinging through 23 communities this summer to help migrant workers' children keep up with their studies.

The Migrant Education programs are designed to help youngsters who are unable to complete a full school year in one place, says Francis X. Scannell, state librarian. Materials are in both English and Spanish.

The programs, all optional, focus on kindergarten through eighth grade levels. On the final stop, youngsters are allowed to keep two paperback books of their choice.

A traveling librarian also tells stories, shows films, plays cassettes and records and leads songs and games, Scannell says.

The bookmobile has been on the move since June. Communities scheduled for bookmobile visits in August include Auburn, Croswell, Reese, Hart, Kent City, Stockbridge, Eaton Rapids, Lawrence, Bangor, Berrien Springs, Wayland, Fennville and Bentheim.

At That Moment

OVER THERE

The Argonne Forest had been twice tortured, by nature and by man.

Created a gullied thicket of dense trees and rocks, it was further ravaged and bloodied by the great World War I battle of Verdun in 1916, when Germany spent 300,000 lives for only 130 square miles of French territory.

It was but one instance of the insanity of trench warfare that pitted charging men in wave after wave against the machine gun. On an average day, both sides suffered 7,000 casualties. In a major battle such as the Somme in 1916, the British lost 60,000 men on the very first day — and the fighting in the bootsucking mud of Flanders raged for months longer.

But 1918, in the fourth year of war, Russia had already dropped out, her armies bled white, her government overthrown by Lenin and his Bolsheviks. After Verdun, a mutiny had swept the French army, involving 100,000 men in 52 divisions. But the Central Powers, Germany and Austria-Hungary, were also feeling the strain. The British blockade brought deep hunger and unrest to the German home front. By September, 1918, Austria was demanding that Germany sue for peace.

A major reason was that the Doughboys were coming. The Yanks, taking their nickname from the adobe dust that caked them during the chase after Pancho Villa on the Mexican border two years before, had landed almost 40 divisions since their commander, Gen. John J. Pershing, stepped ashore in France on June 28, 1917.

His men were strong, fresh, bred to the belief their country could do anything. They had not known the scars of the Somme with its 1.3 million casualties, nor choked on the rolling clouds of mustard gas, nor seen comrades buried alive under the mud of a shell blast at Ypres.

They strode into battle in July, 1918, to the tune of George M. Cohan's "Over There," to help stop the Germans' last great offensive at Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry, the Second Battle of the Marne. . .

Now, on Sept. 26, 1918, they go over the top again, across the moonscape of Verdun and the Argonne — "a blind world of whiteness and noise," one officer called it. The aim is to drive north, to meet eventually with the British driving east from Flanders and trap the German armies in a giant pouch.

It is a time of heroic tableaus: Col. George S. Patton, his primitive tanks shot from under him, leading his men against German machine guns and firing his two ivory-handled pistols as he runs; Alvin York, a corporal then and a deadeyed Tennesseean, nipping off Germans like squirrels until they surrender en masse. How many had he taken? his commander asks, as the mob passes by.

"Jesus, Lieutenant, I ain't had time to count 'em all yet."

There were, in fact, 132.

There, leading the men of his 42nd Rainbow Division, is Douglas MacArthur in a cloth overseas hat. He didn't like helmets. There is Capt. Harry S. Truman, an artillery officer with the 35th Division, and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, who became America's leading air ace in an age of trailing silk scarves and cognac glasses smashed in the fireplace. And there is Capt. Nelson Holderman, with five wounds, using two rifles as crutches while firing his .45 at the Germans, Capt. Holderman of the "Lost Battalion" which held out, though surrounded, for six days.

And there are the unnamed, such as this 37-mm gun crew manning their weapon in the never-never-again land of the Argonne Forest.

The Yanks make three miles the first day, then gradually bog down in a tangle of supply lines. At their end of the line, the British also slow down after initial success. But between them, they have written the inevitable on the wall.

On Oct. 4, Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany orders his government to wire President Wilson for peace terms. Five weeks later, the War to End Wars ends. Total cost: 8.5 million dead, including 53,000 Americans.

STATE LIBRARY

Bookmobile Helps Migrant Children

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State Library bookmobiles are swinging through 23 communities this summer to help migrant workers' children keep up with their studies.

The Migrant Education programs are designed to help youngsters who are unable to complete a full school year in one place, says Francis X. Scannell, state librarian. Materials are in both English and Spanish.

The programs, all optional, focus on kindergarten through eighth grade levels. On the final stop, youngsters are allowed to keep two paperback books of their choice.

A traveling librarian also tells stories, shows films, plays cassettes and records and leads songs and games, Scannell says.

The bookmobile has been on the move since June. Communities scheduled for bookmobile visits in August include Auburn, Croswell, Reese, Hart, Kent City, Stockbridge, Eaton Rapids, Lawrence, Bangor, Berrien Springs, Wayland, Fennville and Bentheim.
